KENDALLABRUM

1949

in the Southwest

In the beginning —

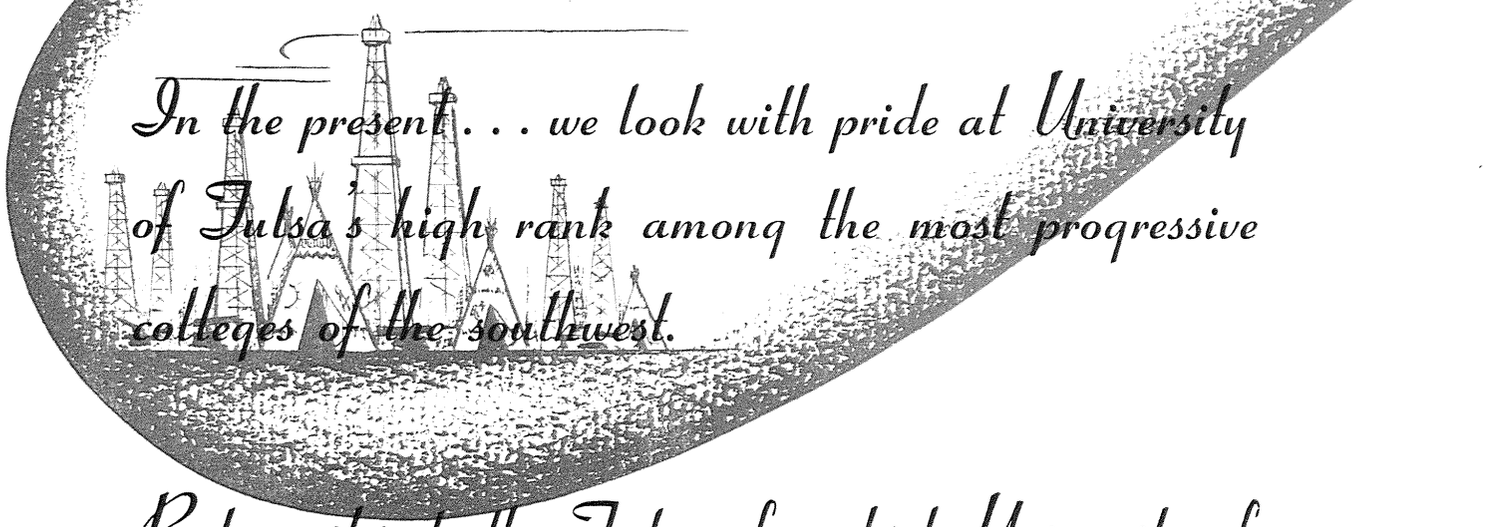

there were six Indian Maidens. In a missionary's home in Muskogee they gathered to learn and thereby gave life to the beginning of the University of Tulsa, a "modern miracle" in education. The importance of this small beginning cannot be subordinated in the TU story . . . a story of a modern educational institution serving the community and nation. From the pioneer flavor of that era the 1949 Kendallabrum has drawn inspiration.

Dedication

To the past . . . the days when this University first took roots in the red earth of Indian Territory . . we look with humility.

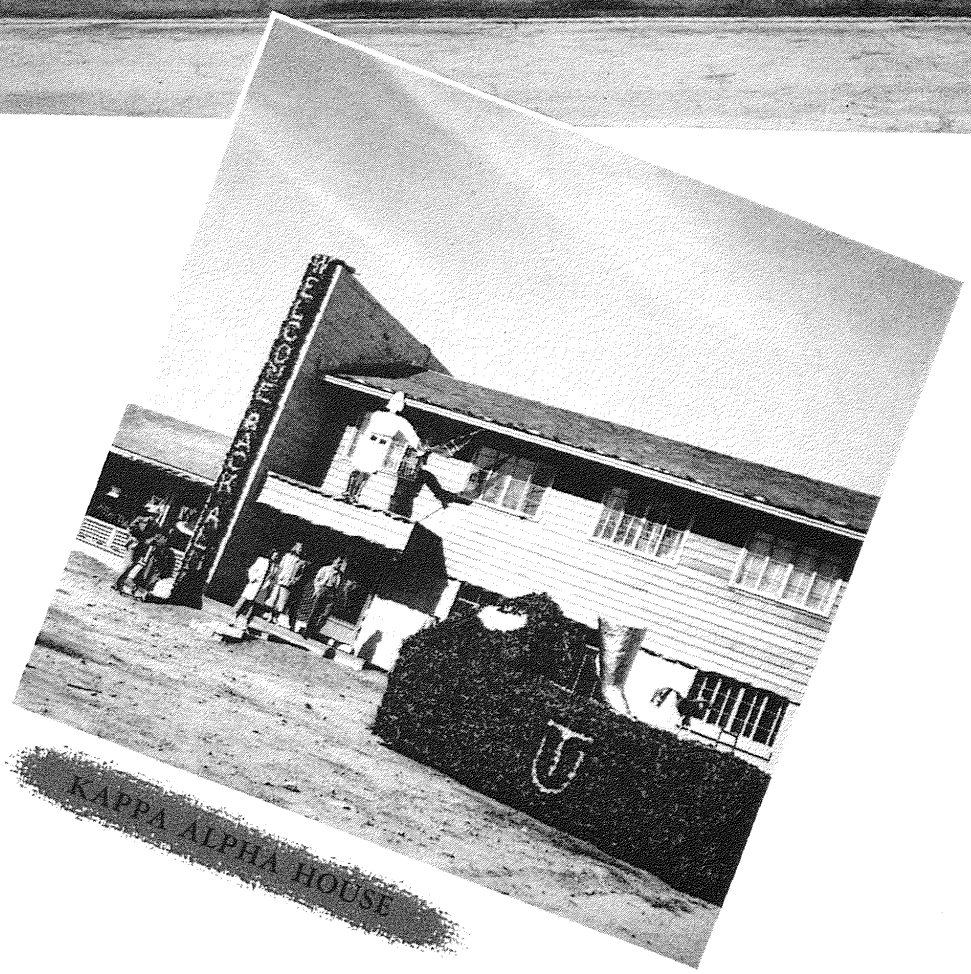

In the present . . . we look with pride at University of Tulsa's high rank among the most progressive colleges of the southwest.

But . . . it is to the Future, for which University of Tulsa students are preparing, in this red land of vivid history and rugged tradition, that the 1949 Kendallabrum, symbol of youth typically Oklahoman, is proudly pledged.

TYRRELL HALL

There was a steam shovel in the life of every TU student in 1948-49 . . . the machine that touched off the largest phase yet of a $5,000,000 campus face lifting. Beginning with a new Downtown College home, at 6th and Cincinnati, the shovel moved to the campus to start two new dormitories, a million dollar gift of the John E. Mabees. Planned for the future were a new science building and student union.

Over the hill to another ground breaking go these TU followers of the "gilded" spade!

POTSHOTS

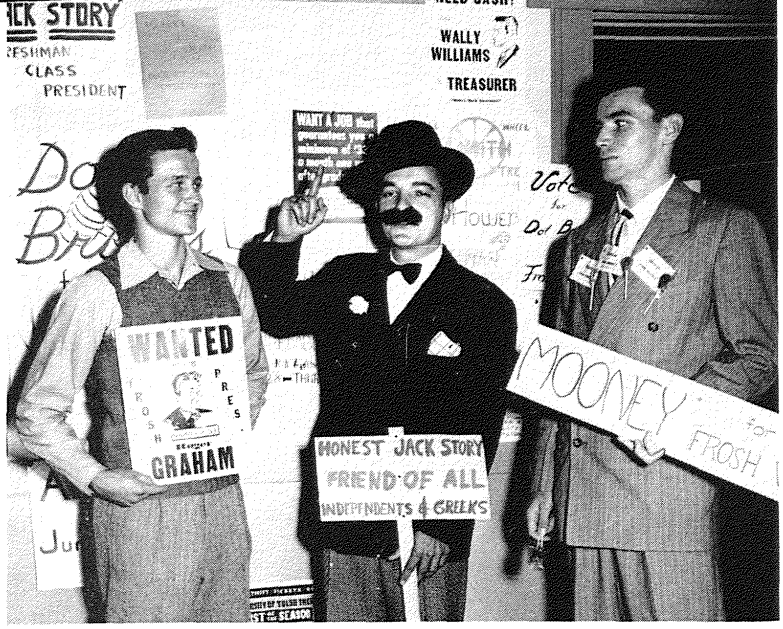

This Homecoming idea . . . a winner for Kappa Sigs.

Mr. President at Skelly. Next stop, the White House.

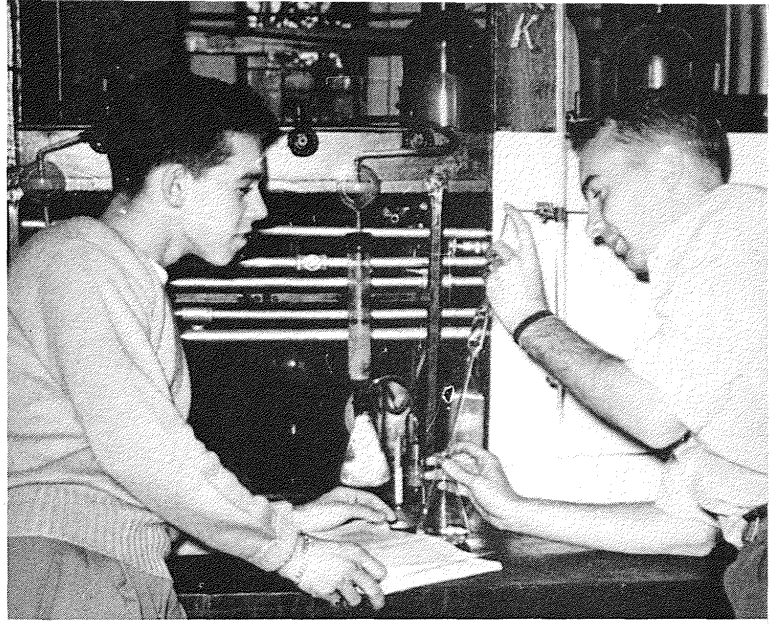

". . . one from the boys on the back row!"

Where is Loofbourrow?

Brewin' and stewin' with Wheeler and Wright.

And then there was the football queen, resplendent with attendants.

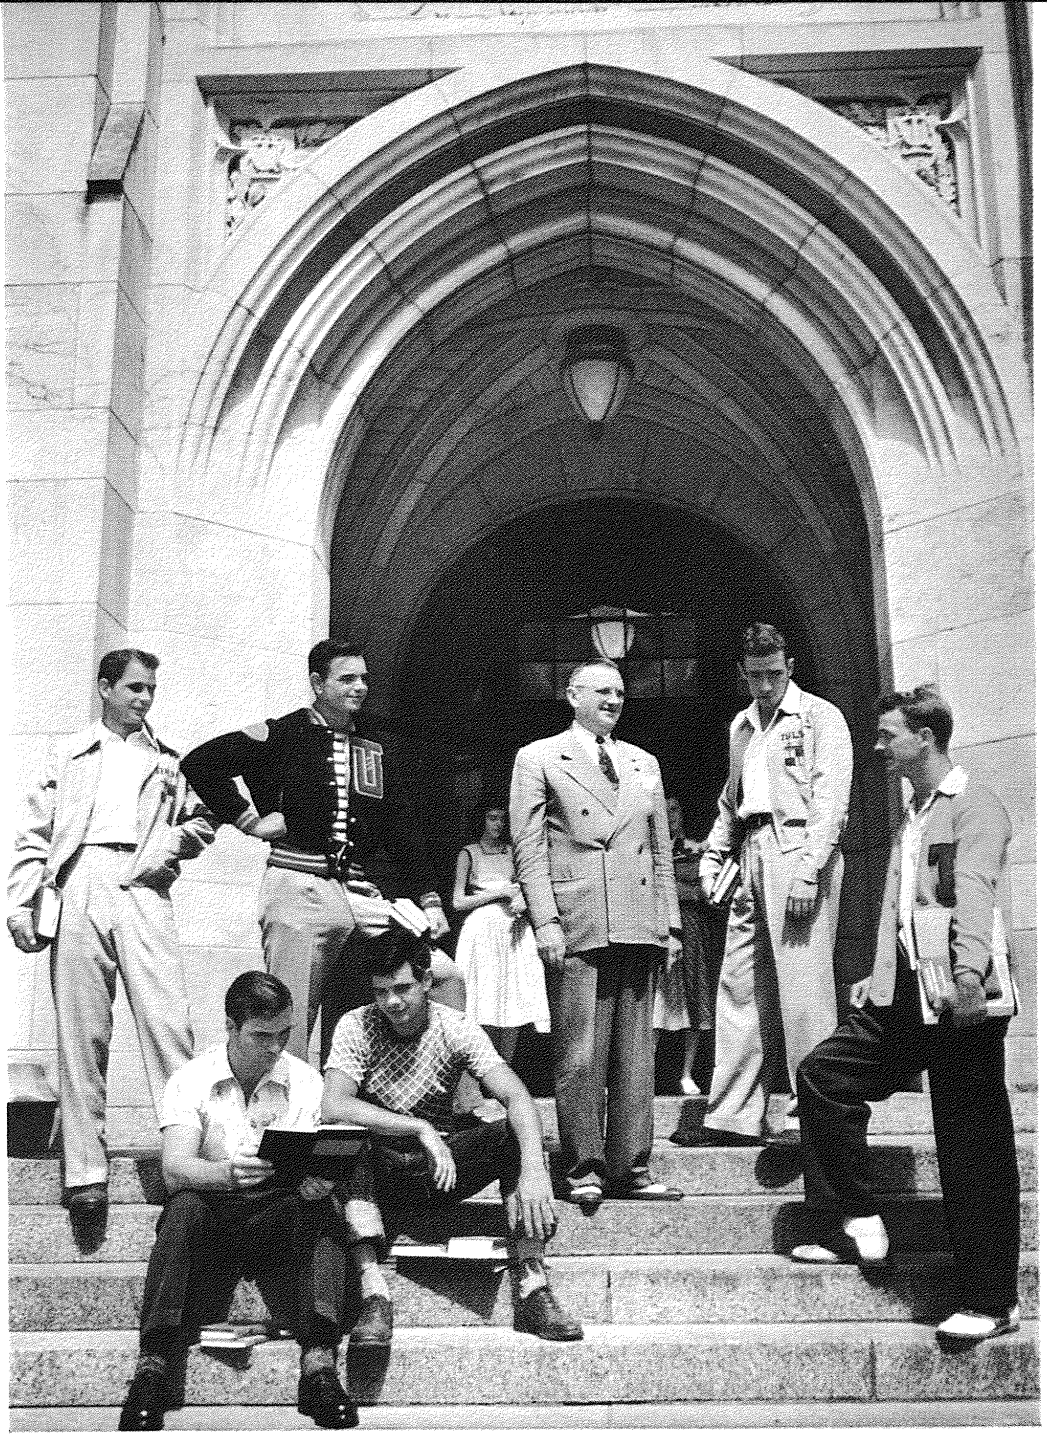

Yeow! The deck stood on the burning boy. (Fool ye!)

Satterwhite . . . Aggie tonsorial meat!

The President
Dr. C. I. Pontius

A Message from the President

The progress of The University of Tulsa is dependent on more than its faculty and physical plant, important as these are. The measure of its success is also a direct reflection of the activities of its students and alumni. No university is really great until it has the wholehearted loyal support of an enthusiastic alumni association. I congratulate you on being a member of the largest graduating class in the history of the University. I wish for you the ultimate in spiritual, mental, physical and financial successes in life. The University is reposing an important part of its reputation in you. I know it is in safe hands and that you will do all in your power to help improve and maintain the position of the University. As I complete my fourteenth year as President and as I welcome this class into the ranks of the alumni, I ask for your continued enthusiasm and loyalty as together we build the greater University of Tulsa.

COLLEGE OF ARTS AND SCIENCES

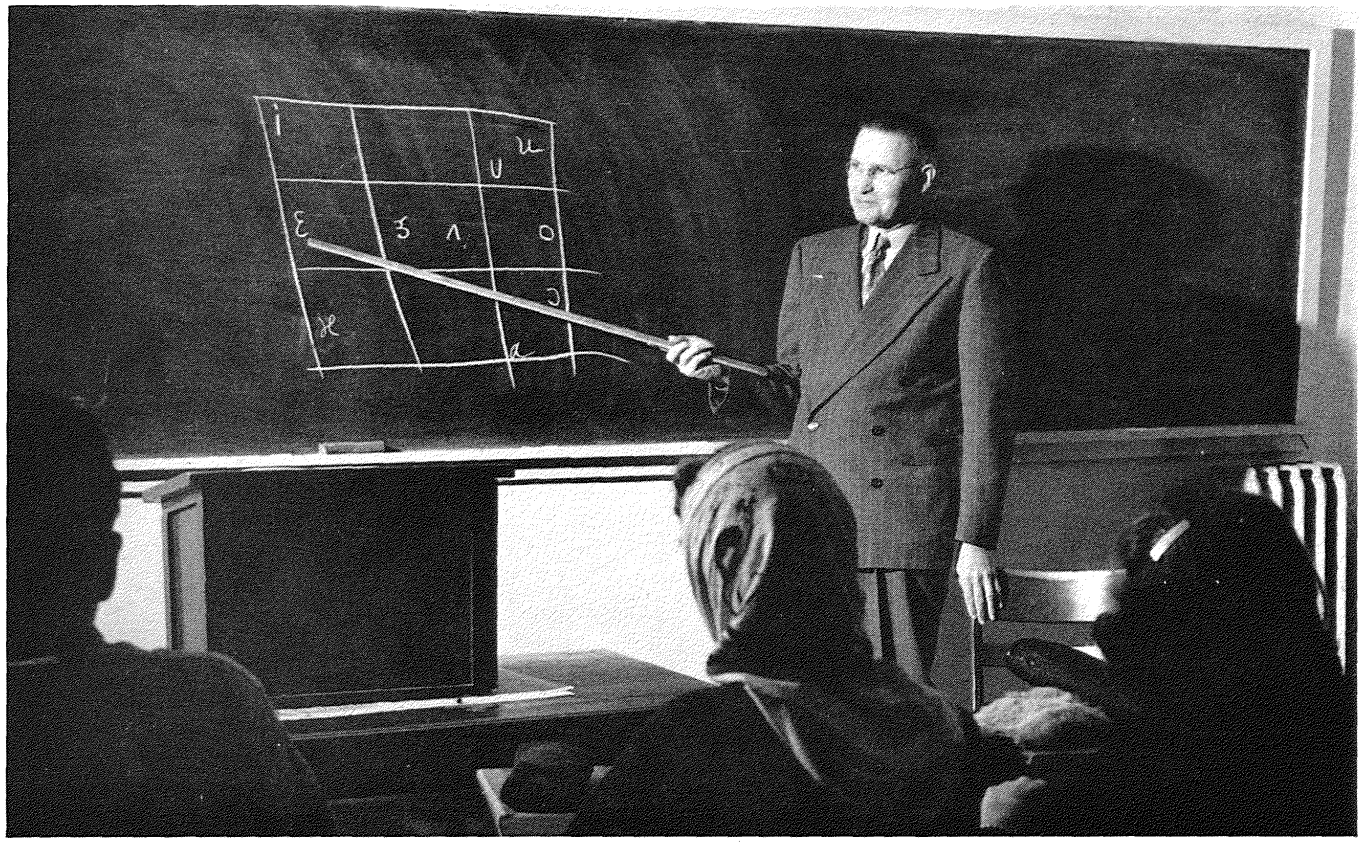

Dean E. H. Criswell

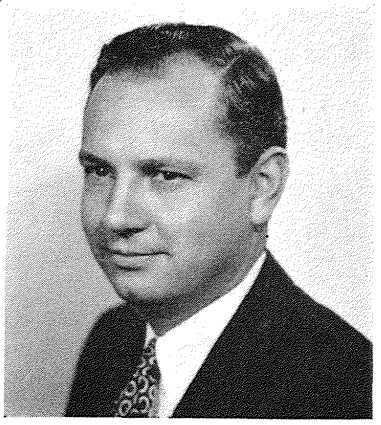

When the Ozark Mountains loaned him to the world temporarily several years ago, Dean E. H. Criswell took the job of roving ambassador seriously to tell the world about his Missouri birthplace. In addition to this mission, he has become a successful college administrator, teacher and a foremost authority on American dialects. The latter has brought him national recognition through the American Dialects Society of which he is vice-president.

Guiding the college careers of more students than any other dean, Criswell's daily routine includes personal counsel with young teachers, writers, chemists, homemakers and others. Interspaced with these are duties of long range planning and every-day administration of the Arts and Sciences College. The popular dean keeps further contact with his students through classes which he instructs regularly. Dealing efficiently and sincerely with the 1400 men and women in his college and the scores of faculty members under his direction, Dean Criswell is aiding in the building of a greater TU.

Keeping in touch with the students, the Dean stops for a laugh in this English class.

COLLEGE OF BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

Dean M. M. Hargrove

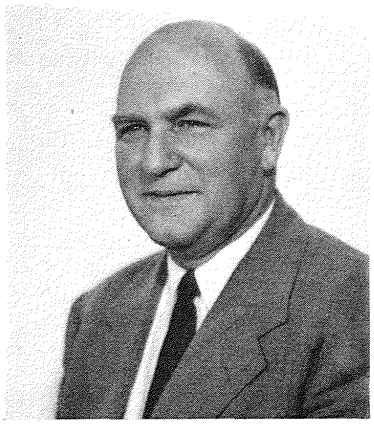

Much credit can be given Dean Hargrove for the amazing growth of the College of Business Administration, now located in beautiful new Lorton Hall, gift of the Tulsa World publishers. His twelve years here have seen the yearly number of Business graduates multiply several times, and during this period his reputation in business circles has also risen. An extremely young dean, Hargrove is popular with both students and colleagues in his active participation in the civic life of Tulsa.

Still glowing over its spacious new home, the College of Business Administration can boast of facilities equal to those of any school in the Southwest. Future accountants, office managers and secretaries use only the most modern equipment in their training here. The Business school carries a lot of weight around the campus these days, for its enrollment, in excess of 800 students, makes it the second largest school at TU. Guiding its fortunes and doing a lot of teaching too, Dean Hargrove expects his school to grow plenty in the future.

Secretary Carolyn Blair stops the busy Dean for a conference outside new Lorton offices.

COLLEGE OF PETROLEUM SCIENCES AND ENGINEERING

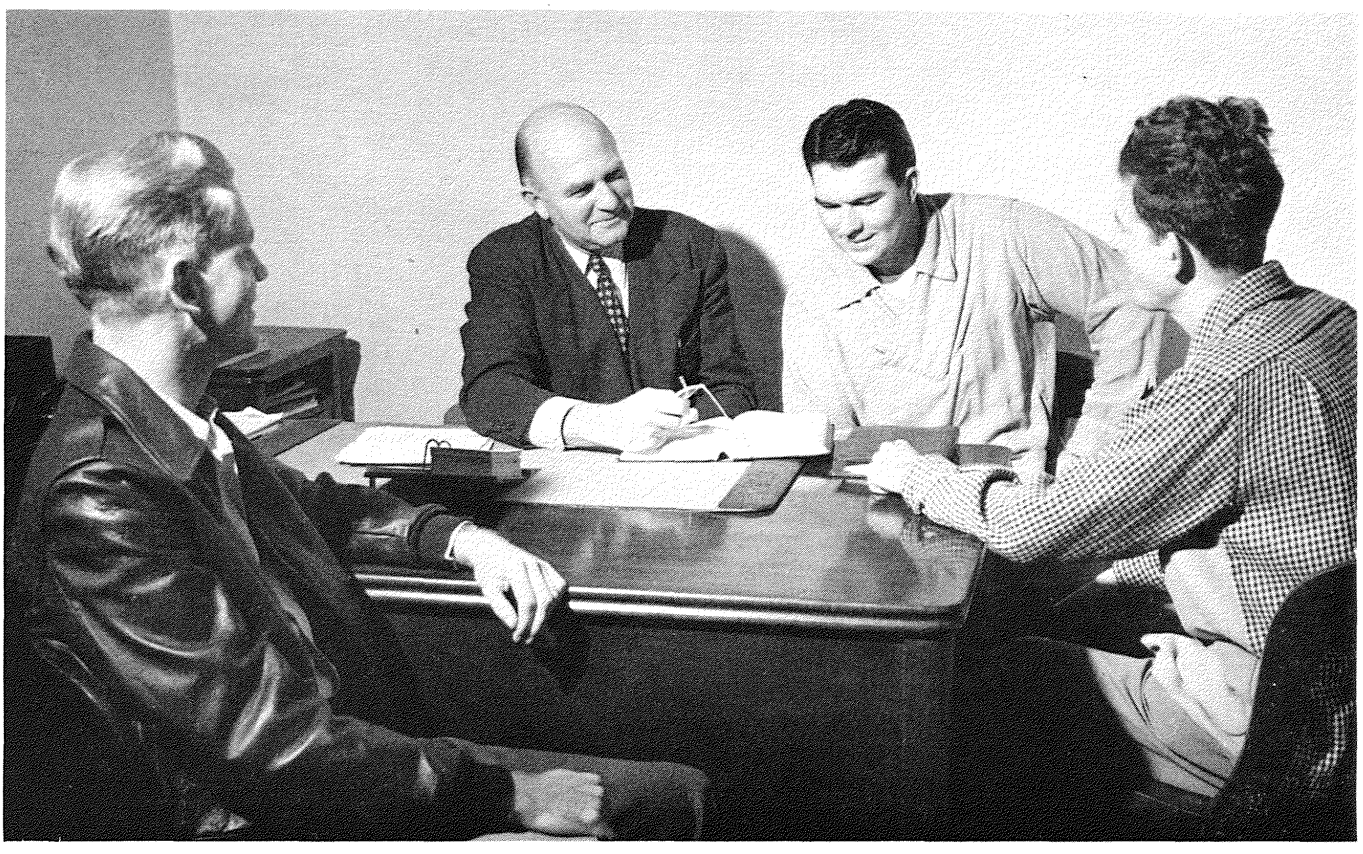

Dean R. L. Langenheim

Among other "veterans" of long service on the University of Tulsa campus is Dean Langenheim, who has served in positions from acting president of the University to dean of two of the colleges. Coming to Tulsa in 1930, the Ohioan has been on hand for much of the development of the modern TU story. He has been responsible for a great part of the growth of the College of Petroleum Engineering, both in size and prominence during the past two decades. In addition to academic duties he is also vice president of TU.

Molding young careers for the petroleum industry is the job that keeps the Dean near The Phillips Engineering building a majority of the time. Every state in the union and scores of foreign countries have sent their young men to gain the knowledge that has been centered on the TU campus until today it is commonly known as the "World Capital of Petroleum Education."

While the stress remains on petroleum education, since 1941 a department of aeronautical engineering has been training students for another important industry, aviation.

Dean Langenheim tells one for the benefit of visiting students of the engine school.

COLLEGE OF FINE ARTS

When Dean Lukken opens his copy of the 1945 KENDALLABRUM he can qualify as an able critic of the book for it will be volume No. 26 for congenial "Uncle Albert" of the Fine Arts College. His years of service to the University received official recognition last fall when he was named outstanding faculty member by the TU Alumni Association at Homecoming. Endowed with a tinge of showmanship, along with a great musical talent, the Dean is an advocate always of "bigger and better things" for his music school.

Dean Albert Lukken

While his gifts to the University have been numerous, his community has also gained immeasurably from his desire to provide worthwhile music for a wide audience. One of these gifts is the annual Starlight Symphony concerts held in Skelly stadium and attended by hundreds of Tulsans. Others are the yearly recitals, concerts and festivals presented by music students, faculty and visiting professional artists. Hundreds of young musicians have been aided by Dean Lukken in their desire for degrees in music and their subsequent success has been ample reward for him.

The Dean turns the tables and makes music for his music makers, a practice he enjoys.

GRADUATE DIVISION

Dean L. S. McLeod

A trim gray Van Dyke, a Phi Beta Kappa key, an agile mind, a tall straight figure . . . this is Dean McLeod, sedate and kindly senior member of the University of Tulsa faculty. Associated with the school since 1918, the Dean has become a symbol of educational growth, if not tradition, on the campus where he has worked so long. First as dean of the Arts and Sciences College, and now head of psychology and Dean of the Graduate Division, he adds invaluable experience and knowledge to the school.

Directing the work of a more select group, students working toward higher degrees, the dean's wide background is an aid to graduates striving toward a more thorough mastery of their fields. In psychology, where he has worked as both consultant and teacher, McLeod has brought both regional and national recognition to himself and to TU. The most recent of these honors were as president of the Oklahoma State Psychological Association and the Oklahoma Academy of Science, as well as inclusion in American Men of Science, Who's Who, and others.

Graduate students and research volumes get an introduction through the division's Dean McLeod.

DOWNTOWN DIVISION

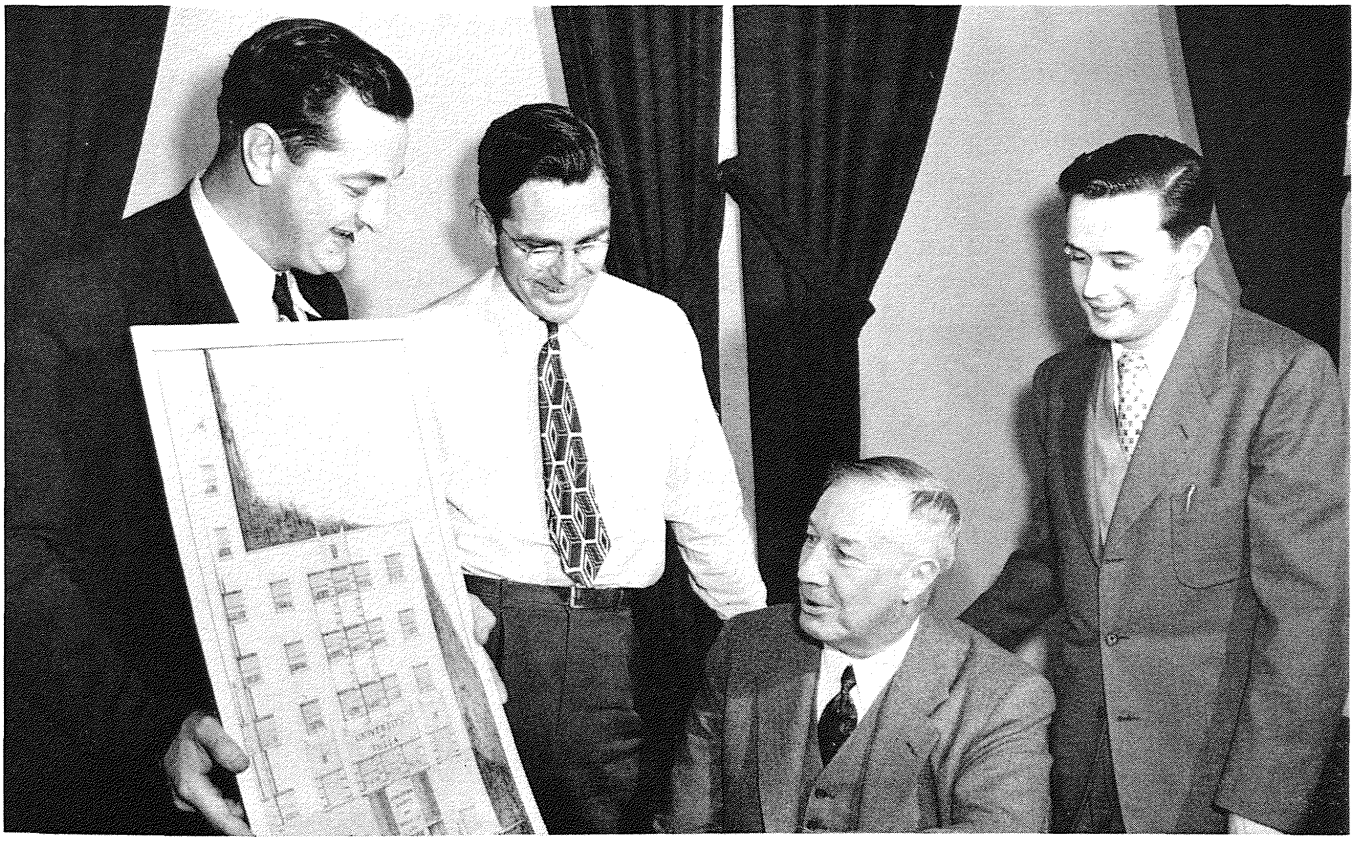

Dean H. W. Gowans

Around Dean Harry Gowan's Downtown College in 1948-49, conversations either began with or eventually came around to the building of the new DD home at 6th and Cincinnati. For the Dean and his more than 1400 students who take their night work seriously, the overcrowded classrooms and flashing neon signs, so characteristic of the "walk-up" college, were almost a thing of the past. For the long-time public school and college educator it was also a fitting reward for more than four years of unparalleled growth of the Downtown College.

In relation to time spent in various positions in the Tulsa Public Schools, Dr. Gowans' TU service is comparatively short. Since joining the University staff in 1944 however, he has gained a popular position with all students. When not busy during winter semesters at the Downtown College, he takes over as director of summer sessions on the main campus. Aiding his numerous students whose school "days" are over but who earn college degrees in nearly a dozen fields while continuing a full-time career, is his favorite job.

Plans for the new DD building hold the attention of the Dean and these students who study by night.

SCHOOL OF LAW

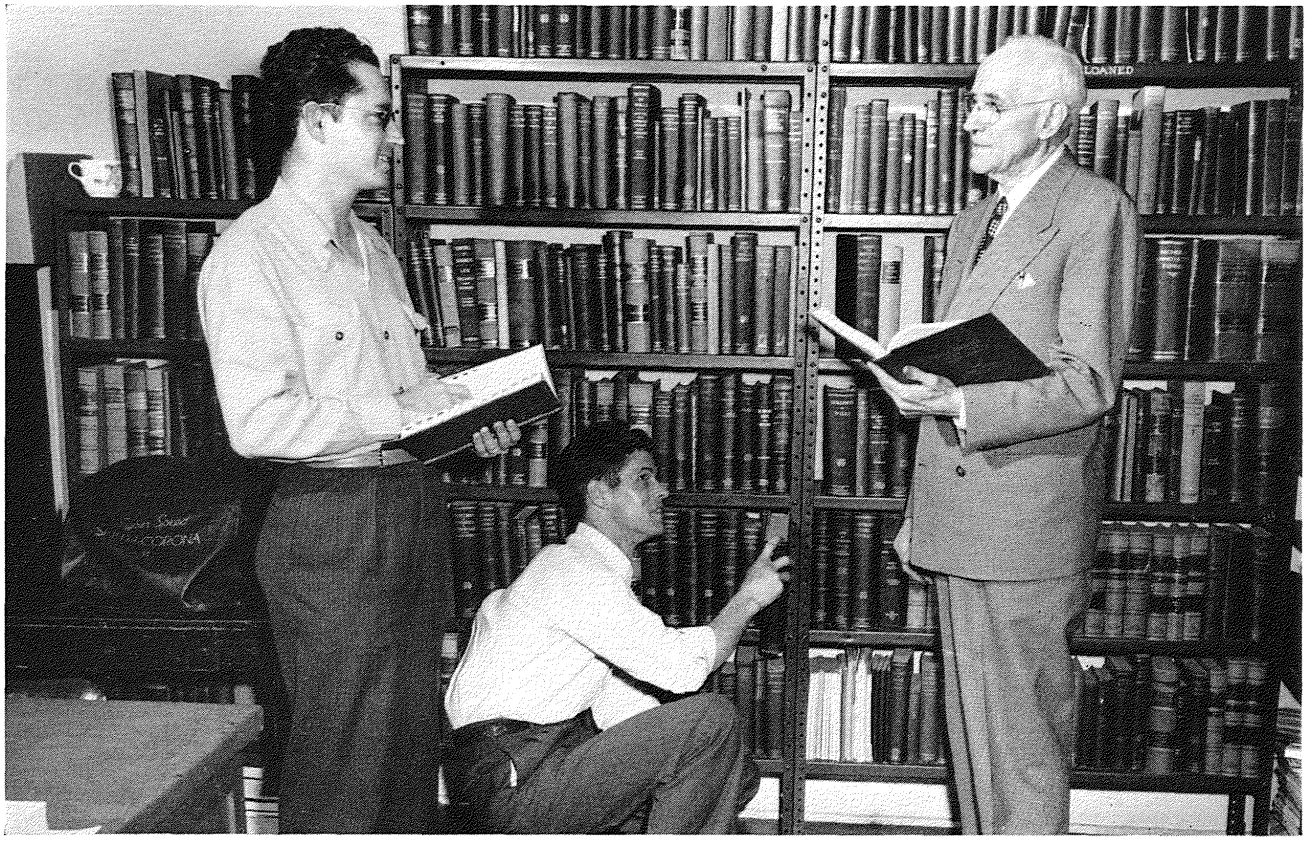

Dean Summers Hardy

When a student enrolls at the University of Tulsa Law School with the ambition of someday hanging out his own shingle, he could find no better standard to guide his career than that of his dean, Judge Summers Hardy. One of the great figures in Oklahoma law circles, Dean Hardy has held the office of Supreme Court Justice of Oklahoma and now guides the TU Law School in addition to conducting a private law practice. The Dean's career, like that of other widely known Tulsa attorneys, has added much to the school which is training today's generation as tomorrow's men of law. He is ably assisted by W. C. Franklin, assistant dean, who has also had a long and successful career in law.

It is only fitting that a man of Dean Hardy's reputation in his profession should head the law faculty which boasts of other Tulsans who have made more than an average mark in this field. The custom of calling upon those men who can impart the knowledge that has made them successful in their own law careers, a practice which established the old Tulsa Law School in the early 1920's, is carried on to good advantage. A merger of the University's program of pre-law training and that of the Tulsa Law School in 1943, made the two programs a single unit. The Law School, under Dean Hardy, has reached a record enrollment this year and a new expansion in classes which includes a full-time course for the first time. Like the Downtown College, the Law School will have realized another great expansion with the completion of the modern classroom building in downtown Tulsa.

Assistant Dean W. C. Franklin discusses a point of law with two visiting Downtown College students.

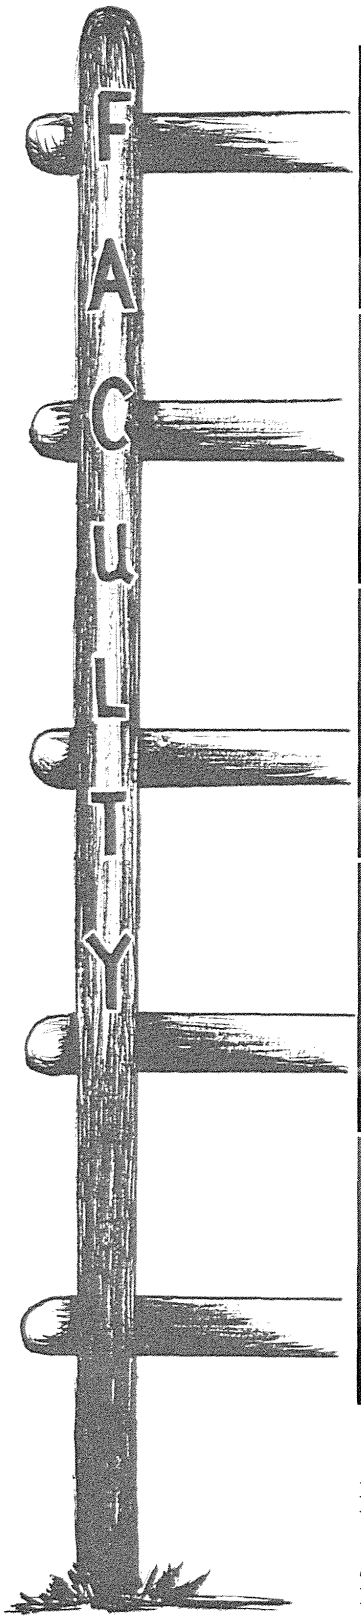

Black robes could mean mourning, but not on this occasion. It's time for graduation and mortar boards again.

250 WHEELS SIMMER

Pi Delts Hatch New Wheel Meal

Outside of the pure journalistic advancement of the venture, Pi Delta Epsilon brings you the "1949 Big Wheel Meal" entirely as a continued experiment in humor, new to this campus.

It is our pleasure to see TU Wheels grimace and squirm under our "flash back" of the past year's happenings for the second time. Its beginning in 1948 has set what we hope to be an annual custom for the "torture" of campus characters in fun.

Like last year, the BWOC's have provided their usual amount of interesting events so that the writing of this year's show has resulted in "selected" subjects best known to faculty, students and guests.

When the 1948 junior-sized "gridiron" was staged it was soon discovered that the event had out-grown the campus and so the '49 Wheel Meal has been forced to seek new accommodations at the Varsity Club.

So, to all "Wheels" a big howdy from PDE.

Big Wheels on Campus Lampooned for Second Year

Univ. of Tulsa, April 1—When the first edition of the "Big Wheel Meal" hit the University of Tulsa campus back on April 1, 1948, it brought along with it a symbol of the campus "wheels" which Pi Delta Epsilon members chose as their favorite targets for a verbal roasting on April Fool's day. This rather dilapidated little figure, which embodies many of the accepted characters of a "BWOC", although exaggerated, made a hit the moment he appeared from the pen of Artist Anita Flanders.

BWOC — 1949

And so, when the Second annual junior-size gridiron appeared on the same date this year few students failed to recognize him as the forerunner of the journalism fraternity's annual satire on those students and faculty who had gotten themselves in the news during 1948-49. Held at the Varsity Club and attended by the 250 "wheels" which the organization chooses each year, the event proved rather conclusively that the Pi Delt's had established a popular custom that would demand adherence as long as there were "sins of notoriety" on the TU campus to be paid for.

Using a newspaper layout as a design for the program, Pi Delts waded through well-known campus events and the people connected with them with "Pegler" abandon. Showing an improved technique in the art of "panning", the journalists reached a new height in satire. From TU's changing sports situation to the faculty which claimed the comic strip spot, the script sought out both big "wheels" and little ones.

SAINT PAT'S ENGINEERS

For the first time in many an Engineers' Week the several hundred men of the engine school rounded out the 1949 event without a shorn lock of hair, a skinned knuckle or the humiliation of the loss of their flag to rival students on the campus. Except for the usual "unofficial holiday," the week honoring their patron saint ran along almost too smoothly and quietly. By April 19, however, books and slide rules had slid into an obscure spot and the engineers turned out en masse for their annual dance, held this year at the new Varsity Club. It set a tempo that made up for any slowing of activities earlier.

Circle: King Pat gives with the coronation kiss for Queen Pat. Stanley Britton, high ranking engineer, and Jean Coulter, KKG, reigned this year.

Left: Jack Wahl, Ed Mills, Ed Flaxbart, and Ralph Lewtas lay plans for the Engineers dance, one of the best in many years.

Royalty

Telling the world about Oklahoma while writing top-notch plays is the work of Lynn Riggs, the Claremore-born author of "Oklahoma!" and other stage hits. His ability as a writer proven, KENDALLABRUM editors decided to test his ability in choosing Sooner beauties. Although dubious himself at the outset, the following pages show his success in the new field. As a tribute to his fine work as a playwright, three scenes from early and recent plays are shown. (Top) "Russet Mantle," (right) "Roadside," (yep, the hero is Ralph Bellamy) and (bottom) the party scene from "Oklahoma!"

Mrs. Jerre Baldwin, Editor
The 1949 KENDALLABRUM
The University of Tulsa
Tulsa, Oklahoma

Dear Mrs. Baldwin:

You've given me a harder job than I had anticipated about the girls' pictures. I want to make it perfectly clear -- and I hope you will give these statements some publicity -- that there were so many strikingly beautiful girls I was hard put to it to make a decision. In fact, not wanting to trust my own judgment too thoroughly, I asked various friends, professional people, to pass judgment on my not quite rigid selections. These friends, an actress-director, two actors, and a painter, agreed with at least four and sometimes five of my final selections.

As you instructed me, the decision has been made purely on the photographic evidence. It is quite possible that there are more beautiful girls than I have selected, but the evidence of the photographs alone compels me to put them down as follows.

The first place winner is Margaret Wooten. The remaining five choices I have not attempted to rank in any order, however. They are: Greta Stone, Kathryn Weems, Saralou Thornton, Barbara Botkin, and Norma Briggs.

This has really been a lot of fun. I hope nobody's feelings are seriously hurt. Anyone with the looks of most of these girls, I should say, has no serious cause for worry in not being first in a beauty contest.

Very truly yours,

Lynn Riggs

Groundbreaking is concluded by Dr. C. W. Kerr's benediction.

Mr. Lorton attends the dedication of new Lorton Hall.

Mr. Mabee digs while students await their turn at the shovel.

THE past school year on the University of Tulsa campus was truly one of building and expansion. Not since the early 1930's had the school seen anything to compare with it and it apparently is only just a good beginning. Completed and dedicated the Summer of 1948 was Eugene Lorton Hall, made possible by the publishers of the Tulsa World. Hardly had the doors been opened to admit the first students when groundbreaking ceremonies for the largest single phase of the University's five million-dollar building program were held. This wielding of the "gilded shovel" started construction on two resident halls for men and women, given by Mr. and Mrs. John E. Mabee. And in early 1949 came a beginning of work on a new petroleum sciences building, given by various oil concerns, while the latter part of the year was to see the completion of a Downtown College building at 6th and Cincinnati.

"Jumpin' at the Big Ten"

JUNIOR-SENIOR PROM

The 1949 KENDALLABRUM drops back a few months to give coverage to the 1948 Junior-Senior Prom, as much for the success of the event as to record the activities of last year's Seniors and this year's graduates. Too late for the '48 yearbook, we thought it a too enjoyable highlight to be eliminated by a printer's deadline.

As if the war-time respite had served as a period to gain new life, the Junior-Senior Prom seemed to explode from its position "on the shelf" to become one of the highlights of student entertainment last year. Complete with Senior Sweetheart, Miss Dorothy O'Donovan; the music and antics of Ernie Field's band, and the spacious "Big 10 Ballroom", the event set a high standard for those to follow.

"It was also fun watchin' for CC's Zipursky and date, Betty Unsell.

Mixin' at the Mixer . . . now where did that blond go?

STUDENT MIXER

The good Doctor has a good eye and a fast step.

First "big deal" of the year for both gal and guy students at TU is always the student mixer: the "introducing party," given by the Community Council as school is starting. Dancing on the tennis courts, freshman girls are given the "rush" by the frosh football players (their heads freshly shaven by the varsity). And on the side-lines, sorority girls try to restrain themselves from another kind of "rushing." A big time is had by all at the mixer, as witness these pix from the '48 dance.

The bashful element makes the initial approach.

For the first post-war time, the frosh class revived the "freshman week-end," when all events center on the new TU students. Starting the festivities off with a Friday-night bonfire and pep rally, the frosh festivities continued on through TU football game Saturday. They were honored at an all-school dance that night, where the class queen, Patsy Daniels, was crowned by Council president Zipursky.

The "wild blue yonder" boys of Air Force Reserve learn to hit the "bucket."

Plotting problems in class or for the Naval Reserve is all "in a day" for TUers.

"Plane" talk is a part of any discussion in the Air Guard.

"Hey Kilroy!!"

WHEN hundreds of TU students came home from the war, months ago, things military were the first to be forgotten—in most cases. Not so for many however, as evidenced by Tulsa's five major military reserve organizations. Both veterans and rookies double now as students and part-time soldiers, airmen, sailors and marines. Despite the peace-time good pay, travel, and other changes, chief petty officers and first sergeants still exist, however.

The 45th Division makes "Thunderbirds" of these TUers once each week at the National Guard Armory. Here they get an education in the Browning .30 caliber.

Football Queen

WHEN homecoming rolls around each fall to bring alums back for a hasty glimpse of TU, there is always pleasant scenery in the direction of the Football Queen. The lucky lass who received the nod from Hurricane gridders in 1948-49 was Ruth Gunderson, small, pert blond Chi Omega. And when Jack Burrows, halfback, bestowed the royal kiss and crown at half-time of the South Carolina-TU game, it wasn't all just ceremony. A couple of months later she married the good looking sophomore.

COACHES

Although the friendly smile on Head Coach Buddy Brothers' face was about all the TU coach had left at the end of the disastrous 1948 season, that smile had broadened visibly by Spring. The Texan, entering his fourth season at the helm of the University's football program, is out to correct the bad situation of too little material at the right time and the right place.

Whether winning or losing, Buddy's popularity on and off the campus remains at a high level. That Tulsans believe that Buddy will someday become as famous for his abilities as a coach here as he was for his ability as a player at Texas Tech, Lubbock, Texas, is evident. He has helped to build the recent teams that have made brilliant the football history of TU. Coming here at the beginning of the "bowl era", he helped to mould such TU greats as Glenn Dobbs, Clyde LeForce, and others, as backfield coach. In 1946 he was the popular choice for the head coach job when Henry Frnka, producer of TU's "bowl boys", went to Tulane University.

When N. A. Keithley, former Hurricane halfback, who co-starred with Glenn Dobbs, left in the Spring, Coach Brothers drew on another of his grid students, Charley Spilman, for the post of Freshman coach. The big, good natured Spilman advanced to assistant varsity coach before the season ended, however.

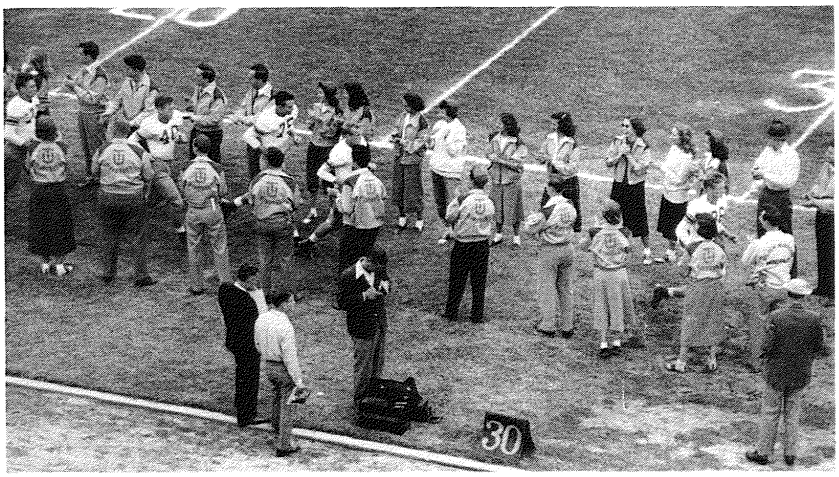

Another former TU grid great, Jerry D'Arcy, took over the freshmen to redeem, in a measure, the failings of the varsity squad. Another newcomer to the coaching staff as line coach, was Toby Greer, also a student of Texas Tech football and successful high school mentor in Texas. John Garrison, backfield coach and scout, another Texan and former pupil of Buddy's at East Texas State Teachers, rounded out the staff. John also completed a fine golf season in addition to coaching basketball and track.

Following the football season, the Golden Hurricane coaching staff underwent extensive reorganization. Added to the staff as Associate Coaches were former star Hurricane end, Saxon Judd, Bernie Witucki of Notre Dame and the pro Chicago Rockets, DeWitt Weaver of Tennessee, and Paul Newell of Nebraska State.

A bonfire and nocturnal pep rally . . . a good bet for Saturday wins.

Saturday afternoons in Skelly Stadium marked the periodical climaxes to the Golden Hurricane football season but the week between games . . . an interim for spirit building . . . meant fun, frolic and serious preparation for students as well as players. Parades, rallies and stunts all have their place around the TU gridiron and through these the color that drew thousands each week was added.

SEASON REVIEW

BAYLOR

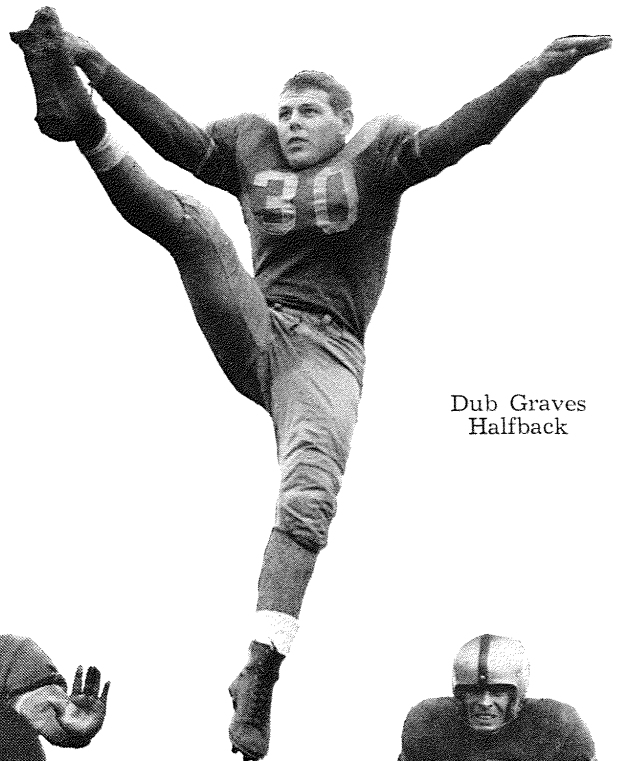

With high hopes and a bowl bid tucked away in the pocket, the Golden Hurricane opened the season against Baylor's rugged Bears in Waco, Texas. On the first two occasions the Hurricane had the ball they ground away for 70 and 83 yards respectively to cross the double stripes for scores. Flingin' Jimmy Finks, Paul Barry, S. J. Whitman, and Fightin' Jimmy Ford did most of the honors. However, lack of manpower hurt the T.U. grid machine as Baylor poured in a continual string of fresh reserves. With Adrian Burk doing the passing, George Sims and Henry Dickerson hitting the ends for long gains the Texans roared back in the second half to pile up a 42-19 margin by the time the gun sounded.

Jimmy Graham "soars" to stop Baylor's Blackwood at Waco.

FLORIDA

Stunned and littered with cripples, the Hurricane emplaned for steamy Florida and the unknown quantity Gators. Before a middling crowd, Tulsa's Jimmy Finks put on a first half passing exhibition that had the fans gasping, but sloppy tackling on the part of the Hurricane allowed Gator speedsters Charley Hunsinger and Loren Broadus each to ramble over 80 yards downfield for scores. The contest was strictly offensive, although the T.U. defense held touted Don Belding to three completions out of 10 attempts, while Finks hit for 15 out of 26, good for 179 yards. An eight yard pass to Ford accounted for the first T.U. score, and toward the end of the game, Finks swept around end and trotted 16 yards to tally. Final score, Florida 28—Tulsa 14.

TEXAS TECH.

Opening the home season, a dogged Hurricane, despite two decisive setbacks, laid plans for the wily Texas Tech Red Raiders. Some one neglected to inform Texas that the Saturday contest was a football game, and led by scampering Charley Reynolds they turned the fracas into a track meet. Three times the slippery Reynolds toured the course for touchdowns, which spelled the ball game. The Hurricane still continued to roll up the statistical margins that would win on paper, but the lack of defense against scatbacks roaming around downfield hurt the T.U. grid machine.

Ralph Detwiler,
Guard

GEORGETOWN

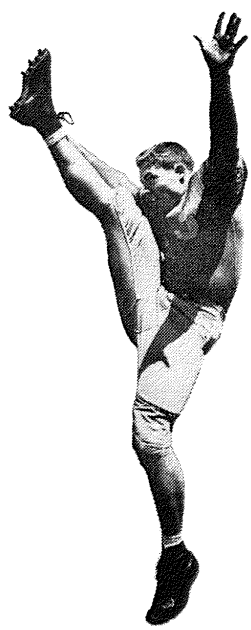

Georgetown brought a beef trust and a grinding ground attack on its invasion of Skelly Stadium. During a dismal day that held the Hurricane passing assault to a minimum, the Tulsans scored on the ground with Paul Barry pushing over early in the game. For three rugged periods T.U. managed to stave off the pounding Hoya attack. In the fourth quarter, fleet Billy Conn, the Georgetown running flash, faded to his left and hoisted a feeble pass into the gloom. George Benigni picked it off and scored. A pass interception gave the Easterners another chance. With Conn toting leather they hustled down to the six. Once again, Conn faded to his left behind strong single wing blocking, flipped a wobbly aerial, and end Fran Desmond cradled the ball for a touchdown. Final score, Georgetown 13, Tulsa 7.

WICHITA

An offside penalty cost the Hurricane its first concrete chance at a win in the dragging 1948 football season. On his try for a point after touchdown on the second Wichita score, Art Hodges of the Wheatshockers booted wide of the mark. But a costly Hurricane lineman out-of-line gave the Kansans another chance and Hodges knotted the score at 14-14 with an unerring shot. The Hurricane pushed the Shockers all over the field, on the ground and in the air, but whenever a touchdown loomed imminent a penalty stifled the Tulsa drive. All told the Hurricane drew 101 yards in fines for grid misdemeanors while the Shockers rated a loss of 25 yards. The Finks-to-Ford airlift worked like the real McCoy, hitting for 19 completions out of 29 tries for 244 yards with Ford hauling in eight for one score and 111 yards. Both men moved up to top-ranking spots among the nation's passing combinations.

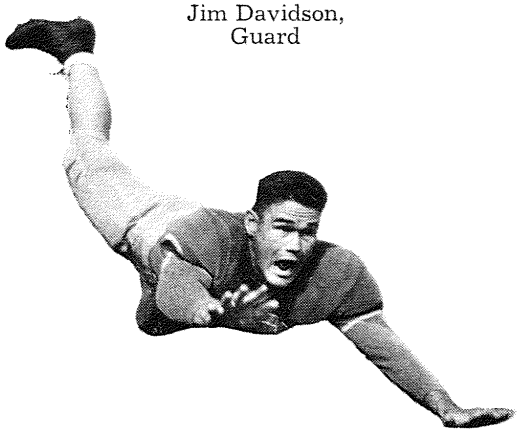

Whitman carries against "aerial-minded" Nevada.

NEVADA

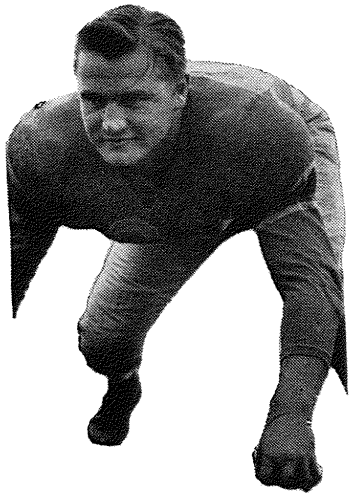

In a Saturday afternoon spectacle that featured National Guard fighters in formation and a thousand high school bandsmen en masse on the field, fabulous Stan Heath and the Nevada wonder Wolfpack ran wild for a 65-14 decision against Tulsa. It was the largest score compiled against the Hurricane since 1917. Together, Heath and Finks set a new national record in passes attempted and passes completed, but it was lambs to the slaughter as the well-drilled Wolfpack cut the Tulsa defenses to ribbons. The Hurricane tried, but it couldn't get behind the rockhard screen of blockers the Wolfpack threw around Heath. For the first time two Negroes participated in a mixed sporting event at Skelly Stadium.

OKLA. A & M

Having withdrawn from the Delta Bowl the Hurricane went to work with a vengeance to meet with the traditional rival, Oklahoma A & M. Before 20,000 fans on a bright Fall day, the Cowpoke power proved to be too much for the Hurricane to contain. Finks boosted his national standing with 15 hits out of 30 passes, but couldn't connect near the goal line where the Aggies stood firm. Despite the one-sided score, first shut-out for the Tulsans, the ball game was a hard-fought narrow contest. But every time the scent of pay-dirt hit Aggie noses, they were impossible to stop until the lights changed on the scoreboard. Final, Aggies 19, T.U. 0.

Quarterback

SOUTH CAROLINA

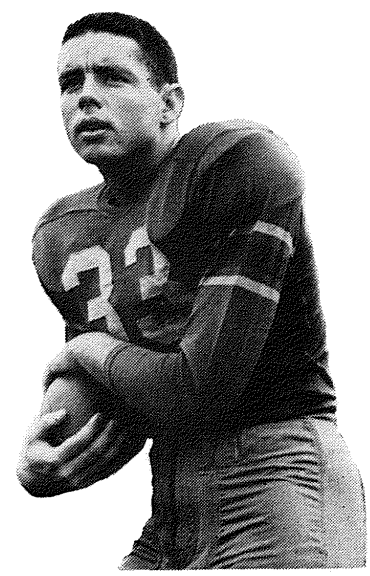

According to pre-game dope, the Finks-to-Ford airlift was due for an easy afternoon against a South Carolina backfield that couldn't bat down the ball. As usual, pre-game information was as handy as a political poll. The Gamecocks threw the clamps on the sizzling Hurricane aerial attack and unveiled a shifty set of scatbacks headed by Steve Wadiak and Bishop Strickland who turned Tulsa ends like greyhounds in a revolving door. The Carolinians struck earlier, set up a substantial lead and coasted for the rest of the day. Although the Hurricane strove mightily, they just couldn't start rolling. Time after time, a Tulsa ball-carrier would streak for the clear, but losing his screen of blockers would be dumped by the aggressive Southerners. Finks hit four out of eleven, pitched a short touchdown toss to Yearling end, Ken Click and that was all. South Carolina 27, Tulsa 7.

Below, left to right: Forrest McLane, End; Ben Day, End; Leonard Makowski, Quarterback; Denver Grigsby, Halfback.

ARKANSAS

With All-American Clyde Scott, and Leon "Muscles" Campbell in the backfield, the Arkansas Razorbacks figured to be plenty rough, and they were. Before the afternoon was over, the Hurricane had dropped the eighth ball game, 55-18. Tulsa was its own worst enemy in the Little Rock set-to. Two Arkansas touchdowns were registered on pass interceptions and three were the direct result of T.U. fumbles. Finks turned in a sensational performance before he was led dazed from the ball game, completing 12 passes out of 14 attempts for 125 yards and one TD. Paul Barry and S. J. Whitman contributed the other scores and most of the ground-gaining in the bruising struggle that added to the Hurricane injury list.

DETROIT

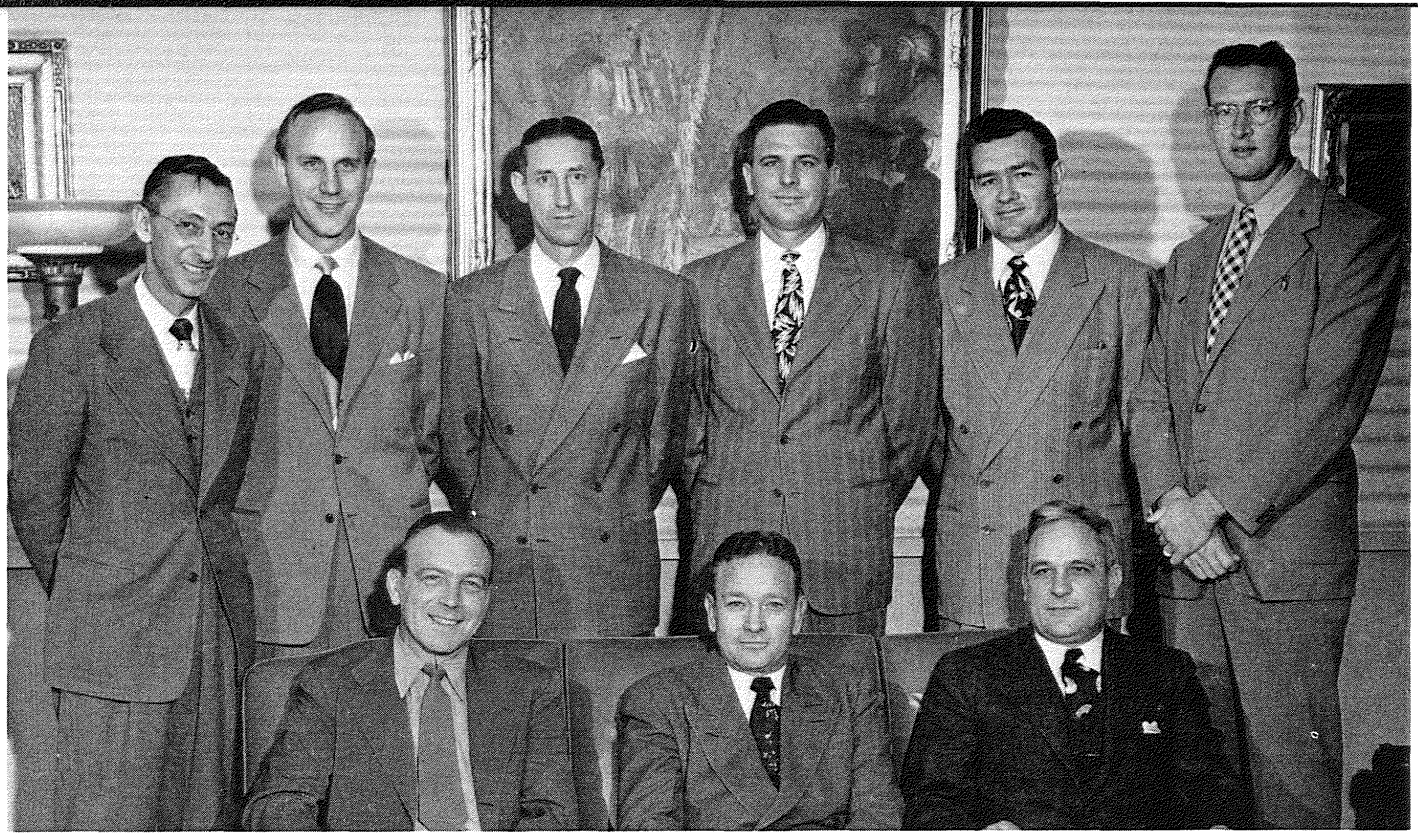

With more water on Skelly Stadium than in a bootleg bottle, the vaunted Tulsa passing attack was torpedoed in mid-air. Detroit ranked 10th in the nation on rushing, and the first quarter looked like the Titans would have it all their way as twin terrors, Mike Kaysserian and Jack Kurkowski churned the turf to build a 26-7 lead by half-time. But a tremendous offensive surge by the Hurricane in the second period, with Finks hitting Dub Graves for a score and Barry plowing over for another, narrowed the margin. Trapped back near their goal line, the Titans took a safety and a kick-off from the 20 yard line. When the gun sounded, the roaring Hurricane offense had shoved back to within 30 yards of scoring territory. Final, 26-22. The T.U. grid machine boasted a winning offense, but no defense.

Finks To —

If it were not for the continually rising bright young stars of football which the 1949 season is again expected to turn up for the Golden Hurricane, the glow around Skelly Stadium, come September, would be considerably dimmed by 1948 losses.

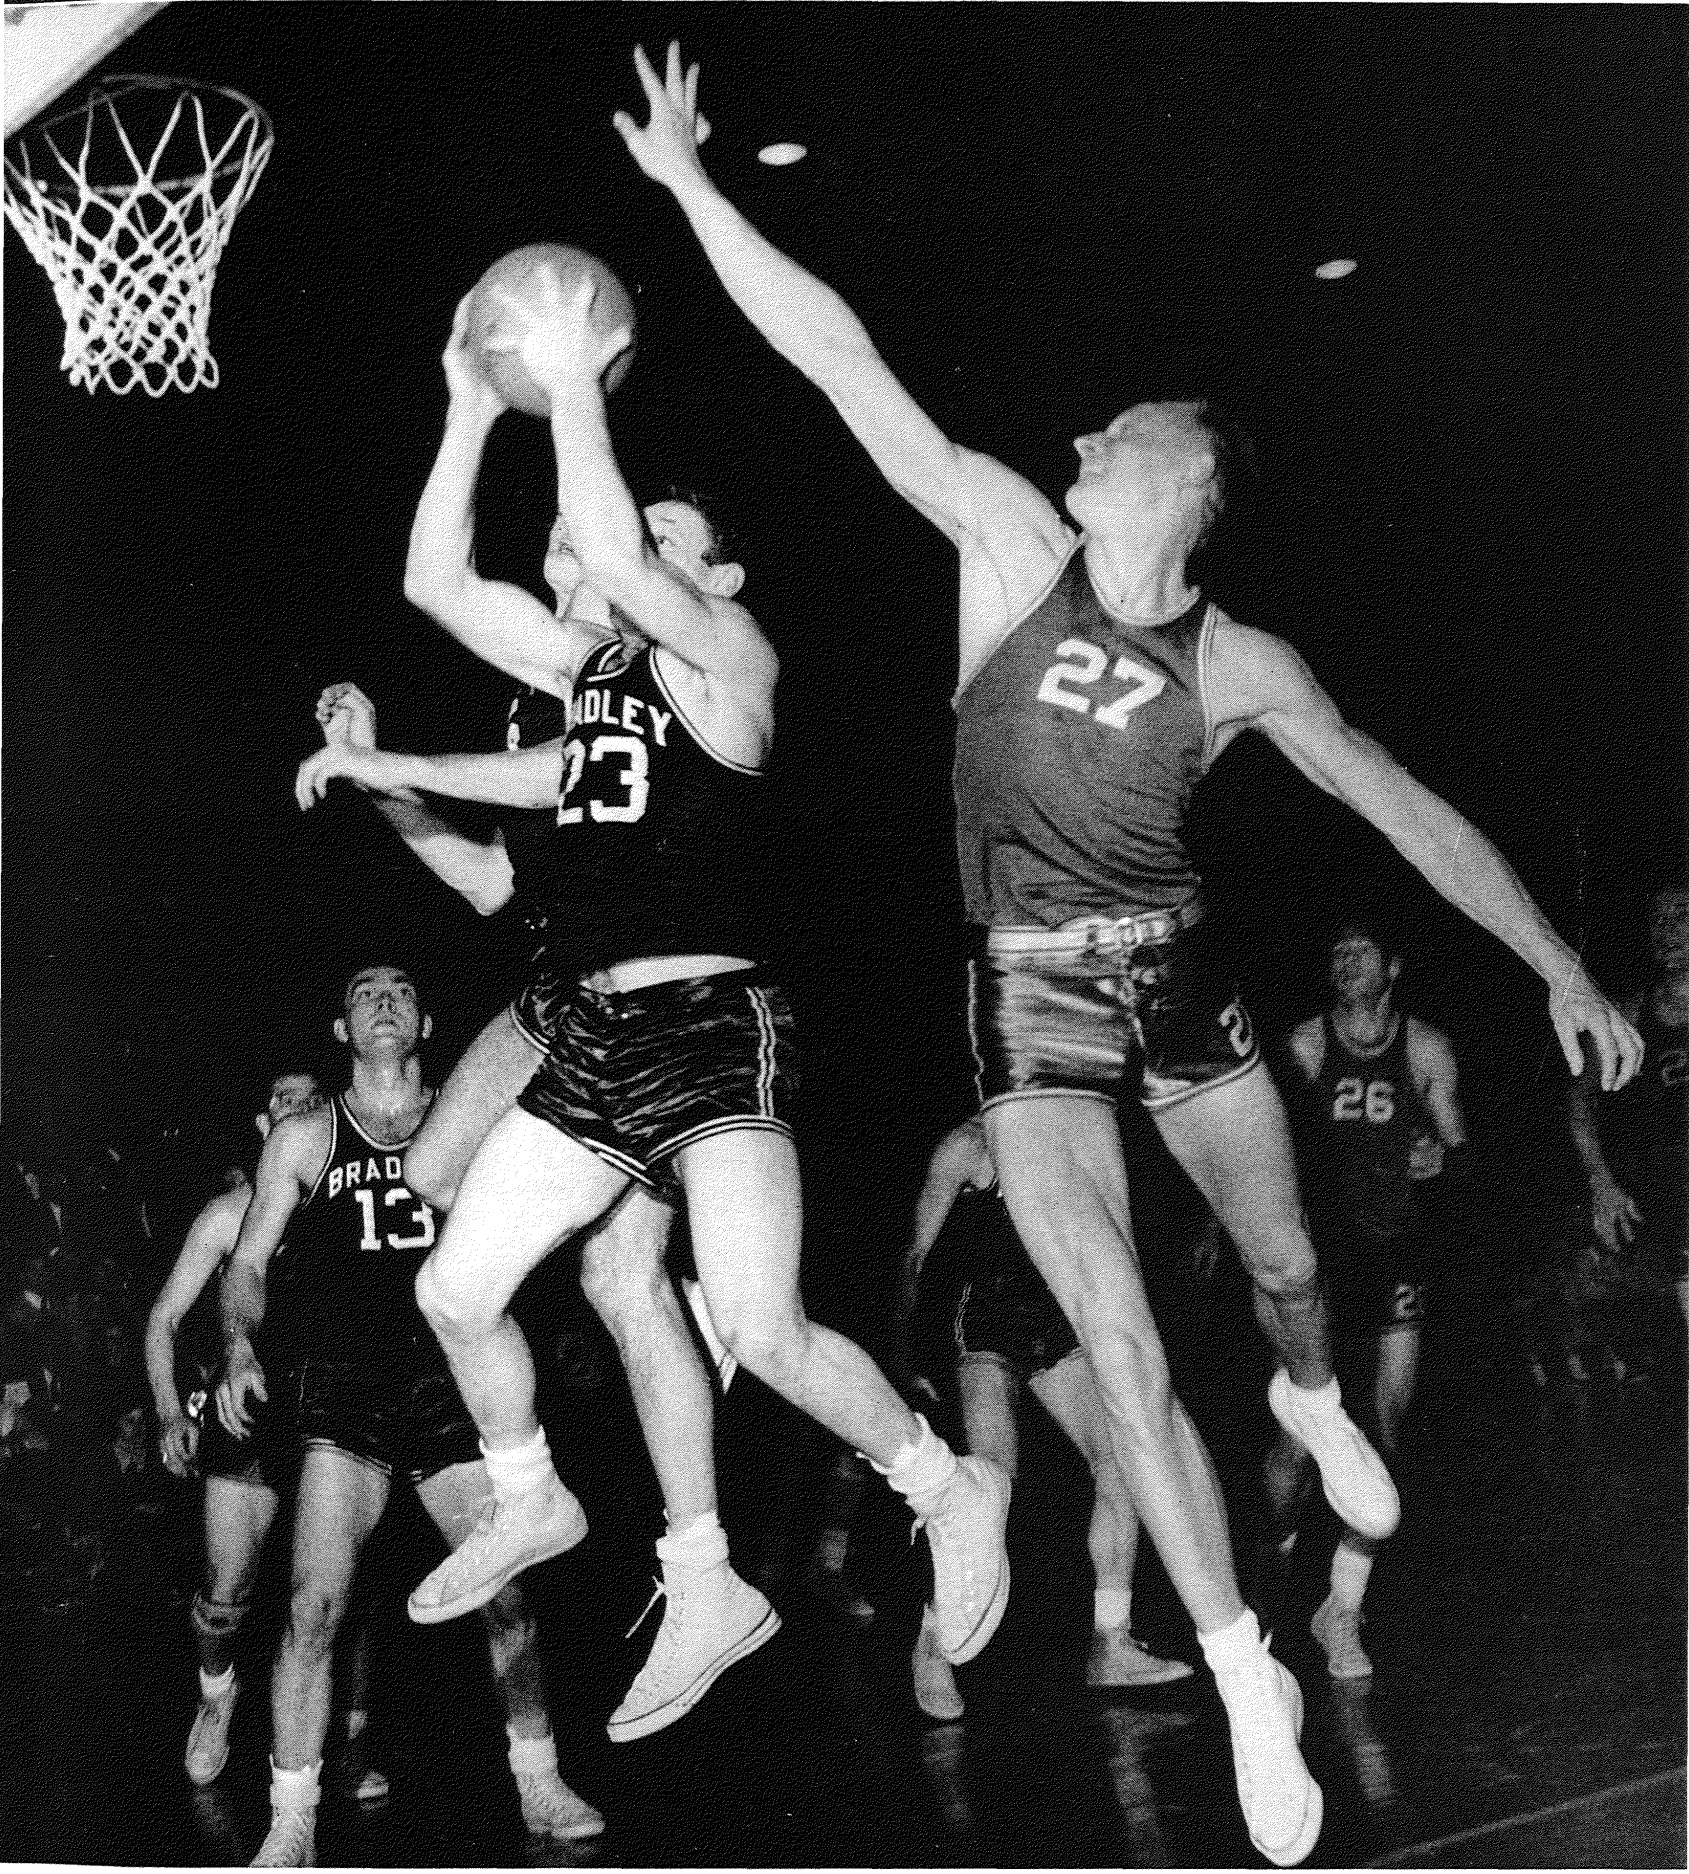

The most noticeable loss from last year's line-up will be the incomparable "Finks to Ford" combination which was largely responsible for the Hurricane's individual player rating of near the top nationally.

Obscured only by the flamboyant aerial wizardry of Nevada's Stan Heath, the Tulsa gridders steadily marched to nation-wide recognition. By the end of the season Jim Finks, who quarterbacked the Hurricane from beginning to end, held down the number two spot in the country in passing offense. Jimmy Ford, pint-sized halfback from Fort Worth, finished his football career only three places behind the nation's leading pass catcher. For a majority of the season however, he seldom dropped below second place.

Ford

Although the Hurricane dropped games galore last season, Saturday afternoon home games at Skelly were never a complete disappointment to TU fans, thanks to the aerial escapades of this twosome. And, thanks to the defensive screen thrown up by fellow players for "Flingin' " Jim, the opposition's determined program to stop the rare combination never quite succeeded.

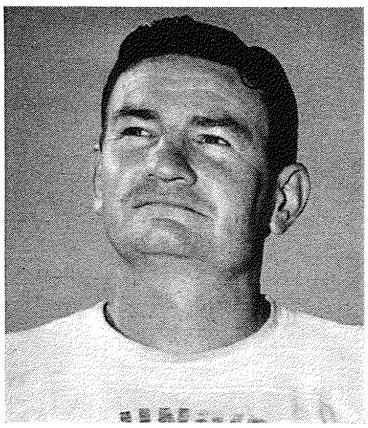

"Gorgeous" George Briggs, "darkhorse" in basketball at TU this year, goes up, intent on stopping a Bradley U. scoring attempt at the Armory.

1949 HURRICANE CAGERS

For KWGS listeners the court play-by-play by Don Norton

John Garrison
Head Basketball Coach

The University of Tulsa Golden Hurricane basketball team, while exceeded in experience and in that all-important item, height, by most of the quintets met during the season, was never headed on fight and heart throughout the year.

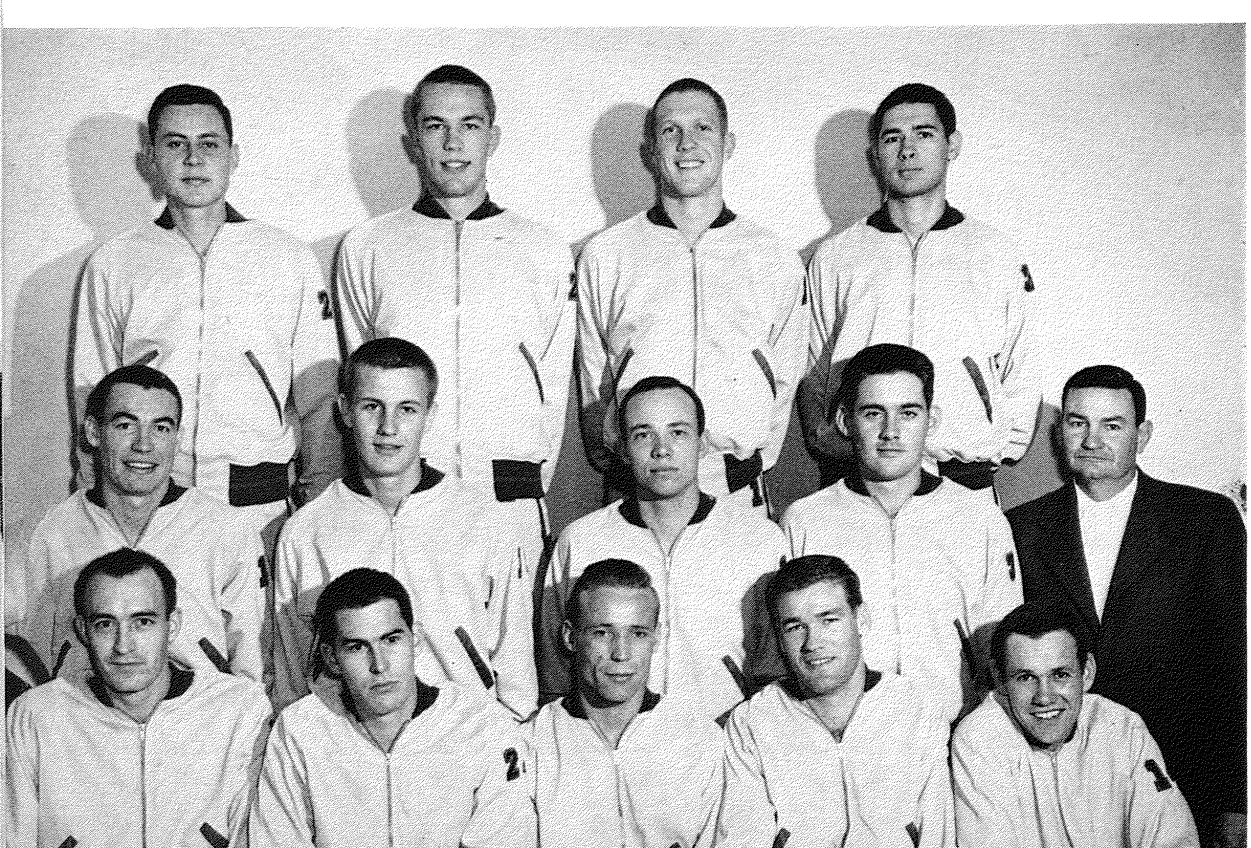

Coach John Garrison was compelled to lead his quintet against four of the seven top teams in the country, according to a national press association poll's ranking. These were: Kentucky, Oklahoma A & M, St. Louis, and Bradley. The last three named are members of the Missouri Valley conference, necessitating two games against each.

The Hurricane captured its first and last games of the season, but in between the hard-luck Hurricagers could manage for only two triumphs, both over Phillips University. The Tulsans opened with a victory over Drury College of Springfield, Mo., and closed with a surprise, well-earned upset conquest of the Creighton Bluejays of Omaha, Neb.

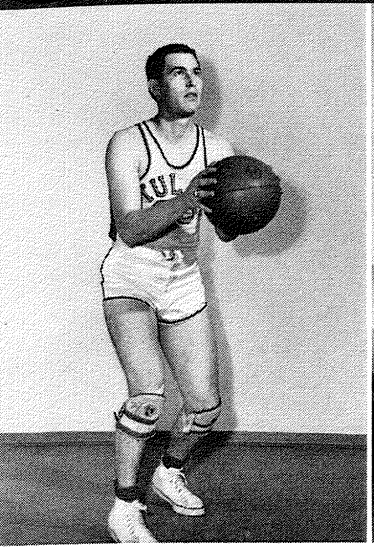

Highlight of the season was perhaps the bitterly-contested return game with St. Louis University in St. Louis. The Billikens won, 77-58, but the Hurricane seized the lead four times in the spirited contest, and was only four points behind late in the last half, before a Bill spurt produced the final margin.

The individual standout of the season was probably hustling guard Neil Ridley, Columbus, Kan., boy, who scored a total of 253 points for the season of 24 games. Never before in Hurricane history has one player scored above 200 points in a single season, according to Athletic Director W. E. Morris, Jr. Ridley was named to the All-Missouri Valley third team at the close of the season.

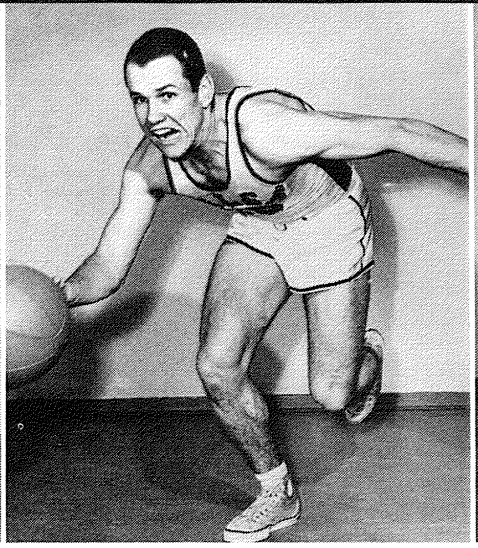

Some capable work was turned in by the rest of the squad, too. Graduating seniors Jimmy Finks and Schley Babin were among these. Finks, who set the all-time single game individual scoring record two years ago with a 28 point outburst against highly-regarded Drake, settled down after participating in the East-West Shrine Bowl football game in San Francisco to contribute a steady barrage of baskets. year, hitting a high point in the Oklahoma Baptist game here with 17 markers.

The Hurricane's cage future appears bright, with the anticipated return of most of this year's team next season, on top of the availability of the strongest freshman team in TU history.

John Garrison, retiring TU head basketball coach, this season assembled a powerful first-year aggregation that managed for a record of five victories and two losses before six of the players became ineligible for the second semester. The record then sagged to seven losses against six wins overall, against rugged competition from junior college, freshman, and B squad teams. The only losses of the first semester were to the Oklahoma A & M freshmen, and to the Oklahoma Baptist B squad.

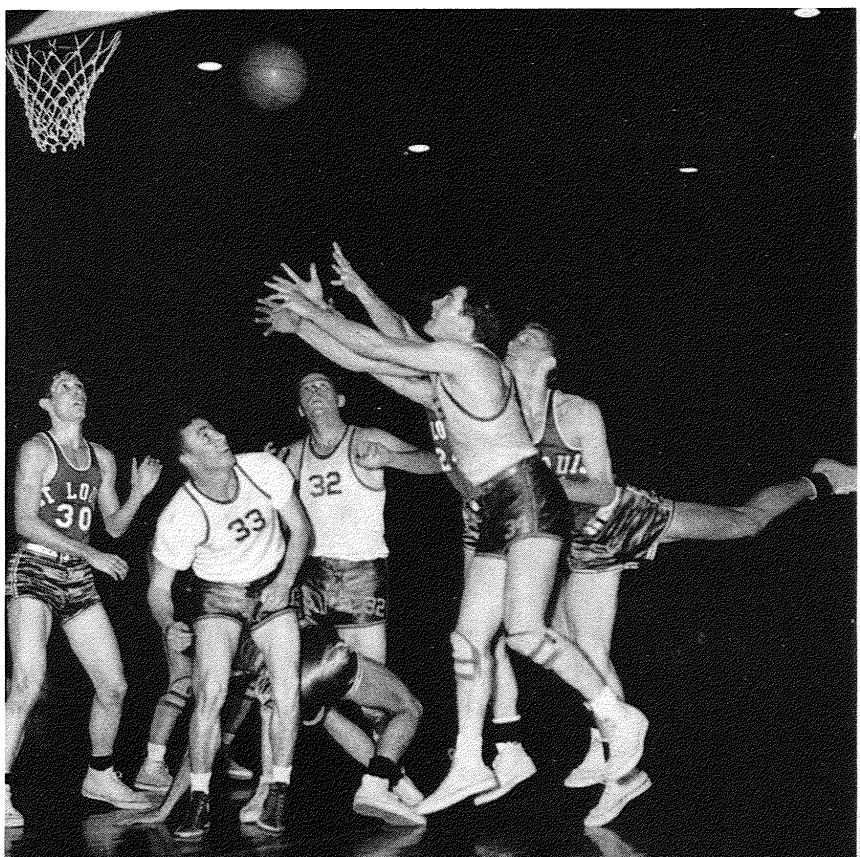

In preparation for next year, spring basketball practice was held at TU for the first time in history during April. For the first time in history also, the University employed a full-time basketball coach to lead the Golden Hurricane next year. He is Clarence V. Iba, all-time AAU great, and brother of Oklahoma A & M mentor Henry Iba. Iba brings a highly successful high school and junior college coaching record to Tulsa.

BASEBALL

The University of Tulsa fielded its first baseball team since 1939 and it was a pretty good squad, too.

At first it looked like an impossible task. The go-ahead signal on assembling a diamond aggregation wasn't flashed until the middle of February. There was no place to play and it didn't look like a suitable location could be found on a campus that was rapidly becoming too small.

The belated start made it extremely difficult to schedule games with other schools who had their slates made out months in advance. There were uniforms to be ordered along with all of the other paraphernalia that a baseball team needs. And more important nobody knew whether or not there were nine men in school who could play baseball.

Ready or not the call for players was issued and the response was gratifying. The athletes turned out and Coach N. A. Keithley started to whip them into shape.

Meanwhile Athletic Director W. E. Morris, Jr. sweated out a schedule. Somehow the field was built; the equipment arrived; the schedule was completed. The rest was up to the players.

They didn't fail either as they proved by racking up eight wins in 13 games against the best competition that could be found in this part of the country.

The hopeful Tulsans started auspiciously enough with a 14-5 victory over Oklahoma Baptist University. However, they came a cropper against our bitter rivals from Stillwater and dropped two straight to the Aggies. The sting of defeat was lessened by the fact that A&M went to the finals of the N.C.A.A. baseball tournament at the end of the season, indicating the Pokes had one of the best teams in the country.

Left Fielder Jake Halter, in his first and last baseball season at TU, drives a hit into center field at Texas League Park in a nite game with Arkansas. The Razorbacks took the game, 6-4, to break a four game winning streak for the Hurricane. But the first post-war season was good with a record of eight wins in 13 games.

Bouncing back in good shape T.U. won its next four games before dropping a 6-4 decision to Arkansas at Texas League Park in a preliminary game to a regularly scheduled Texas League contest.

A two-game road trip proved disastrous as the Hurricane lost high-scoring games to Southwestern at Winfield, Kans., and Wichita University.

The season, however, wound up on an optimistic note as the red, blue and gold won their last three contests from Northeastern State, Wichita and Phillips University.

Carrying the load for the team all year was the midget infield of Neil Ridley, First Baseman, Second Baseman Pete Annex, Shortstop Kirk Newman, and the rifle-armed J. R. Boone at third.

Tall, slender Arnold Brown led the team behind the plate and in left field Jake Halter contributed many timely blows when he stepped to the plate.

Bill Robinson, with a 3-2 record, was ace of the pitching staff. Annex was the team's leading hitter with a .389 average. He just nosed out Brown however, who compiled a respectable .388 mark. Ridley was the third ranking hitter with .357 and led the slugging Hurricane in extra base blows, picking up three doubles, a triple and two homeruns.

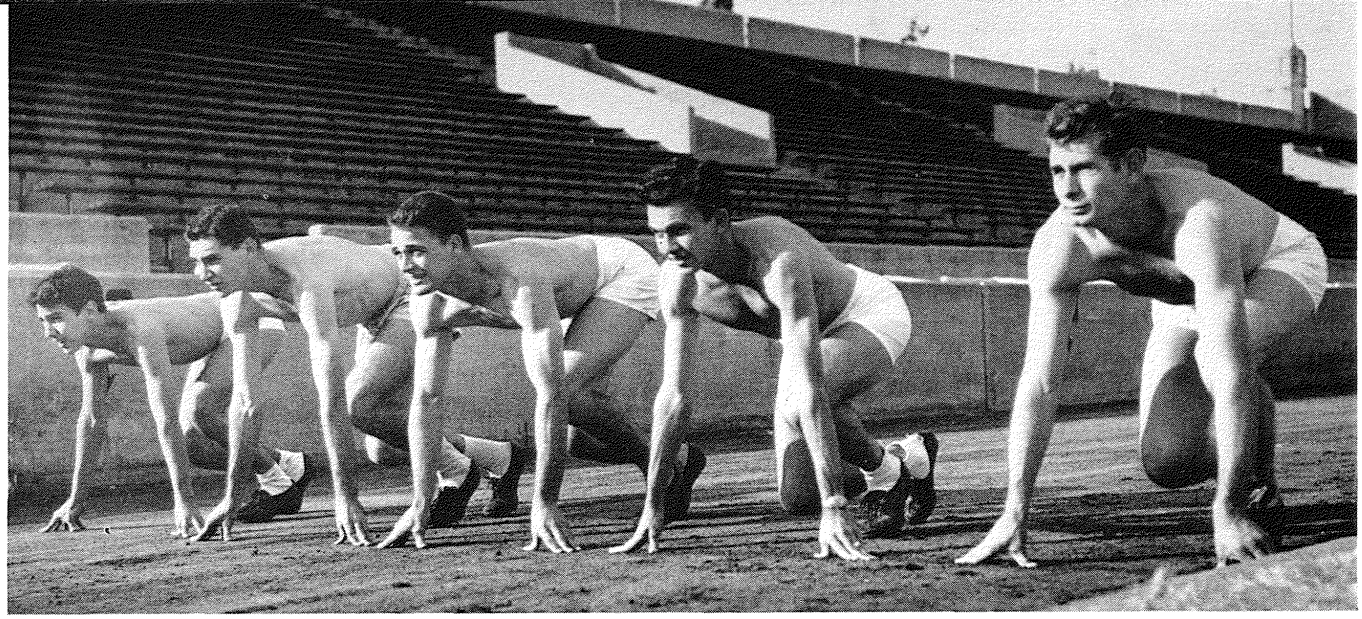

At the end of a satisfying first season Coach Keithley resigned to go into business. Charlie Spilman, center on the great 1942 Sugar Bowl football team, was appointed to take his place.

TRACK

Although track is still in the formative stage at T.U., the annual Tulsa Relay Carnival has done much to stimulate interest in the high schools. This year the number of contestants matched the previous high of 450, which indicates that a good job of rushing has been done toward the building of future track teams.

With Bob Rakestraw and Truman (Rip) Sewell as a nucleus this Spring's tracksters under Coach Paul Newell encountered the top notch competition of the Southwest with an inexperienced squad. As the Kendallabrum goes to press, the thinclads are pointing to the Missouri Valley meet with all eyes turned to bringing some of the records to Tulsa.

SWIMMING

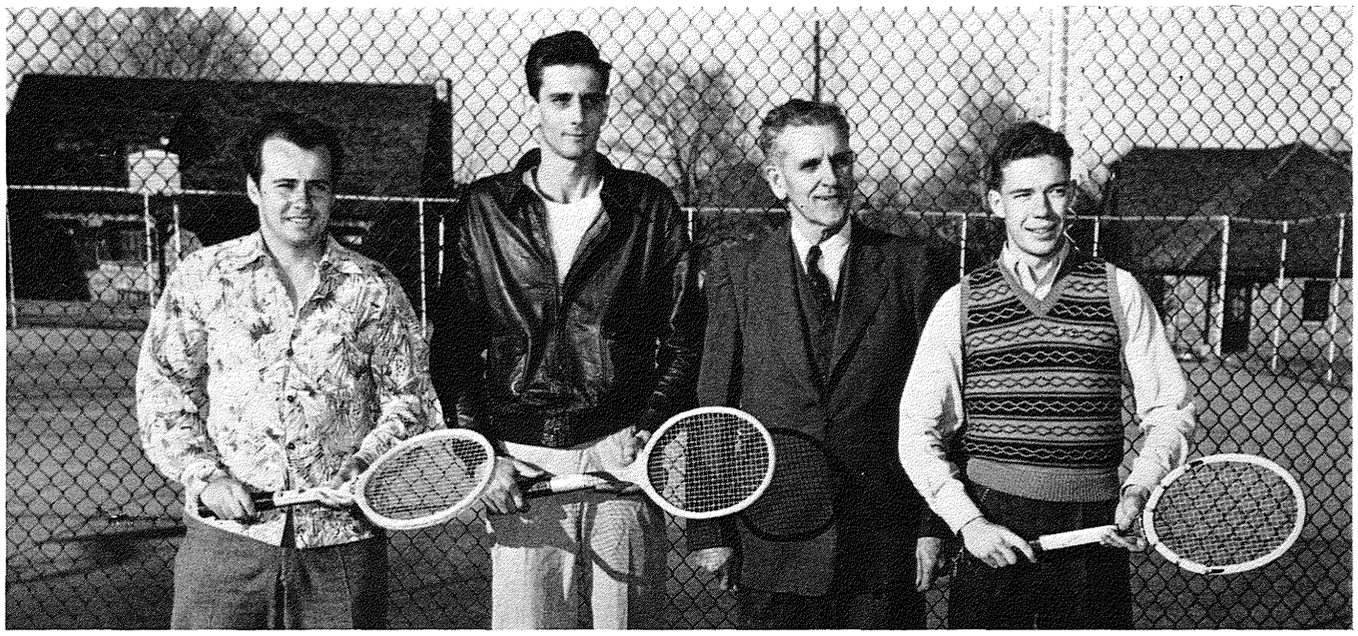

The first University swimming team since 1945 made its post-war debut in St. Louis and captured fourth place in the Valley. Plagued by ineligibilities and only a three week conditioning period, Coach Holmer's aquators had to limit their entries to the free-style events. Bill Dost did most of Tulsa point-grabbing in placing third in the 50 yd. and fourth in the 100 yd. free-style swims.

Next year's plans are not completed but Coach Holmer is hoping to start practice in September. Several duel matches will be arranged before undergoing Valley competition.

TENNIS

Since the days when the doubles team of Ingraham and Bumgarner won the state championship, the University of Tulsa tennis team has undergone diverse fortunes; from the stellar showing of 1940 to that afternoon in 1948 when M. C. Hooper and Bob Patterson were able to annex both the singles and doubles titles of the Missouri Valley. According to Athletic Director W. E. (Ed) Morris, the 1948 tennis squad was ". . . probably the greatest in the history of TU . . ." It was certainly one of the top teams in the nation. Through the sturdy play of the 1947 ace, Southpaw Jack Keeling, the slashing overhead attack of Burford Monett, and aided by newcomers Roy Traband and Louis Lundquist, the Hurricane players were able to surge through ten opponents without defeat. Jeff Abbey and Lyle Fogle held down the No. 5 and 6 place berths on the squad. The team opened with a 5-1 win over Arkansas and one week later taking every match in straight sets, the Hurricane coasted to a 6-0 victory over Oklahoma City University. The climax to a victorious season came on May 7, when Tulsa romped to a 5-1 decision over Baylor, perennial great of the Southwestern Conference. This year's team, although not great, gave a good account of itself with wins in a majority of its matches. With an eye to the future, Rick Green—the California "cut artist"—will be eligible in 1950. Rick is enrolled as a freshman at TU and has already demonstrated his superior court wizardry.

GOLF

Team Captain

Last year's golf aggregation didn't fare so well in the duel matches—but was able to salvage second place in the Missouri Valley meet at Omaha.

Tulsa's best golf of the season was played at the Lawrence Country Club on May 1. This windy afternoon saw the Hurricane linksmen holding the hard-hitting Kansans from Mt. Oread to a 12-6 score.

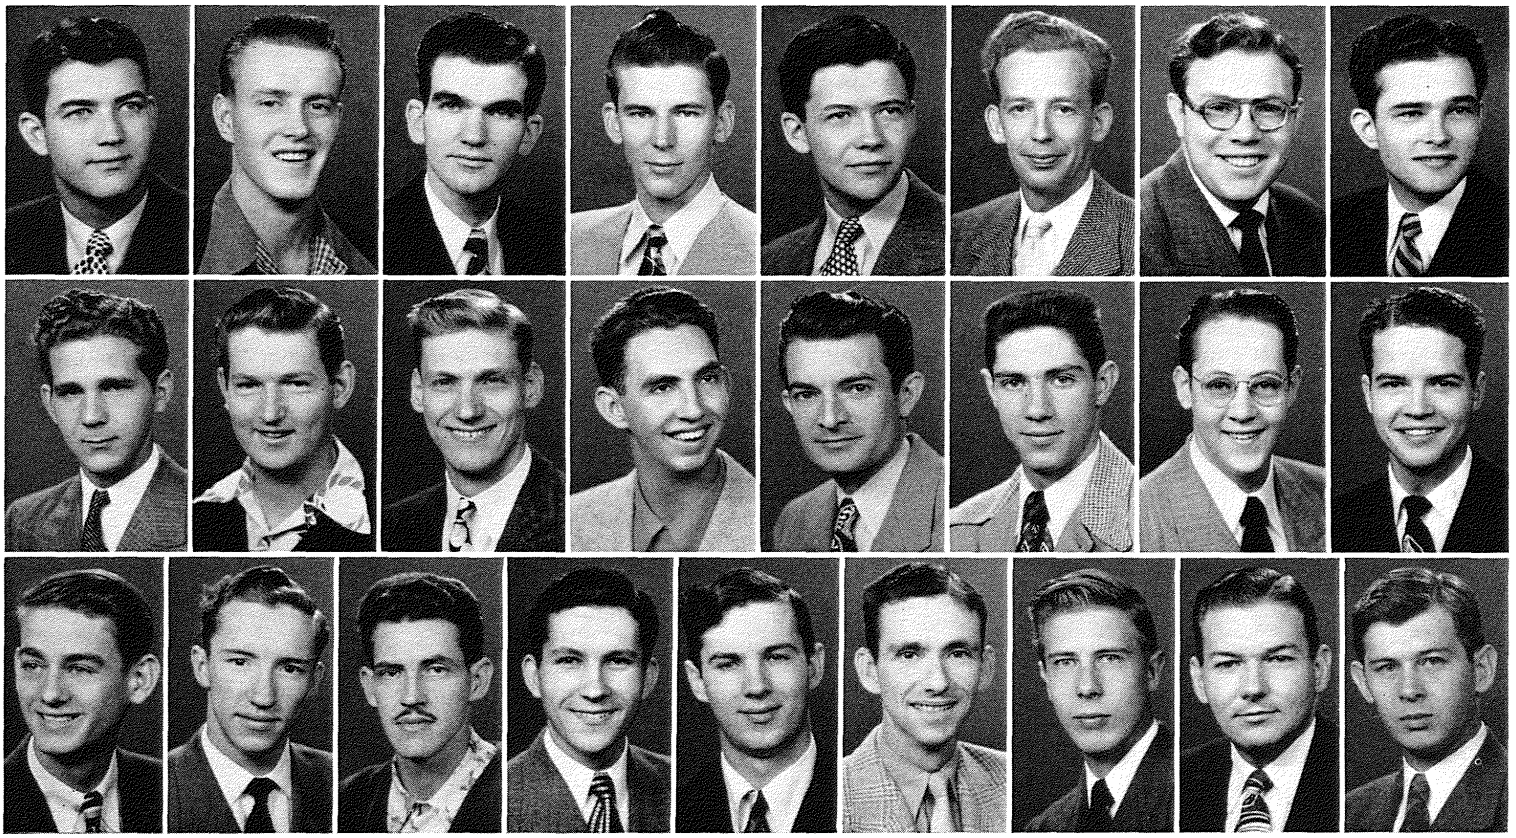

With 12 matches scheduled, this year's edition is pointing towards the conference meet at Stillwater.

This is not the first year that the University of Tulsa has been concerned with expanding the athletic system. Back in 1930 the University faced a similar problem. Spring sports were first established that year. Two tennis courts were built and on the east side of the campus—where the present Veteran Housing is located—a golf course was installed.

Thanks for this beginning goes to Col. J. B. Miller, who was instrumental in securing the necessary construction materials from Tulsa companies to inaugurate this program.

KAPPA KAPPA PSI

To foster a closer relationship between college bands, to encourage a higher average of attainment by the performance of good music, and to concentrate student activity of worthwhile musical projects, have been the purposes of Kappa Kappa Psi.

Founded at A. and M. college 30 years ago, Kappa Kappa Psi has grown until it is today on a majority of large college campuses.

Tau Upsilon Beta, organized as a local band fraternity on the TU campus in 1938, drew up a constitution, which was approved by The University, and submitted a petition to Kappa Kappa Psi. One month after organizing, the TU fraternity became a part of the national group. Five band members from Oklahoma University installed the new members and the chapter was given the name Alpha Pi.

Traditionally, members of Kappa Kappa Psi elect their sweetheart, who is TU Band Queen. This fall, election resulted in the crowning of Barbara Gates, Kappa Kappa Gamma.

Attendants to Queen Barbara were: Norma Briggs, Chi Omega; Carolyn Renner, Delta Delta Delta; Cleveanne McGhee, Delta Gamma; Glenna Robertson, Phi Mu; Norma Thieman, Kappa Delta, and Glennadean Morgan, Independent Women.

A sterling silver bracelet was given to Barbara, on which were the names of all previous band queens.

New initiates of the band fraternity were honored in February with a dinner dance given by the members. Alan Rosemann was presented with an award, designating him as the model pledge of the year.

Officers for 1948 included Kenneth Warren, president; Eddie Horn, vice president; Loyd Oler, treasurer, and Bill Watkinson, secretary.

Delta Theta Phi, law fraternity, was founded on September 26, 1913, after representatives of Delta Phi Delta, Alpha Kappa Phi and Theta Lambda Phi met together and resolved themselves into one organization.

The Downtown Division group, first established as the Gavin Senate, in honor of T. Austin Gavin, was founded at the Tulsa Law School in 1937. There are sixty-one of these student senates throughout the country affiliated with the national chapter.

Its purpose is to unite fraternally congenial students of law, to lead them and their fellow classmates to higher scholarship and legal learning, to surround them with an environment such that the traditions of the law and profession may descend upon them, to promote justice and to inspire respect for noble qualities of manhood.

To be a member of Delta Theta Phi, one must be enrolled as an undergraduate or post graduate in the college of law, and be a member of no other legal fraternity.

Delta Theta Phi's are proud of their alums, some of whom are the late Calvin Coolidge, Clinton B. Anderson, Senator John W. Bricker and Clark Shaughnessy.

Lantern, honorary society for sophomore women, initiated 24 co-eds last September to begin its 21st year on the TU campus. As always, each girl had completed from 30 to 53 college hours with a "B" average.

After their initiation, new Lantern members were honored by their "big sister" organization, Senior Staff, at a dinner; and throughout the year, the sophomores assisted the seniors in their activities.

As their own principal project for the year, Lantern members served as campus guides and hostesses to high school seniors taking the scholarship examinations in the spring, and worked to extend hospitality to students entering TU.

During this year, as always, the purpose of the group has been "to recognize and encourage high scholastic achievements of freshmen women and to further the development of character, leadership, and service among underclassmen."

Officers, selected on the basis of the highest grade average, were Norma Lou Lawrence, president, and Pauline Quirk, secretary. Sponsor of Lantern is Miss Mary Clay Williams.

The pledging of five women and two men students started the fifth year off for Mu Tau Phi, honorary medical technology fraternity.

The new members of course fulfilled the eligibility requirements for Mu Tau Phi; enrollment in medical technology, sophomore standing, an all-over "C" grade average, and a 2.5 average in zoological fields.

With Dean H. D. Chase of the zoology department as sponsor, the group has continued its building of a technical reference library, and now has its own fraternity pins.

Besides semi-monthly campus meetings, Mu Tau Phi also held its annual meet with the Downtown Society of Registered Medical Technologists.

The fraternity continued this year toward its goal of bringing all available information and study material to the men and women interested in medical technology and related medical fields.

This year, as in every year since its TU installation in 1927, Alpha Chi chapter of Phi Mu Alpha has worked toward the national honorary music fraternity's goal of "advancing the cause of music in America and giving recognition to outstanding worth in musical activity."

One highlight of the fraternity year was the national convention held in Chicago in December. Representing TU were Bob Williams and Charles Dickerson, and of course Dean Albert Lukken, who is past national president of Phi Mu Alpha. The Dean is one of several TU charter members who are now on the fine arts faculty and still active in the group's doings.

The Scholarship Concert Series, Phi Mu Alpha's annual project, provides four years' tuition for a worthy Tulsa music student. The fraternity also exerts its efforts to bring nationally noted musicians to the music patrons of Tulsa. Regular affairs are the concerts given within the group by its members.

Ask what is the oldest and highest ranking scholarship fraternity at the University of Tulsa and your answer would be Phi Gamma Kappa. Organized in the spring of 1920, it upholds the purpose of fostering and promoting scholarship. Requirements for student membership include two years' residence at the University of Tulsa and a place among the upper ten per cent of the graduating class, with a grade point average of 3.25 for 100 hours of work, or an average of 3.5 for 87 hours. Faculty members who are initiates of Phi Beta Kappa or Sigma Xi are also eligible for Phi Gamma Kappa membership.

An important activity of the fraternity each year is to sponsor lectures by outstanding scholars from the University of Tulsa's own faculty or from other universities. Other functions include the semi-yearly initiations. At the spring induction of new members it is the custom of the organization to present a speaker of interest in matters of scholarship. This spring Dr. L. S. McLeod, dean of the graduate division, spoke on the characteristics of the scholar.

Under the able leadership of L. F. Zimmerman and his fellow officers, Phi Gamma Kappa honorary fraternity carried out another very successful year.

When the first presentation of "The Big Wheel Meal," satirical review of campus cavortings and characters, hit TU in April, 1948, it marked a new meaning and future for Pi Delta Epsilon.

When the second edition of the Gridiron appeared April 1, 1949, it added emphasis to this meaning. And what the organization's new role may have missed in pure journalistic advancement it made up for in the number of polished satirists.

The oldest national honorary journalism fraternity, with a beginning in 1909, Pi Delta Epsilon came to the University in 1941. Fostering of a high quality of undergraduate journalism through rewards for work on student publication and recognition for meritorious service is the aim of the entire organization.

The steady growth of the TU journalism department has provided a high quality of members for the fraternity.

Initiations for the year totalled twelve men and women, emphasizing the continuing growth of the organization, which boosted the active membership to over twenty-five.

Heading PDE during the fall semester of 1948-49 term was John Ferguson, who was succeeded by Orval Bennett. Other officers were: Pat Shaffer Tripp, v-president, Harriette McKinstry, secretary, and Paul Berry, treasurer.

Oklahoma Delta chapter of Pi Gamma Mu was formed at the University of Tulsa in 1929. The national organization grew out of a meeting of students who were interested in economics at Southwestern College in April, 1924. Seventeen colleges established charter chapters, and soon after the organization was incorporated as a non-profit corporation under the State of Colorado laws.

Pi Gamma Mu has undertaken the task of encouraging the study of the social sciences by stimulating such interests among graduate and undergraduate students and faculty members in colleges and universities throughout the world. Its ideal is free discussion of matters pertaining to social science and social service and is based on the assumption that when people know the truth they shall act justly.

During 1948, twenty-four new members were initiated. To be a member a student must maintain a three-point or "B" average in his scholastic record and have twenty semester hours of work in the social sciences. Traditionally, Pi Gamma Mu selects each year a citizen of Tulsa for outstanding service to the community for honorary membership in the organization. In the spring of each year an annual dinner is held, at which initiates are recognized and the Scholarship Medal is awarded to the outstanding senior in social science.

The official journal of Pi Gamma Mu is Social Science, which provides a medium for disseminating news of the national and chapter activities in the country.

Phi Eta Sigma, a national honor society for freshmen men, came to the University of Tulsa campus in May, 1948, through the tireless effort of Clyde E. Blocker, at that time the dean of men.

Briefly stated, the purpose of Phi Eta Sigma is to encourage and reward freshmen scholarship among men students.

Eligibility for membership is based solely on scholarship. All freshmen men who earn a scholastic average equivalent to or better than a 3.5 in their first semester in college are elected. Membership is also extended for achieving the same minimum average (3.5) on the basis of an entire first year's work.

The activities of the chapter throughout its first year of existence have not been extensive but they have been effective. Following the initiation, an installation banquet was held honoring the initiates and their parents. Distribution of the "Hints on How to Study" pamphlets was handled by members of Phi Eta Sigma at the freshmen orientation program. This will continue to be a yearly service. It is the hope of the newly organized Tulsa chapter that by "promoting a higher standard of learning and by encouraging high scholastic attainments among the freshmen men," they may become a worthwhile part of University of Tulsa.

Psi Chi, national honorary psychology society, was installed at the University of Tulsa, January 11, 1946. This national psychological society was formed in 1929, at a meeting of the American Psychological Association at Yale University, when a national constitution was adopted and a definite structure planned.

Psi Chi's aims are to advance the interests of the science of psychology and to encourage, stimulate, and maintain scholarship of the individual members in all academic fields.

Along with the regular business meetings of the chapter, programs have been arranged that enrich and add practical knowledge to the regular academic study of psychology.

Requirements for active membership in the organization are twelve or more hours in the field of psychology with a "B" grade average or better, a minimum 2.6 grade average in all other subjects, and psychology as an area of concentration.

In keeping with the aims of the society, a fund was set up to aid students who wish to perform experimental research. A mimeograph machine was also purchased and donated to the school for the use of any student in the department.

Traditional tapping ceremonies took place in April 30, and announced to the campus the new members of Senior Staff, honorary organization for senior women. The girls who are the members for 1949 were chosen on the basic qualifications of scholarship, leadership, character, service and participation in campus activities. Senior Staff is patterned closely after Mortar Board and membership in that national organization is one of the goals of the TU group.

In September, Senior Staffers acted as hostesses at the Student Mixer. In October the group sponsored a dinner for new members of Lantern, sophomore women's honorary scholastic society and sister organization of Senior Staff.

The leadership conference, sponsored each year by Senior Staff, was held this spring. The day-long conference was for the benefit of campus leaders from various organizations and round table discussions aided the program of improved leadership techniques.

Officers elected automatically by virtue of highest three-year grade averages were Mary Louise Bates, President, and Harriette McKinstry, Secretary-Treasurer. Also reserved for the late spring was the selection of Senior Staff members for 1950 from the Junior Class.

Sigma Alpha Iota, national music fraternity for women, was founded on June 12, 1903, at Ann Arbor, Michigan.

This organization sets forth as its ideals the recognition of outstanding musicianship and the encouragement of worthwhile musical activities.

Sigma Gamma Chapter, sponsored by Dean and Mrs. Albert Lukken was installed on the University of Tulsa campus April 23, 1924. A large alumnae chapter and patronesses group do much toward making the organization prominent in the musical circles of Tulsa.

At the beginning of the year a reception was given by the organization for all Fine Arts students. Early in October rushing began with a "Back To School" dinner. Mary Sue Veale and Lorraine Byman became new members.

On December 5th, the 17th Annual Christmas Vespers was presented under the direction of Mrs. George O. Bowen.

Sigma Gamma was particularly honored this year by a visit from the national editor of Sigma Alpha Iota, Mrs. Edna Hutton, who is in charge of "Pan Pipes," the fraternity magazine.

Rounding out the year's activities were more pledging ceremonies and installation of officers for the coming year.

Sword and Key is an honorary society for men on the campus. The organization's purpose, according to its constitution, is "to recognize and encourage leadership, scholarship, and character, and to cooperate with the faculty in the consideration of curricular, academic, and other problems."

Founded in 1938 by a group of senior students, it has grown with the University until at the present time fifty men hold membership. During the war it was inactive because of the shortage of male students, but it was revived shortly thereafter.

To hold membership in Sword and Key, a student must have an over-all grade point average of 3.5 if he is a junior, or 3.25 if a senior. He must have twenty-four hours accredited at TU with the same grade point average as is required for the over-all, and he must be taking at least twelve hours of subject matter at the time of his election to the society.

The project of the organization at the present time is a complete reorganization of the constitution and by-laws. While no major changes are contemplated, it is hoped that a clear and concise statement of organization and policy will emerge.

Since Sword and Key's inception in 1938, it has been under the able guidance of Dr. A. N. Murray, head of the Geology Department. The organization is fortunate in having for a sponsor a man who is not only a scholar, but who is vitally interested in the society and its members.

THETA ALPHA PHI

Theta Alpha Phi is the honorary national dramatic fraternity on the Tulsa University Campus. Students become eligible for this organization upon completion of fifteen points work in the Theater and Radio Department; and receive points for acting in plays, being a member of stage crews for plays, directing plays, participating in one-act productions and Children's Theatre plays.

To start this year off in the right spirit Theta Alpha Phi sponsored a "Get Acquainted Party." They invited all people interested in speech, drama, radio, or stage design. This party has now been adopted as a regular fall activity. Theta Alpha Phi also sponsors the annual Workshop Christmas party. This year the faculty advisor, Dr. Bruestle, planned and executed the program. Everybody brought some gift for the stage or dressing room, ranging from hammers to ash trays and first aid equipment.

Activities of this spring will include the Speech Banquet, given by TAP and the presentation of acting awards of the year. The workshop "Oscars" will be given to the best actor and actress; the best supporting actor and actress; the crew award; and the Glenn Hennicle Award, presented to the person who has contributed the most and worked the most unselfishly during the year.

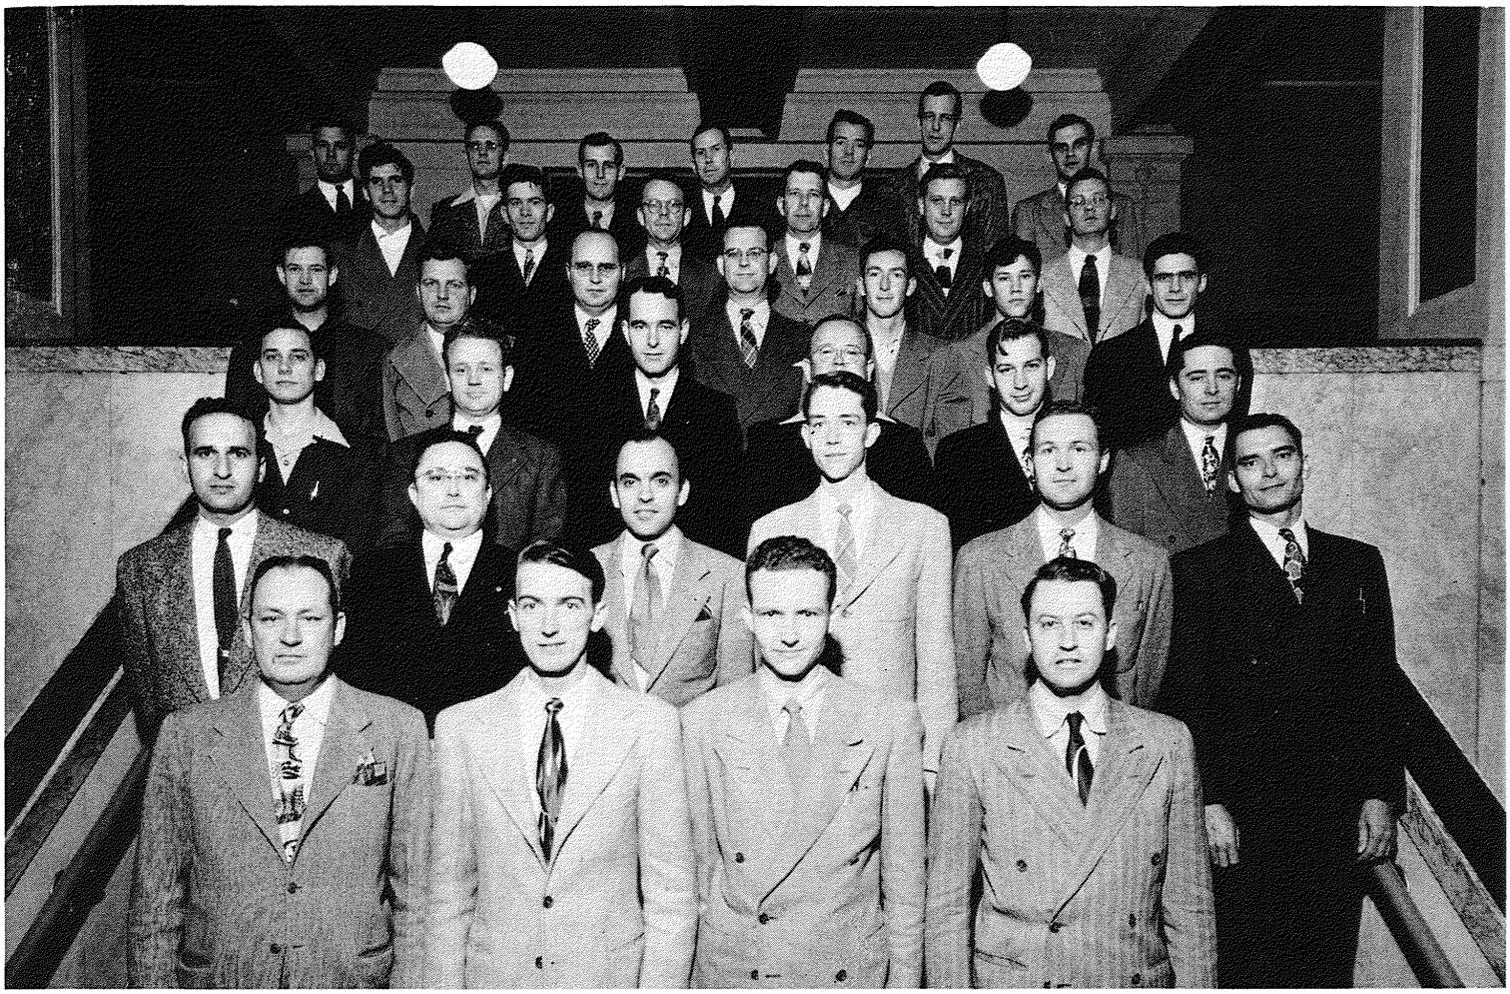

Theta Alpha Phi's center of activity is, of course, in the theater and most of its work is done there. TU members were proud to welcome the new radio production teacher into the chapter, John Keown, TAP, from Bowling Green. Fourteen new initiates also entered the group this year.

Phi Beta Gamma, legal fraternity, was established at the Georgetown University School of Law, Washington, D. C., in 1921. It was incorporated and approved as a national organization in April, 1922, and soon expanded to many American campuses.

The purposes of the organization are to encourage zeal and ambition in the study of the technical rules of law; to improve educational facilities in law; and to inculcate into its members' souls the ideals and ethics of the profession of law.

Lambda Chapter of Phi Beta Gamma, was originally known as the Tulsa Law Club, and functioned under this name until 1938 when it petitioned the national group for membership. Its membership is constituted of men enrolled in the Downtown Division who are students of law.

Business meetings are held each third Friday of the month, and speakers are chosen from the ranks of the legal profession as the programs.

Other activities of Phi Beta Gamma were its Christmas party, a banquet and a formal dance, given by the active chapter and the alumni members.

September brought 34 old and new girls to Kemp Hall. Mother Rose Price reigned as hostess, and soon restored order from the chaos of unpacking and getting settled.

Officers for the first semester were Jackie Newton, president; Mary Ruth Shinn, vice president; Mary Louise Ellis, secretary; Pat Simpson, treasurer; and Adrienne Bird, social chairman.

Activities included a Halloween date party and a Christmas party, followed by caroling at the fraternity houses and Memorial Hall.

Second semester found a few new faces to replace those lost during the vacation. Mary Ruth Shinn and Carol Lee Mathews had exchanged dorm life for marriage. Mimi Raney, Elaine Lee, Georgine Leeka, Joanne Hetherington and Frances Long were old students who swelled the Kemp Hall ranks. Denise Jaqua arrived from Dallas, Texas, as a brand-new TUite.

New officers elected were June Mounts, president; Freda Martin, vice president; Pearl Davey, secretary; Marolyn Herbert, treasurer; Carolyn Herbert and Frances Pishny, social chairmen.

Another date party was held in April and the annual spring picnic was held later in the year.

Miss Katherine Price, full of genuine Southern hospitality, was on hand to meet the twelve new residents, to welcome back the fourteen former residents, and to make them all feel at home.

One of the pleasant surprises which greeted the girls was the new piano in their modernistic living room. Later in the year the girls were blessed with a "coke" machine to add the "refreshment" element to the house.

The dormitory was the scene of several parties, including a Halloween date party and a Christmas party, many informal get-togethers with friends, and much chatter among the girls. Mother Price, with her gracious manner, made a perfect hostess when the girls entertained their parents or friends.

The girls — representing twelve states, among them, Illinois, Michigan, North Dakota, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Louisiana — elected Jean Earnhardt, a senior from Bristow, dorm president for the first semester. She was succeeded second semester by Adele Wilfred, senior sociology major from Illinois. Adele served as house president last year also. Other officers were Mavis Knutsen, reporter, and Pat Gabel and Ann Boyd, social committee.

CRITERION CLUB

The new Criterion club of the University of Tulsa was first launched in April of 1948 by four University students as an off-campus social organization for men. The club's popularity grew and prospective members were recruited by personal invitation of members until, by the beginning of the Fall Semester, the club grew from four to 20 members. Weekly meetings were held in homes of members and a constitution was drawn up assigning the organization the purpose of furnishing its members with wholesome, intellectual entertainment and social events.

In December of the fall semester, the Student Activities Committee accepted the Criterions as a campus discussion group, meeting weekly to discuss future occupations in the business world. University professors and prominent Tulsa business men are invited to address the organization on the third meeting of every month.

A Christmas party for underprivileged children was sponsored by the Criterions with gifts and candy for all children attending. A semi-formal holiday dance was held the following evening for members and their guests.

Professor C. L. Strout is faculty advisor to the membership of 35 men. Specified scholastic requirements must be maintained to become a member.

DELTA SIGMA PI

A professional fraternity is unique in that it provides all of the advantages of fraternal affiliation and in addition it offers the unusual benefits of a membership comprised exclusively of men who have chosen the same profession.

The International Fraternity of Delta Sigma Pi is a professional fraternity in the field of commerce and business administration. It was founded at New York University on November 7, 1907.

Beta Chi Chapter of Delta Sigma Pi became the first professional fraternity on the University of Tulsa Campus when it was formally installed May 9, 1948. This initiation was the culmination of the activities of the local professional business fraternity, Alpha Beta Mu. The charter which was presented at this ceremony now hangs in the lobby of Lorton Hall.

After several informal picnics and smokers, sixteen men began activities as the first pledge class on November 5, 1948. This group plus the spring pledge class nearly doubled the fraternity roll of 35 remaining charter members.

The aim of Delta Sigma Pi to promote professional activities was carried out by a well rounded program of industrial tours and discussions led by prominent Tulsa businessmen. This varied and interesting professional program was supplemented by the social activities which are a part of the life of every fraternity. Picnics in August and September and get-acquainted smokers were followed by a Founders' Day Banquet on November 5th.

The position of Delta Sigma Pi in this area was greatly strengthened by the formation of an alumni club in Tulsa last fall.

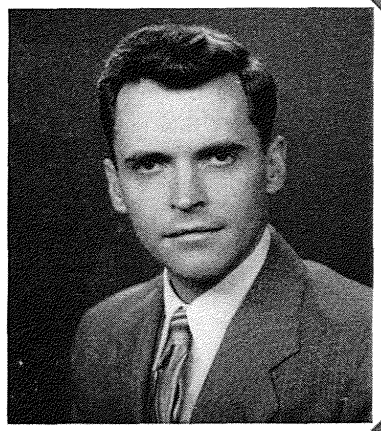

One of our members, Kenneth Popejoy, was elected to Who's Who this year. He is a member of the Community Council along with John Slater, Robert L. Smith, and Forrest Price.

Phil Stevenson is past president of the Accounting Club. He, along with Stewart Robinson, Harry Schad, Bill Hackett, Roy Jones and Forrest Price, made up our members of Sword and Key. Four of the Delta Sig members, Phil Stevenson, Harry Schad, and Bill Hackett, and Stewart Robinson are members of Phi Gamma Kappa. Ramon King is the Business Manager of the Kendallabrum.

BOTANY CLUB

Do you have an active interest in the floral side of life . . . past the point of appreciation of the outward beauty of flowers? If so, the place for you is in the Botany club.

This horticulturally-inclined organization has a membership open to any and all students on the University of Tulsa campus who are interested in a study of plant life and in outdoor recreation. The purpose of this group is to promote an appreciation of nature, a genuine love of the outdoor world and a bond of friendship among all the members.

When the inconsistencies of Oklahoma weather brought rain and storms, the Botany club was not brought to a standstill. For such occasions a series of indoor programs was planned. Local authorities in botany have appeared before the organization through the year with lectures on subjects of interest to the group. Many programs were supplemented by Kodachrome slides, the majority of which were contributed by the Botany club sponsors, Dr. and Mrs. B. D. Barclay. The color work added greatly in helping the botanists get a good idea of the plants in this part of the country.

A frequent activity of this organization during the fall and spring when the weather permitted was to take field trips to near-by places of interest to get a first-hand picture of floral families present in the Southwest. These outings took a social trend, too, at times, when the club members packed lunches for picnics or held big steak fries. Twice each year the organization members plan to take off from Tulsa for a week-end. For these trips more remote points in the state are visited than a day's field trip would allow.

A new organization on the campus is the Sequoyah chapter of Future Teachers of America, installed in 1948. Any regularly enrolled student of the University who is interested in teaching as a profession is eligible to join. Members of F. T. A. automatically become members of the Oklahoma Education Association and the National Education Association.

Meetings are held on the first and third Thursdays of every month at 7 p.m. Programs consist of discussion panels by members and talks by leaders in the field of education.

The special project of the University chapter is the promotion of Future Teachers of America groups in high schools.

An important event of the spring semester was the convention at Edmond in April at which ideas were exchanged with other F. T. A. chapters.

Various social activities are planned, climaxed by a picnic in the spring.

The Foreign Students organization at the University of Tulsa was founded in the fall of 1946 and has since operated under the sponsorship of C. V. Sidwell, professor of Petroleum Engineering.

The purpose of the group is to gain a better understanding of the ideas and problems of other nations, their modes of living and their outlooks on a post-war world. The organization has also served foreign students on the campus in aiding them to adjust themselves to American university life.

The vacancies created by men graduating at the end of the 1948 term were filled by several new members, notably from the South American countries. New arrivals also included another Burmese student, Aung Kyi Moe, who is a graduate of the University of Rangoon.

The thirty-one members of the club represent fourteen countries and seven languages are spoken. Several members are bi- or tri-lingual and find it fairly easy to gain a relatively good working knowledge of English.

Countries best represented are Canada and South America, but there is a fair sprinkling of Lebonese, Cyprian, Burmese and French.

Open forum type meetings have been held during the year with various organizations in Tulsa, where a few of the students have drawn parallels between their respective countries and the United States.

Activities of the group include a social aspect as well as functions helpful to the department. The Geology Club prepares mimeographed reports of field trips. The sale of these reports help support the activities of the organization.

With fifty members, the organization has been governed this year by Gilbert Merritt, president; Chester Garrett, v-president; Ben Walthall, secretary-treasurer. Faculty sponsor is H. E. Simison and the department head is Dr. A. N. Murray.

The University of Tulsa is the first American college to have a campus geophysical organization. The TU Geophysical Society was formed April 3, 1947 by 18 students of geophysics and related sciences.

Members of the organization are automatically eligible for associate membership in the Society of Exploration Geophysicists; this is the first student society to be accepted for such an affiliation.

Interest and knowledge of the science of geophysics is promoted by the organization. By arrangement with the Tulsa Geophysical Society, members of the student group may attend meetings and technical discussions held monthly in the lounge of the Student Union, and have the opportunity to meet the leaders of the geophysical profession.

The Society serves as an informal clearing house for Tulsa's 50 geophysical companies in search of student employees for part-time work. Largely through the efforts of the society, TU has been made the depository for the S. E. G. library of exchange publications. This university library catalogs and provides microfilm services for an invaluable collection of documents.

The University group was extended the advantages of student membership by the senior organization in accordance with its widespread policy of encouraging younger men and women who are interested in aeronautical engineering.

The purpose of the organization is to bring to the student level professional progress made in the industry and the latest discoveries of government research concerning guided missiles and supersonic high-speed air dynamics.

The organization meets the third Thursday of every month. The program consists of aeronautical movies from the film library of the I. A. S., outside speakers who discuss various problems of the aircraft industry, and student lecturers. There are approximately 20 members.

On Armistice Day the student I. A. S. made a trip to Wichita to inspect the Boeing Aircraft Plant.

The Newman Club, including 100 Catholic students on the University of Tulsa campus, was organized at the beginning of the fall semester of 1946 as a unit of the Southwest Province of the Newman Club Federation. Its purpose is to foster the spiritual, intellectual, and social interests of the Catholic students and to assist the University and its student body whenever possible.

Under the guidance of Father John Sullivan, first director, and Bob Mannix, first president, Catholic students began their meetings during the spring semester of 1945, to better the cooperation on the campus of Catholics, Protestants and Jews. The group affiliated with the long standing national organization, which has turned international and now extends to Great Britain and Canada.

The meetings and programs were directed by Father Seary. They were conducted on a discussion basis, thus allowing complete flexibility in plans and in order to meet any questions which a member or visitor might wish to have clarified.

Newman Club officers for this year are Jim Griffin, president; Charles Heath, vice-president; Arris Bailey, secretary; Kay Butts, treasurer; Pauline Quirk, social chairman; and Father J. L. Seary, chaplain.

Officers are Bruce Washburn, president; George Arnold, vice-president; Pat Carroll, secretary; Louis Lundquist, treasurer; Gretchen Basore, publicity director.

This group, which first received public mention at last year's speech department banquet, met last fall with twenty-five charter members. New members are selected by a credit system involving actual participation on KWGS, campus FM station.

Working toward more active interest in radio, they sponsored an all-school assembly, March 3. Mr. John Esau, general manager of station KTUL, spoke on television, pointing out its probable effect on the radio industry throughout the nation.

In direct connection with KWGS, Radio Guild inaugurated a plan whereby students may make helpful suggestions toward better procedure. A suggestion box, maintained in the hall of the speech annex, has proved to be a very worth-while project.

The Sociology Club of the University of Tulsa was organized during the fall of 1946, by a group of students who established as their purpose "an intense interest in the field of sociology and a desire to promote scholarship."

For active membership in the organization each student must have completed or be registered for a minimum of nine hours in sociology, have a three point or "B" grade average in sociology courses, and be enrolled in sociology as an area of concentration.

Meetings are held the first Tuesday of each month, at which time outstanding speakers are invited to inform members on current topics of sociological interest. Two of these speakers were Fred Woodson, Chief Probation Officer of Tulsa County Court, and Dr. Feldman, who spoke on a recent trip to Europe.

The organization has expanded its social interest as well. Many informal parties are held throughout the year and such parties as the one held at Corinne Carr's house added to the group's amusement and fun. The Sociology Club's activities were completed in the spring with a banquet.

Fifteen active members and ten associate members are now on the roll of the club. Future plans to which all club members are looking forward include a possible affiliation with Alpha Kappa Delta, national honorary sociology fraternity.

The Spanish Club was organized in the fall of 1948 as the result of the combination of La Club de las Americas and Los Tertulianos. Any student who is taking a Spanish course, or has had Spanish, is invited to become a member.

La Club de las Americas was organized in 1934 for students having at least two years of Spanish; Latin American students were also invited to join.

Los Tertulianos began in September, 1946, with the requirement that members need only be enrolled in elementary Spanish.

The purpose of the united Spanish Club is to increase the information concerning Spanish-speaking countries and to further knowledge of the language.

The Club sponsors an annual Pan American Assembly which was held this year on April 7. Pan Americanism was the theme of the keynote address, which was followed by a movie picturing South American cruises and a native Spanish dance by June Runyon and Jane Siverson.

Semi-monthly business meetings were held, besides various social affairs. Professor Clevy L. Strout is sponsor of the Club.

LAURENE CAMPBELL
TU Business Woman of the Year

Any girl enrolled in a business course at the University of Tulsa is welcomed in the TU Business Women's Club.

It was founded in the fall of 1946 under the leadership of Mrs. Lucile Hummel, sponsor of the club, with the purpose of supplying business information and aid that can not be gained in the classroom.

Prominent business men and women are invited to speak at the meetings which are held on the second Wednesday of the month. A "Pot Luck" supper is served in the teachers' lounge at Lorton Hall at 6 p.m. and the business meeting begins at 7 p.m.

Climaxing the club's activities is the announcement of the "TU Business Woman of the Year." Laurene Campbell was selected to receive the honor for 1948.

A committee of juniors choose five senior girls from the business school on the basis of superior scholarship and personality, of important activities and from results of testing in a chosen field. From this group the "TU Business Woman" is chosen by three downtown business men.

A picnic in May closes the club's social activities for the year.

Officers for this year were: Cora Oglevie, president; Mary Ann Ramsey, vice-president; Ginger Webb, secretary, and June Mounts, treasurer.

"We unite in the desire to realize full and creative life through a growing knowledge of God. In this task we seek to understand Jesus and to follow Him."

T.U. "Y" began with its first meeting to carry out this purpose which has been its purpose and goal since the "Y" has existed. T.U. "Y" which is the only interdenominational Christian organization on the campus is concerned with the future of students as well as the present and endeavors to renew their faith in Christianity and thereby enable them to live successfully and happily.

T.U. "Y" began very early in the year to carry out its activities on the campus. Work began almost immediately on the writing, editing, and publication of the student handbook, with Greta Stone as editor and Joe Walker as business manager. The well-attended student mixer at the beginning of each school year was originally sponsored by the "Y" but has grown so large that seven other campus organizations now co-sponsor this event. The girls on the campus (and some of the boys as well) anxiously look forward each year to the Co-Ed Prom which is another campus activity under the sponsorship of the "Y". The "Y" searches each year for new and different activities which will be important contributions to the life of the students at the university.

TU Windbags, a pep club composed of some 130 student-members, got school spirit and pep in high gear this year as they pulled behind the Hurricane varsity and freshman grid teams.

Fans watched the Hurricane storm the field through a cheering Windbag funnel at the start of every home game.

The pep club was formerly divided into two separate parts — the Windbags for the boys and the Windbagettes for the girls. This is the first year the two groups have combined and assumed the name of Windbags.

The club undertook the money-raising project of selling bright red and blue freshman caps to send themselves to the Wichita game. Next year they hope to attend many more games away from home. Freshmen will not be required to wear their caps past November 5, if the Hurricane footballers conquer the Cowboys of Oklahoma A. & M.

Greek organizations added stimulus to a membership drive for the club by requesting their members and pledges to buy jackets and participate in Windbag activities.

Cheers echoed across the campus from night rallies held 'round blazing bonfires. Bright-colored jackets, emblematic of the spirit upon which the club was founded, are worn by the members.

MUSIC

CHOIR

Arthur D. Hestwood
Director of Choral Music

"I bring thee melodies, soft, soothing melodies, lovely and faint as the starlets that shimmer at dawn . . ." So goes the theme of the University of Tulsa Mixed Choir, a group of one hundred students who love and enjoy group singing of sacred and popular music, heralding programs of varied choral music sent forth under the direction of Arthur Hestwood.

Following the annual spring concert on April 4-5, the group went on tour accompanied by Tom Waring, who has written several numbers for the chorus and visited with them frequently. In the fall the group participated in the music clinic at which Fred Waring directed. It was held in Kendall Hall prior to the music festival in Downtown Tulsa.

Other activities included appearances at various civic functions in Tulsa including the football rally in February at Convention Hall. The mixed chorus rendered sacred music for the assembly during religious emphasis week in March.

Plans are being made for an even more expanded spring concert schedule and tour for next year, in view of the success of this past year's work.

RADIO CHOIR

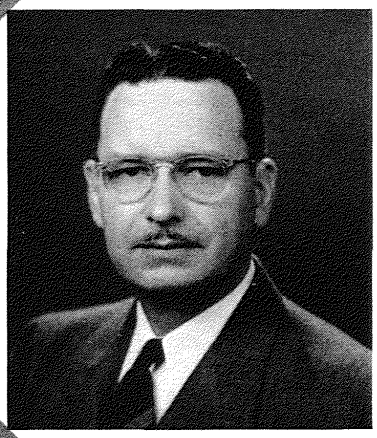

"Fifteen seconds, stand by—" a light flashes—"I bring you melodies—" The Radio Choir is on the air! This year T.U.'s own FM station KWGS has presented jointly with KVOO as a Tuesday night feature a weekly broadcast by the University of Tulsa Radio Choir, directed by Arthur Hestwood. That current hit song you hear isn't unusual on the show, for popular music is the mainstay of the Choir's repertoire. Classical compositions are included to furnish a well-rounded musical diet. This wide variety of style plus the quantity of numbers performed places the emphasis on performance and not memorization. For this reason all music is sung with copy in hand, requiring that the choir members be good musicians. The Choir makes personal appearances in the city and surrounding territory in addition to its regular weekly broadcasts.

As well as striving for a professional quality performance, the Choir serves as a laboratory for the students. Student arrangements are frequently heard, soloists perform on every broadcast, and Director Hestwood often turns over the podium to student director Allan Cox.

A high spot for the choristers occurred last November when Fred Waring dropped in to visit his former associate, Mr. Hestwood, and to give the organization a few pointers on producing a better show.

Music from Beethoven to Gershwin receives the careful attention of the T.U. Symphony Orchestra. Either music majors or non-majors are invited to join the orchestra, which provides invaluable experience in applying the theory to the actual.

The Orchestra was called upon for several performances during the year besides accompanying faculty members in concertos. There were two programs devoted to the concertos of senior music majors.

The United Daughters of the Confederacy sponsored a performance on January 13, which featured the Beethoven Trio and selections from Mendelssohn.

The orchestra was host at the Orchestra Festival held January 23, for high school students. Oberon Overture and Beethoven's Triple Concerto were presented. H. Arthur Brown, conductor of the Tulsa Philharmonic Orchestra, was featured.

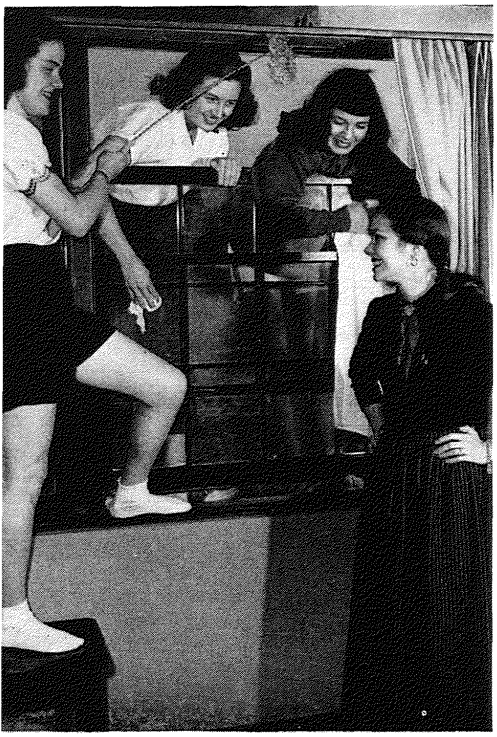

UNIVERSITY SYMPHONY

GOLDEN HURRICANE BAND

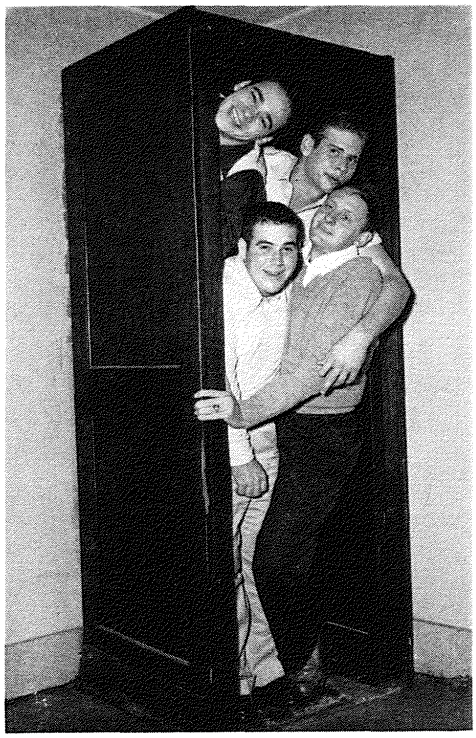

The 1948-49 University of Tulsa Band season has been one of many unique activities. The election of the Band Queen, Barbara Gates, was the initial activity of this busy year. A marked improvement in the Band's appearance at the football games and parades was noted this year in addition to its fine concert playing which was well demonstrated at the Fall "Pop Concert". The band performed the second semester for the basketball games and the football rally at Convention Hall. A benefit concert was given for the Salvation Army Boy's Home and the YMCA Building Fund drive. An out-of-town concert tour was made to the high schools of Coffeyville, Kan., Pawhuska, Hominy and Cleveland, Okla. The year's activities were climaxed by a dinner and dance at the Varsity Club.

BARBARA GATES was the choice of Kappa Kappa Psi members this year when the time came to elect their fraternity sweetheart. One of the biggest fields of activity for students at TU is offered by KWGS, "The Voice of TU."

With students participating in the capacity of announcers, actors, producers, writers, or engineers in every one of the almost sixty hours air-time per week, the university station provides unusual opportunities for under-graduate experience in the actual working principles of radio. A small number of faculty and full-time employees supervise operation.

KWGS offers education at home . . . education for invalids or others whose opportunities have been limited . . . as well as experience for students.

The campus station has grown since its dedication, October 19, 1947, so that this year a total of 22 credit hours were available through "Radio University of Tulsa," plus regular FM entertainment features such as "KWGS Players," "Music of the Masters," "Sports Trail," and "The Way of Words."

In February, KWGS was proud to begin broadcasting two new courses in conjunction with NBC and KVOO, as well as carrying the popular NBC Features, "The First Piano Quartet," and "Radio City Playhouse."

About one hundred students announce, act and write KWGS programs, with another thirty-five active in weekly Radio Choir broadcasts.

Station Manager Ben Henneke, head of the Speech Department, Production Manager John Keown, Script Editor Nancy A. Ramsey, Music Director Arthur Hestwood, and News Editor Ed Johnson supervise activities of the student staff.

Mr. Keown, who came to Tulsa from Kansas City U. where he was Director of Radio, has steered T. U.'s educational air-wave scheme through a successful year marked by additions which strengthen KWGS's claim to uniqueness in university stations throughout the nation.

The fast-growing group of radio students on campus this year organized an honorary Radio Guild with 26 charter members for the purpose of aiding progress and higher quality in radio education at TU.

Panhellenic Council at the University of Tulsa, organized over seventeen years ago, is modeled after the National Panhellenic Congress. Its membership is composed of the president and one representative from each of the six sororities on the campus.

This past year, Panhellenic Council has been under the able leadership of Martha Hardy, Phi Mu, as president. Other members of the Council were: Barbara Costantini, Phi Mu; Georjean Groom, first vice-president, and Gatra Moorer, Kappa Kappa Gamma; Alice Bruner, second vice-president, and Saralou Thornton, Chi Omega; Jean Shumard, secretary, and Glorene Fraser, Delta Gamma; Patti D'Arcy, treasurer, and Patsy Bassett, Delta Delta Delta; Dorthea Grine, social chairman, and Joann Stewart, Kappa Delta.

Meetings are held on Tuesday, and with their sponsor, Miss Mary Clay Williams, the girls meet to discuss mutual problems and plan future activities. The council encourages cooperation and friendliness among all Greek letter groups. During the summer, the Council meets to discuss rush activities and to make plans for its fall Open House preceding formal rush.

The annual Panhellenic Ball was a big success and the highlight of the social calendar.

At the honors assembly in fall, Miss Williams awarded the coveted scholarship cup which was presented by Panhellenic Council, to Chi Omega for the second year. This cup is awarded annually to the sorority making the highest grade average for the preceding year.

One of the Council's projects of the year was to sell Christmas cards during the holiday season.

The sororities and fraternities, backed by Panhellenic and the Inter-Fraternity Council, joined forces in getting behind the worthwhile March of Dimes campaign. Canisters were distributed and later collected all over the city of Tulsa with campus Greek cooperation, helping to make Tulsa's drive successful.

Panhellenic Council sponsored the very excellent piano duo of Boyd and Helen Ringo in concert at Will Rogers Auditorium in early February. Even with the work, there was loads of fun in working together, and the Council was especially glad to meet and work with such fine people as the Ringos.

In the Spring, the Annual Panhellenic Workshop is held for the purpose of bringing all sorority women together to discuss mutual problems. Round table discussions are held in connection with different phases of campus and sorority life.

Pan-Hellenic protege, Junior Pan-Hel, is a council comprised of the presidents and representatives of sorority pledge classes. The little sister to senior Pan-Hellenic met regularly on Tuesdays, sometimes with a member of the upper-class group, and under the guidance of its sponsor, Mrs. Ann Morrow, to work on group projects and common problems.

The sorority pledges joined with frat pledge classes to turn on the members in the traditional walk-out. After the big event, the Junior Pan-Hellenic compiled a list of suggestions and criticisms, collected from all sororities and fraternities, concerning this year's walk-out in order to improve the "big escapade" for next year.

When the fall semester got under way, the pledge class representatives decided it would be a good idea for all their groups to get better acquainted. Thus was born the idea for holding a dinner and group sing in the Student Union, where the new sorority pledges got to know each other.

As for social events, the pledge counter-part of Pan-Hel council threw a school-wide party in the form of a waist dance. Campus-wide, the men were worried over the width of their dates' waists, for admission to the dance was based on waist-width.

Junior Pan-Hel was philanthropic in its activities, too. The money made from their dance was given in the form of a scholarship to some worthy TU student. China benefited, too, as an orphan there was furnished food, clothing and shelter for a period of eight months.

CHI OMEGA

Fifty-four years ago at the University of Arkansas at Fayetteville, Chi Omega sorority was founded by Dr. Charles Richardson and four young women students — Jobelle Holcomb, Jean Vincenheller, Alice Cary Simonds and Ina Mae Boles. Now Chi Omega has grown to 104 chapters all over the United States with over forty thousand members.

The T.U. Chi Omegas started off the year with a bang, pledging twenty-five girls. Pledge Mistress Carolyn Cooper taught the new little Hooties such Chi O essentials as colors: cardinal and straw; flower: white carnation; founding: April 5, 1895; Open Declaration: "Hellenic culture and Christian ideals."

Soon after school started, the social affairs began and each week-end was crammed with dessert dances, open houses, the white carnation formal in honor of the pledges and the many Owl Hoots on Sunday nights.

Homecoming was a big day in the lives of the Chi Omegas, with their green float placing third and their house decorations taking first place and a new gold cup. Queen Ruth "Gundy" Burrows reigned that day as football and homecoming queen. Beauty was not lacking among the Chi Omegas as Margaret Wooten Robertson, Norma Briggs and Saralu Thornton were chosen Kendallabrum beauty queens. Sweethearts selected and crowned were Jean Hill for the Kappa Alphas and Donna Briggs for the Kappa Sigmas.

Varsity night found many Chi Omegas on stage and behind the scenes, with five represented on the Varsity Board. They were all very excited the final performance when Gloria Chastain was crowned Varsity night queen.

Six Chi Omegas became "wheels" on campus when they were chosen for Who's Who—Pat Tripp, Saralou Thornton, Jackie Newton, Mary Louise Bates, Benita Springer and Carolyn Cooper. Mary Louise Bates pounded the gavel of Senior Staff while Jackie Newton kept minutes for Community Council. Connie Simmons, Alice Bruner, Peggy Taylor and Donna Briggs were busy as class officers and Barbara Purlee, Suzanne Schall and Ginger Webb were invited into Lantern. Presidents of their respective dorms were June Mounts of Kemp and Adele Wilfred of Gordon.

DELTA DELTA DELTA

Just as the stars and crescent moon shone over the University of Tulsa campus during the past year, so shone the Stars and Crescent badges in the Tri Delta lodge at 3112 on Sorority Row. Following the principles set forth by Sarah Ida Shaw, Eleanor Dorcas Pond, Florence Stewart and Isabelle Breed at Boston University back in 1888, the Theta Upsilon Delta Delta Delta's carried on another year of successful campus and chapter activity.

After the school year got under way, the traditional Pansy Prom was one of the first big social events. With the lodge decorated thoroughly with pansies, the members honored their new pledges. Pledges were presented as they entered through a crescent moon, and Patsy Daniels was crowned as Pansy Princess.

Later in the year the pledges took their turn at entertaining the members with a take-off on the Pansy Prom. The Sunflower Sashay theme was carried out in every possible way. The lodge den was filled with bales of hay and named, appropriately enough, the "hayloft." The walls of the lodge were covered with sunflowers, the dress for the evening was strictly formal . . . blue jeans, and the cookies took the form of jugs and sun flowers. Entertainment had a "hillbilly" twang and a sun flower-topped straw hat crowned Dick Lockwood as Sunflower King.

When the second semester was over and grades were in, Tri Delta's were happy to find that all the pledge class had made their grades for initiation. Early in March Delta Week honored the initiates-elect with parties at the lodge, dinners and shows. The morning following the final degree the new members proudly wore their pins to the traditional Pansy Breakfast, where Marilyn Hieronymus and Patty Sue Duval received awards for outstanding achievement during their pledge days. Pledge president Marilyn Price spoke in behalf of her new Stars-and-Crescent-wearing sisters.

Election time came 'round in March and Patsy Bassett turned the gavel over to Jody Smith. Social events of the spring semester included a Crescent Cabaret party, spring formal and a week-end at Camp Parthenia with the Chi O's.

DELTA GAMMA

With the newest, largest lodge on sorority row and a top pledge class of 25 enthusiastic girls, Gamma Beta chapter of Delta Gamma started its second year on the T.U. campus.

Founded in 1873, Delta Gamma has always been known for its work in aiding the blind, international education projects, and student loan funds. A Diamond Jubilee Convention held last summer at Swamscott, Massachusetts, brought Delta Gammas from all over the world to celebrate the seventy-fifth year of sorority work.

On October 24, D.G.'s proudly showed their lodge to the campus with a special housewarming. This of course was followed with many dessert dances, open houses, and informal parties.

Greatest excitement arose when D.G.'s captured the Junior Panhellenic Scholarship Cup for the second straight year. Members of distinction were Glorene Fraser, who was chosen for Who's Who; Betty Jo Bethke who was president of Theta Alpha Phi and Sue Veale who was active in Sigma Alpha Iota.

Among D.G.'s in campus activities were Georgine Leeka and Martha Vansant, Workshop; Patti Hower, cheerleader; and Clevanne McGhee, majorette in the band.

All year long the lodge was well supplied with candy as Delta Gamma's added frat pins to their anchors.

Officers for the year were Glorene Fraser, President; Jean Shumard, Vice-President; Sue Veale, Secretary and Alison Hartnett, Treasurer.

KAPPA DELTA

A toast to the Beta Epsilon members of Kappa Delta Sorority; "Live fair, play square, hit the line hard." This is the slogan which all Kappa Delta's have adopted as a plan for daily living, and which particularly typifies the Beta Epsilon members and pledges.

With the beginning of the college year 1948-49 an enthusiastic pledge class of twenty-five soon fitted into sorority life with their learning of the Kappa Delta colors, olive green and white; flower, white rose; founding, October 23, 1897; and number of chapters, 74.

The first big event on the Kappa Delta calendar was the Emerald and Pearl dance given for the pledges. Thursday night pie suppers for the fraternities held sway on the campus with both members and pledges practicing their culinary art. With a newly redecorated lodge and a wonderful new housemother, Mother "Dot" Wilcox, these parties were really gala events. Thereafter, formals, date parties, open houses and Christmas parties took over the calendar.

Kappa Delta's four founders were stressed for the annual Founder's Day Banquet in October. The opening T.U. Theatre play, "First Lady", was graced by two K D's, Shirley Barton and Harriet McKinstry. Shirley also participated in "Dark of the Moon" and the "Lady is a Hussy."

The election to Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges included two Kappa Delta's, Kathleen Burton and Harriet McKinstry. Lantern chose Marsha Grable and Pauline Quirk as new members. Pauline was elected Secretary and Treasurer.

Honors were again won by Theda Grimm, who was selected for the second year as Football Queen attendant, and by Dannette Young who was elected Lambda Chi Sweetheart. Dorothy Bergman was elected Freshman Football attendant, and Katherine Weems was selected by Lynn Riggs as Kendallabrum beauty. Two K D's were tapped for Senior Staff, Sally Ann Grimes and Harriet McKinstry, while Jo Ann Dobson was put in charge of the Treasury for the Windbags.

After a successful rush week, during which time eighteen girls were pledged, the Kappa Kappa Gammas settled down to the first year in their new lodge.

Kappas were active in campus activities. Barbara Gates was chosen Band Queen and Kappa Kappa Psi Sweetheart. Maxine Stemmons, Golden Gale Football Queen, was Varsity Football queen attendant also. Mary Ann Ramsey was Sigma Phi Epsilon Sweetheart. The Alpha Tau Omegas chose Virginia Shleppey as their Sweetheart. Jean Coulter was crowned Engineers' Queen at the Engineer's Ball; Jan Coulter, her twin sister, was last year's queen.

October 13, Kappas celebrated their fraternity founding at Monmouth College, Monmouth, Illinois, in 1870.

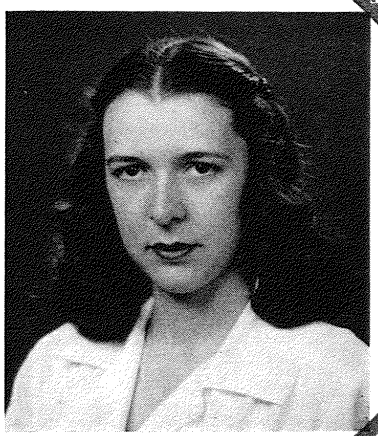

Honorary fraternity women were Gatra Moorer, Paschal Hunt, Joan Marks, and Barbara Cihak of Pi Delta Epsilon. Theta Alpha Phi members and active Workshoppers were Pat Carrol, Lee Thomas and Gretchen Basore. Pat received laurels for her leading role in "First Lady". Norma Helen Spriggs was in Sigma Alpha Iota.

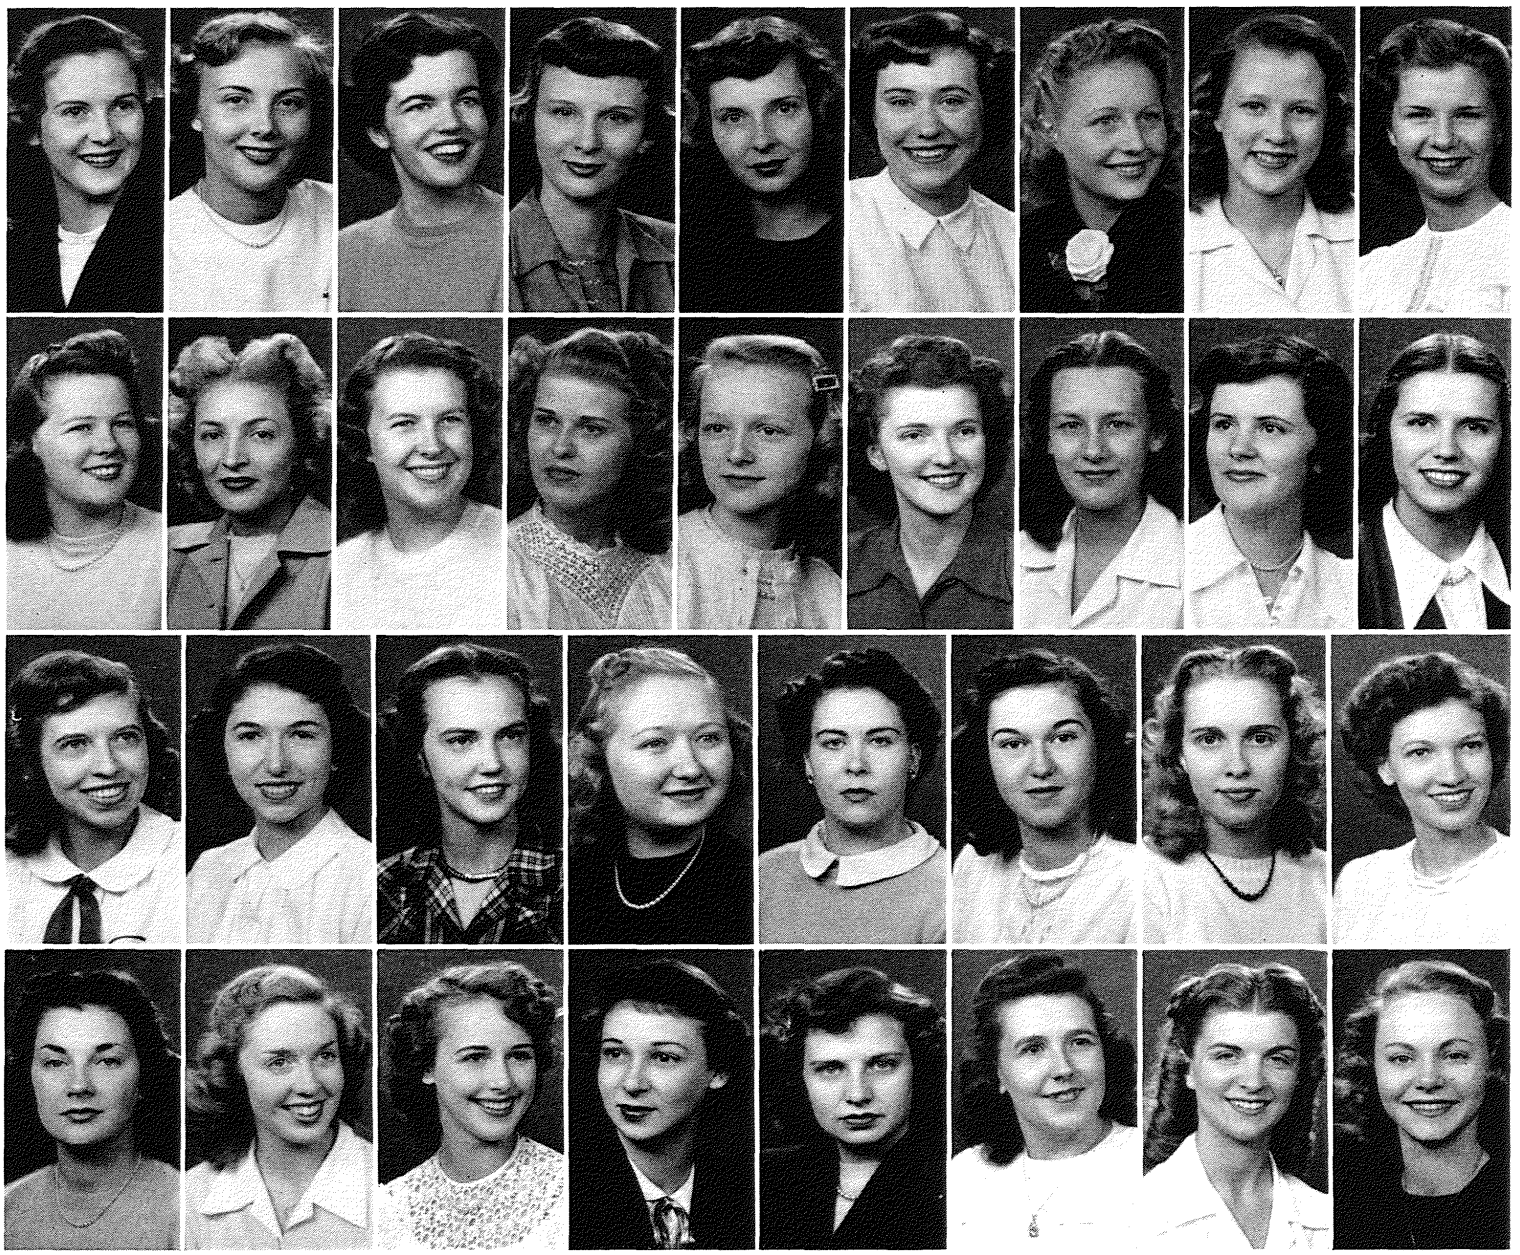

Freda Martin and Norma Helen Spriggs were chosen for Who's Who. Joan Marks, Barbara Cihak, Georjean Groom, and June Arnold became members of Lantern.

Jean Towers was Freshman Secretary. Vice-President, Treasurer, and Social Chairman of Kemp Hall were Freda Martin, Marolyn Herbert, and Carolyn Herbert respectively. Adrienne Bird was Kemp Hall's Social Chairman first semester. Mary Ann Ramsey was Vice-President of the Business Women's Club. Joan Marks was Collegian Society editor. Barbara Cihak was assistant to the editor. Gatra Moorer co-directed the "Big Wheel Meal" and Denise Jaqua was a drum majorette for the TU Band.

Many activities were held at the lodge. Pledge active dinners, annual Christmas party, and a collegiate party given for the members by the pledges were among the activities. At this collegiate party Sam Whiteman, ATO, was crowned Kappa Key Man and awarded a Golden Key. The house won second in sorority Homecoming House Decorations.

PHI MU

The first activity of Phi Mu members when rush ended on sorority row was to honor their new pledges at a dinner, and later in the fall, at a pledge dance. The social life continued with dessert dances for the various fraternities, open houses, and a Christmas tree-decorating party.

But the pledges soon found that parties were not the only phase of their sorority life. After the annual "walkout," members rousted the pledges out of bed at 5 a.m. for a cleaning party at the lodge; and at the Christmas slumber party, the pledges were held responsible for a steady supply of skits and songs.

Other sororities were guests at the Co-ed Picnic, sponsored by the Phi Mu's as a move toward better Panhellenic spirit.

Among the girls representing Phi Mu in campus activities this year were Glenna Robertson, Band Queen attendant; Billie Savage, Football Queen attendant; and Diane Piper, Freshman Football Queen attendant.

Dorene Craig and Joanne Kramer were selected for Lantern, while Norma Lou Lawrence, with straight "A" grades, was President of the organization. Martha Hardy served as President of Panhellenic Council. Frances Webber was active in Workshop activities.

In the Homecoming parade, Diane Piper sat atop the Phi Mu's Southern Belle float. The sorority's house decorations won third place in the '48 contest.

At Thanksgiving, members and pledges had home cookin' when the Mothers' Club served a holiday dinner to the girls. On March 4th, in St. Louis, Phi Mu's attended the banquet celebrating the 1852 founding of the fraternity in Macon, Ga., as the Philomathean Society.

INTER-FRATERNITY COUNCIL

Don Miller

January, 1949, brought many New Year's resolutions to our campus, and the Inter-fraternity Council was not to be putdone.

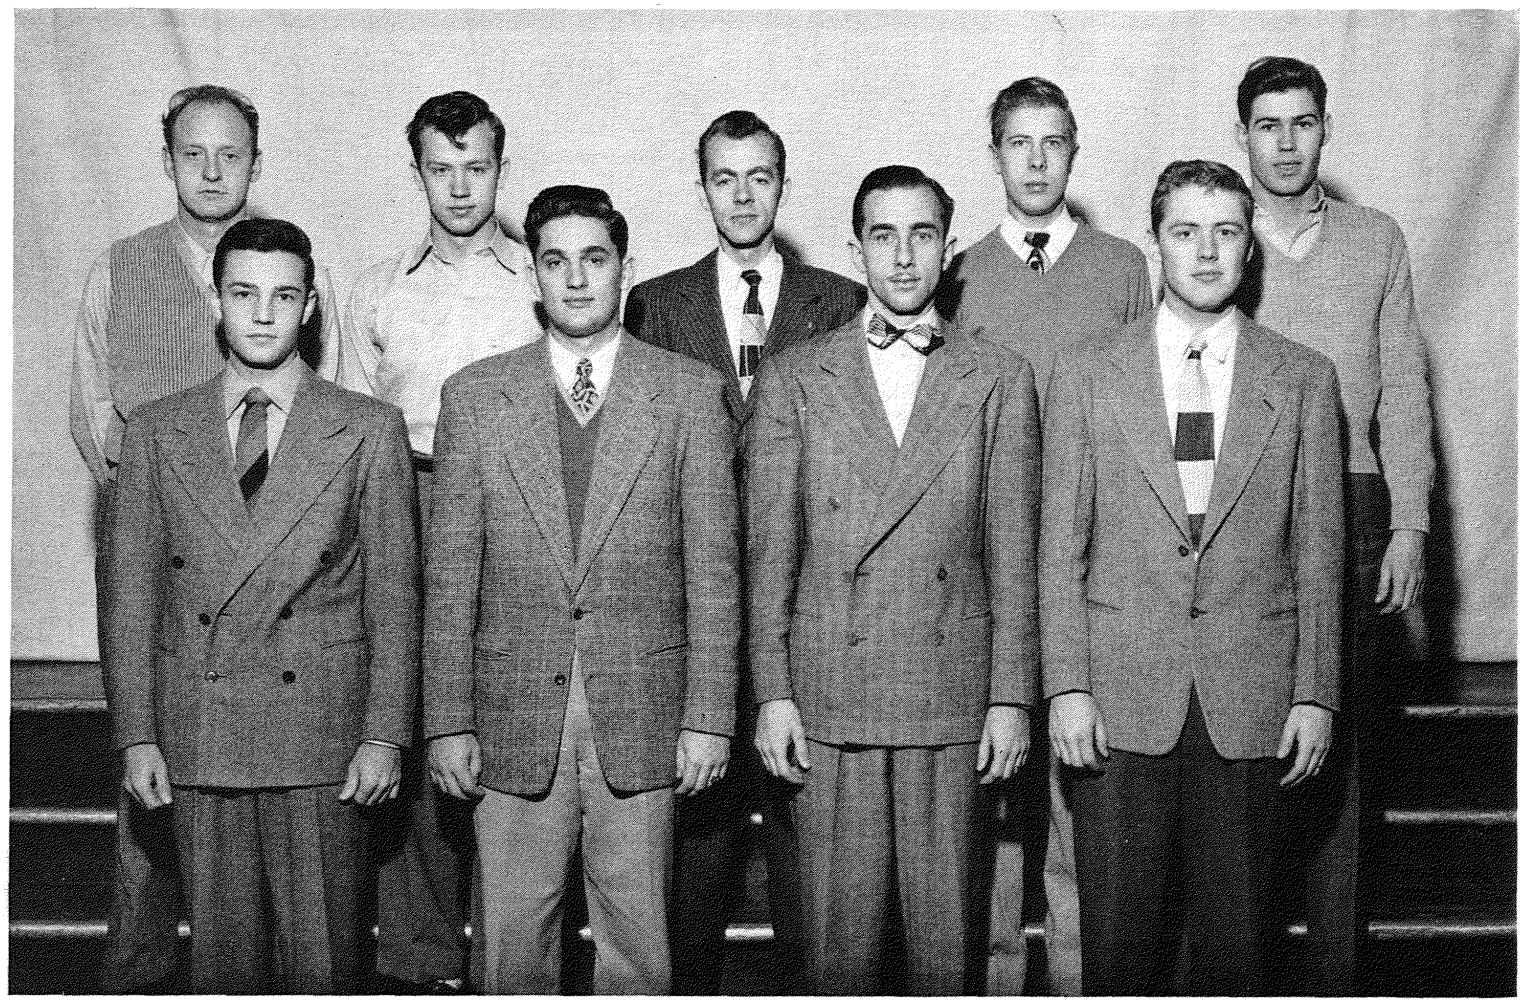

Under the leadership of several council members and the Counselor to Men, Max Raines, a thorough reorganization was established, which seemed destined to further unity and prompt action among the members of the Senior and Junior Board and the several standing committees.

Coupled with the division of the group into a junior, recommending body, and a senior, voting body, was the installation of the elective system for all Council officers, rather than the previous method of rotation of chair positions among the fraternities.

Dean Lovejoy, initial president under the new constitution, pointed to a paragraph from the National Inter-Fraternity Constitution which summarized the aims of the new system; it reads: "We consider the fraternity responsible for a positive contribution to the primary functions of the Colleges and Universities, and therefore under an obligation to encourage the most complete personal development of its members, intellectual, physical and social."

Activities in 1948-49 included a fall banquet sponsored by the Council for all fraternity men, which was very successful as a mixer, a smoker in January for discussion of reorganization plans, and a banquet and all-Greek dance in April of the second semester.

ALPHA TAU OMEGA

The local Taus began this year with their first formal rush season to be held in their chapter house. A great deal of work was done by the members in readying the house for the first return of members and the arrival of the first out-of-town rushees.

This was the year of sports for Alpha Tau Omega. Taking first place, with the accompanying trophies, in football and volleyball, the Tulsa Taus entered strong teams in all other sports in a bid to retain possession of the Iron Man Trophy won by the chapter last year in intra-mural sports.

The three traditional social events of the ATO's proved again to be outstanding functions on the campus. The Black and White Ball in mid-December was highlighted by the crowning of Miss Virginia Shleppey as the third Sweetheart of Alpha Tau Omega. In early March the local chapter celebrated the eighty-fourth anniversary of the beginning of the national organization. A celebration of their own birthday was held in May when the chapter gathered at the Blackfoot Ball in honor of the fifth year of leadership of Alpha Tau Omega on the University of Tulsa campus. Numerous smaller social functions, many held at the chapter house, rounded out the rest of the year's social activity.

Election to campus offices seemed to be the order of the day for ATO's when Dick Lockwood was elected president of the Sophomore class; Jim Harris became Junior class president; and the Seniors voted Bob Bayless back into the office of Treasurer, the same position he had held as a Junior. Jack Gentry carried on capably as Chairman of the Intramural Committee of the Community Council. Dean Lovejoy captured top honors when he was elected the first President of the newly-created Inter-Fraternity Cabinet, one of the highest positions offered on the campus.

When the Golden Hurricane presented itself, ATO's found brother Jimmy Ford ending the football season as the second ranking pass receiver in the nation. John Brechin and Sam Cooke showed their basketball prowess on the Armory's floor. Much credit for the success and enjoyment of the chapter was due to our beloved housemother, Mrs. William F. Bensing.

KAPPA SIGMA

Kappa Sigma Fraternity was founded December 10, 1869, at the University of Virginia by five friends.

From such a modest beginning the fraternity grew in numbers and traditions until it reached its present position of 117 chapters and over 50,000 members. From its beginning in the Southern state, it soon branched out and was the first Southern fraternity to attempt a chapter in the North.

Epsilon Mu Chapter of Kappa Sigma had its beginning indirectly on the TU campus on May 16, 1946, when a new "local" was founded with a nucleus of eight men. With Dr. George Small as its first sponsor, Delta Theta slowly expanded to an active chapter of 47 members and 29 pledges, soon to take its place on the campus with other existing nationals.

With strong leadership and enthusiasm Delta Theta soon achieved their desired goal. In May, 1948, the young fraternity petitioned for a charter and Kappa Sigma granted their request by authorizing the installation of the 115th chapter at TU. Today finds the organization in a new role — a role that Epsilon Mu will assume with much enthusiasm in becoming a strong and active chapter of Kappa Sigma.

Kappa Sigs on the graduation list this year — many of whom have helped found and lead the fraternity in its activities — are Gib Byrd, first president of Delta Theta; Jeff Abbey, Senior Class President; Paul Brightmire, third President of Delta Theta; Pat Welch, Varsity Night King; Dick Davis, present KS President; Paul Berry, Kendallabrum Business Manager; Charles Jones, Assistant Business Manager of the Kendallabrum, and many others.

Memories of 1948-49 will also include Jess Chouteau, Faculty Sponsor; Art Hindle, past President; Mother Samson; Ed Frigar, House Manager; our beautiful Sweetheart of 1949, Donna Briggs; Don Rowley, King of Hearts; Don Underwood, SPC and Community Council; the Installation on December 4th; Valentine Dance, and of course the Founder's Day Banquet and "entertainment" at Oklahoma City.

KAPPA ALPHA

The preservation of chivalry and gracious living as practiced in the pre-Civil War South is the ideal of Kappa Alpha, one of the oldest national social fraternities.

The "deep, deep South," and Robert E. Lee, KA's ideal Southern gentleman, inspired the annual Convivium Ball, and this year members, pledges and dates attended the TU version in their Confederate costumes. During the intermission of their major social event, Kappa Alphas presented Jean Hill as fraternity sweetheart for the second consecutive year.

Most of the other social events of the year were held in the new KA house on growing Fraternity Row. Highlights of the party calendar were the fall picnic, Hallowe'en costume party, Christmas charity dance, Pig Alle party, and Dixie dance. Open houses and dessert dances rounded off the social schedule.

The KA Mothers' Club entered into the frat life, entertaining with a buffet supper for Stillwater frat members after the TU-A & M football game; a Christmas banquet and Valentine dinner for local members and their families.

The new frat house, center of KA activity, was the first to be completed on "frat row." Eighteen men and a house mother are provided quarters in the house, which was planned by Alumnus Cecil Stanfield, and which was partly built by members and pledges.

About 100 alumni have been graduated from Mu chapter of KA since its founding at TU in 1927, and 60 members and 25 pledges are on the present roll.

Officers for this year were Jack McElroy, president; Don Boling, vice-president; Jim Bostick, secretary; and Fred Antry, succeeded by Bostick, as treasurer. House mother for TU's Southern Gentlemen is Mother Marshall.

LAMBDA CHI ALPHA

To Lambda Chi Alpha, the year 1948-49 meant progress — progress in scholarship, in social activities, and in achieving the height of fellowship and a close bond of brotherhood.

For the eighth straight year, Lambda Chi was awarded the President's Scholarship Cup. The fraternity's float won first place in the homecoming parade, and LCA house decorations received second honors in the other alumni day contest.

But individual honors were even more numerous. Louis Lundquist was included in Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities. Dub Lovell was freshman class president. Dale Satterwhite was president of the pep squad, and two of the school's three cheerleaders — Bill Shafer and Phil Wheeler — represented Lambda Chi. Ed Everett edited the Collegian, while George Everett was assistant editor and Kenny Williams was assistant business manager.

At the Fall dinner dance in October, the eleventh year of LCA activity on TU's campus was commemorated, and Sweetheart Danette Young was crowned, later to ride on the float in the homecoming parade. The formal affair, held at Indian Hills country club, was a big one, in fellowship and entertainment.

Then the fraternity's pledges went all-out in their one big annual production —the Pledge Barn Dance. Pledge Social Chairman Bill Cameron and Emcee Chuck Magin showed everyone how to have a good time. It was here that Bill crowned his wife, "Mac" Cameron, "Queen of the Hay."

Then there were the Christmas dance; the pledge "night club" party that was raided; the stag smoker before initiation; the walkouts, and the bruises that resulted—it was an eventful year.

But if Lambda Chi scholarship and social activities were good, its fellowship was supreme. All the events of the year, big and little, will be remembered as the many pieces that, when fitted together, spell out, "1948-1949—a memorable year for Epsilon-Upsilon Zeta of Lambda Chi Alpha."

PI KAPPA ALPHA

The Gamma Upsilon Chapter of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity started the year by electing Jim Hamilton as their president. During the five months that Jim held the gavel, administration reached a new high.

Of the many improvements that were brought about during Jim's reign, undoubtedly the most significant was that of long range planning. Brother Jim's success in carrying out his far-reaching program of efficiency, co-ordination, and planning could never have been realized without the excellent suggestions and advice rendered him by the Pike "brain-trust," composed of Jim Ormond, Bob Bowles, Jack MacEachern, Gene Moore, and Bob Reinkemyer.

On the social front, variety was the spice of our social functions, which ran the gamut from hayrides to dinner dances. The social chairman distinguished himself and the fraternity by successfully "signing" Ernie Fields for the fall formal which was held this year in The Varsity Club. After a stag party, which started the second semester off with a bang, came our Founders Day Banquet. This gave us the opportunity to renew acquaintances with former members, and to exchange a few stories with the alumni. The traditional Bluebeard dance was a huge success. Held in Harwell Gymnasium, the affair featured was beards and western dress. Our last, and most important social function of the year was the Garnet and Gold spring formal. This affair saw Ernie Fields take the bandstand again, and was once more enthusiastically accepted by all present.

"When the Pikes finish out of the playoffs we will request the National to withdraw our charter." This statement, made by Glenn Dobbs several years ago, still describes the seriousness with which the Pikes take their athletics. This year found the garnet and gold teams among the leaders in every sport. By virtue of finishing fourth in football, second in volleyball, and first in basketball and softball the 1107 gang is again a strong contender for the Iron Man Award. Dick "Elbows" Grove, star athletic performer, was voted Mr. Pi K. A. for the second straight year. Dick's support and participation are considered major factors in the fraternity's successful athletic program.

SIGMA CHI ALPHA

For a number of years, Sigma Chi's in the Tulsa area have been interested in establishing a chapter at the University of Tulsa. At the end of World War II, among the many veterans that enrolled at T.U. were seven Sigma Chi's. These men felt that Tulsa University was a fertile field for an old, established fraternity and that this school was worthy of a Sigma Chi chapter. These men banded together with one purpose — to bring a Sigma Chi chapter to the University of Tulsa.

There are more than 250 Sigma Chi Alumni living in Tulsa. These Alumni function as the Tulsa Alumni Chapter of Sigma Chi Fraternity. This group was asked to investigate the University and make recommendations as to the advisability of the seven Sigma Chis at T.U. forming a local group to petition Sigma Chi Fraternity for a charter.

These seven Sigma Chis organized as Sigma Chi Alpha Fraternity, and following favorable recognition by the Inter-Fraternity Council and the Student Activities Committee, became a member of the fraternity family at T.U. A number of outstanding men were pledged and, following standard Sigma Chi pledge instruction, were initiated into Sigma Chi Alpha.

Following its official entrance on the campus, Sigma Chi Alpha actively entered into all campus activities. At the annual 'Singphony,' Sigma Chi Alpha "knocked them in the aisles" with renditions of "Sweetheart of Sigma Chi" and "Collegiate." Sigma Chi Alpha engages in all intramural sports. It placed first in the football field meet. Sigma Chi Alpha teams have not always won, but they have been respected.

Members and pledges have enjoyed numerous social events sponsored by the fraternity. This year a 'character' dance was staged with everyone made-up as Groucho Marx. Following the fun and confusion it was decided to make the 'character' dance an annual event.

Sigma Chi Alpha now has a large pledge class, the largest in its history, and following a general initiation this year, will be ready to petition for a charter. A petition will be presented to the Grand Council of Sigma Chi Fraternity in October, 1949.

SIGMA PHI EPSILON

Sigma Phi Epsilon was founded November 1, 1901, at Richmond College in Virginia. It is considered a comparatively young fraternity, but with its youth has come a progressive spirit that has carried it up among the leaders in the fraternity world. There are now eighty-seven chapters in colleges and universities throughout the country. The TU chapter was installed as Oklahoma Gamma on May 26, 1946.

Special effort was exerted last summer in acquiring a chapter house. Redecorating began after formal rush with the removal of partitions and the laying of new floors. Improvement of the upstairs living quarters and completion of the apartment for the housemother, Mrs. Beatrice Hendershot, soon followed.

The Mothers' Club, founded last year, has greatly helped the chapter. During rush week last September, they furnished and decorated the house for us in only two hours. This same spirit has accompanied all their projects since they began under the presidency of Mrs. Arthur John.

Picnics, hayrides, and parties were crowded in between house work projects. Hammers were flying a few days before Homecoming day, November 13, making the parade float and props for the Moonshiners' Ball. Patty Sue Duval rode in the Sig Ep float as Homecoming Queen. Pledges provided a fine skit at the ball, during which Pinky Thornton and Bill Walker were awarded prizes for the most appropriate costumes by Ivan Roark, faculty advisor.

Members, pledges, and alums turned out en masse to attend the Golden Heart Formal, held February 12. Amid cheering Sig Eps, Mary Ann Ramsey was crowned Sweetheart by Chuck Edwards. Honor guest was Larkin Bailey, of Tulsa, who had recently been elected National Grand President of the fraternity.

Honor reapers were: Jack Hale, Phi Gamma Kappa; Tom Carlson, President of Phi Eta Sigma; Sonny Berry, Phi Eta Sigma; Gene Bascom, Phi Eta Sigma; and Carl Hall, Pi Kappa Delta.

OFF-CAMPUS GREEKS

Weekly meetings in the Union have meant parties and more parties for Off-Campus Greeks this year as members of national sororities and fraternities with no chapters on the University of Tulsa campus organized in the fall and began their round of fun.

The group consists of members of five national sororities and 11 national fraternities — Kappa Alpha Theta, Pi Beta Phi, Alpha Delta Pi, Alpha Gamma Delta, Zeta Tau Alpha and Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Kappa Sigma, Sigma Nu, Beta Theta Pi, Delta Tau Delta, Phi Gamma Delta, Phi Delta Theta, Phi Sigma, Theta Chi, Phi Kappa Psi and Delta Upsilon.

Officers for the first semester were elected and Dick Wells, assumed the presidency, assisted by Gus Siekman, vice president; Marilou Kitchen, secretary; Barton Phillips, treasurer; and Bernice Williams, social chairman.

Second semester brought many new members to the organization and following election of officers, the new crew planned a "get acquainted" steak fry at the Vandever Pony Farm. Later in the semester Wally Whitlow, new social chairman planned a picnic and a dance.

Harold Heller ..... Secretary

Bob Smith ..... Treasurer

The Independent Men's Association was formed on the University of Tulsa campus in May, 1938, by a small group of men just back from the first national convention of Independents held at the University of Oklahoma. Dean H. D. Chase was the first sponsor of the group, and he remains active in an advisory capacity.

The IMA opened the year last fall with an all-school carnival dance, sponsored jointly with IWA, which far exceeded expectations. As a result IMA was able to broaden further its comprehensive program for non-Greek students.

The IMA entered strong teams in all sports sponsored by the organization intramural league, including touch football, volleyball, basketball, bowling, softball, tennis, and golf, and was also well represented in the annual football field day meet.

Among the group projects carried on as annual parts of IMA's activities was the Christmas Party for Poor Kids, held in December in cooperation with IWA for the third straight year. The organization also adopted as a major project the IWA sponsorship of aid to the state deaf and blind Negro children's home at Taft, Oklahoma.

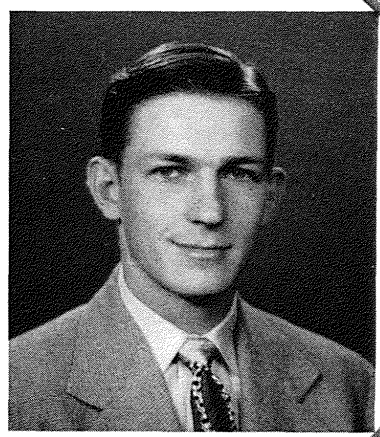

Important features of the spring schedule included a spring formal, and the National Independent Students' Association convention at the University of Illinois.

Independents prominent in campus affairs included Morley Zipursky, holder of the highest student office on the campus, president of the Community Council; A. T. Gibbon, vice president of the council, and members Harold Heller, Robert L. Smith, and Al Orrick.

The university theatre workshop was capably assisted by Kenneth Brown, while KWGS, campus radio station was ably staffed by Robert Leslie, engineer, and Don Norton, sports director. Publications work called Al Orrick, Collegian staff writer.

Active sponsorship of IMA was handled by dean of men Max Raines, himself an ex-Independent from the University of Indiana.

INDEPENDENT WOMEN'S ASSOCIATION

With its membership almost tripled during the first semester of school, the Independent Women's Association entered successfully into intramural sports, beauty and popularity contests, talent shows, and national college activities.

Among campus leaders in IWA were former president Marjorie Newlin, tapped for Senior Staff, and selected secretary-treasurer because of her high grade average. 1948 president, Gretchen Wheeler, was a member of Kappa Delti Pi, and chosen for Lantern were Elizabeth Haines, Greta Stone, Jo Bottenfield, and Mary Jo Bradford. Jo and Mary Jo were also members of Sigma Alpha Iota.

Wielding the gavel in Sociology Club meetings was Greta Stone, while Corrine Carr took the minutes. Greta also was secretary of TU "Y" and a member of Community Council.

In the glamor department, Glennadean Morgan was band queen attendant, while Greta was football queen attendant and beauty queen runner-up.

One of the year's most successful all-school dances was the Carnival Dance, given by the IWA and Independent Men. Looking beyond the TU campus, the Independents sent a large delegation to the National Independent Students Convention at the University of Illinois.

Another project that included more than the TU scene was the aiding of deaf and blind colored children in Taft, by IWA members. The girls also joined the IMA in entertaining at Christmas for underprivileged Tulsa children.

This year IWA members drew nearer their goal of providing for non-affiliated co-eds the opportunities for participation in campus affairs which are often missed outside organized circles.

(Left) "DARK OF THE MOON", Dec. 10-15. Many students purposefully took to the hills to see if gals like Shirley Barton and Frances Webber really hang out there, when this tale of Barbara Allen and the witch boy, folk music, witches and moon-magic, came to the T. U. stage. Ken Tanner, as the witch boy, lost his battle to become a human while Nancy Meltzer as Barbara Allen, lost her religion and finally her life (in the play, that is).

(Below) "JULIUS CAESAR", April 16-21, '48. Bill Cardin as Brutus and Bob Clardy as Cassius made the theater's annual Elizabethan production roll right along. Wars, literal and verbal, were fought on stage, with swords clanging against armor . . . drums, and all the trimming. Special interest back-stage was the tricky way little Bobbie Wagner hid in one of the big set pillars to prompt.

(Above) "ALADDIN", Nov. 18-23. Directed by Laurine Hager, Children's Theater entertained Tulsa school kids, who gasped and giggled as evil Magician Ken Brown waggled his beard and looked villainous. Added highlight was dance by Genii Ken Tanner.

(Right) "FIRST LADY", Oct. 15-22. Theatrics and politics mixed like mad in this all-out comedy show. As aspiring Washington wives, Shirley Barton and Pat Carroll, did everything but put arsenic in each other's old lace as they battled for the key to the White House. Special thrills came when the Dewey's (who were invited but didn't attend) posed for pics with student actresses.

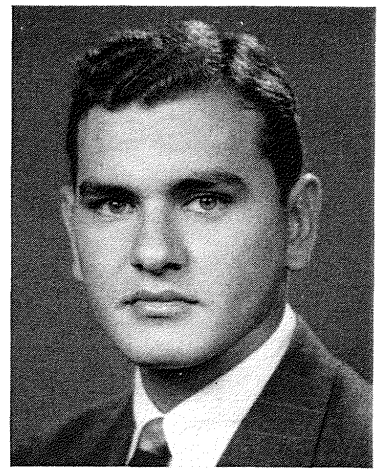

(Below) "THE LADY IS A HUSSY", Feb. 11-19. Empresses were young and attractive, dictators strictly for laughs, and songs especially for fun when Dr. Beaumont Bruestle directed his own show. Frances Webber and Tommie Gardner, double-cast as the hussy, alternately fussed and bussed Eddie Rauniker, who played Joey Lefevre. Five settings by Hank Barrows stressed Empire atmosphere. This is the third of Bruestle's musicals produced by the university theater.

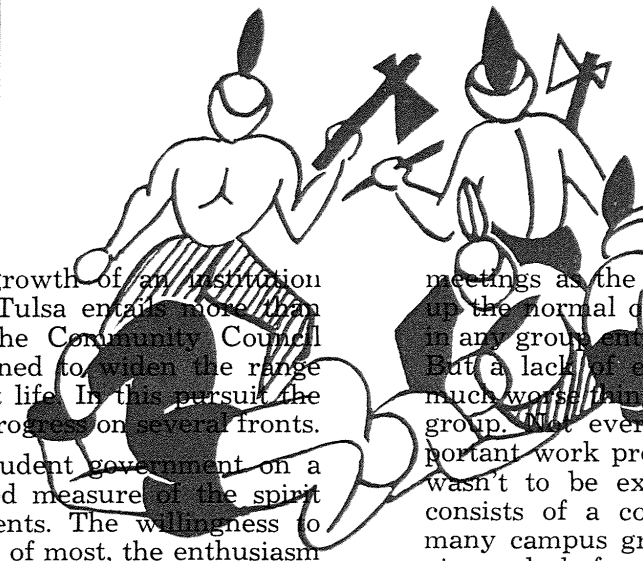

COMMUNITY COUNCIL

Morley Zipursky
President

A. T. Gibbon
V-President

Remembering that the growth of an institution such as the University of Tulsa entails more than beautiful new buildings, the Community Council assembled last fall determined to widen the range and effectiveness of student life. In this pursuit the Council has made definite progress on several fronts.

The effectiveness of a student government on a university campus is a good measure of the spirit prevailing among the students. The willingness to act in harmony for the good of most, the enthusiasm to back a school function or a drive for charity, this and many other tests reflect both on the representatives of a student council and on the students they serve, as well. Cynics will be able to point to instances where the 1948-49 Community Council failed in its avowed duties, but a final audit at the end of the year showed quite a different story of accomplishment.

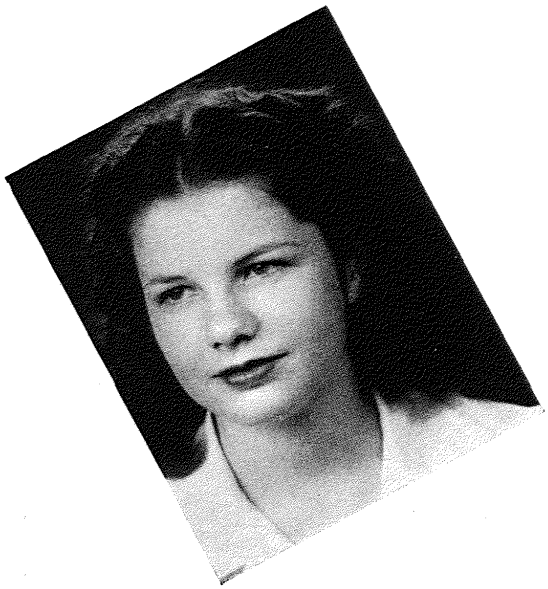

Of course twenty-nine representatives, each with definite opinions, will not always work with perfect coordination. There were spirited battles in Council meetings as the year went by, some of which tied up the normal order of business for a time, just as in any group entrusted with the job of making rules. But a lack of earnest debate would have been a much worse thing, denoting a spiritless, disinterested group. Not every session of the Council saw important work presented, discussed and passed; that wasn't to be expected. Part of the Council's job consists of a complete airing of the views of as many campus groups as possible. Frequently these views clash forcefully.

Community Council work began long before the representatives met together for the first time in the fall. A committee composed both of Council representatives and faculty members spent many a weary summer hour drafting a new student constitution for presentation during the next school year. In its final form the document called for radical changes, especially changes in membership, the chief basis for argument. Its consideration by the student legislative body stirred up very healthy interest all over the campus, fanned in part by the wide publicity given it in the Collegian, the student newspaper. As the first semester closed the new constitution's fate still remained in doubt, though many believed it would be adopted in amended form.

In addition to the constitution work, the Council retained an interest in national student activities by sending its president, Morley Zipursky, and Dick Davis to the National Student's Association convention held at Madison, Wisconsin. Other schools' ways of handling problems can, CC members believe, often be valuable in the solution of similar situations on the local campus. The NSA offers an accurate check on modern trends in student organizations over the entire nation.

A congenial attitude which prevailed during the year between the Community Council and the Administration can probably be credited with bringing about the greatest single step forward in TU's social facilities that the campus has seen in several years.

Working together the two groups secured a lease early in the school year on the spacious Cafe Petroleo, located on the International Petroleum Exposition grounds. Once the deal with Exposition officials was completed, the building was renamed the "Varsity Club," and the real work got under way. First the Club underwent redecoration to make it suitable for any school social function, and then a special committee of the Council worked out a policy or set of rules governing its use. Once the preliminaries were out of the way the new Varsity Club started a successful season of organization or Council sponsored functions. Naturally, Tulsa University students are happily looking forward to many another social event in seasons to come—at least until such time as a large, fully equipped Student Union is built.

The Council had its lighter moments, too. There were times when Robert's Rules of Order defied even parliamentarian Barney Melekian and President Morley Zipursky. This, in turn, made life pretty tough for hard-working secretary Jackie Newton when the question arose as to whether the group was voting on a motion, or an amendment to an amendment to a motion! Sometimes the procedure became rather involved and seemed unnecessary to many, but since the Council's aim was partly to teach just that sort of thing members managed to sweat it out.

School dances, Campus Chest campaigns, assemblies, pep rallies are just part of the wide scope of Community Council work during an average year. As one might guess, it would be an impossibility for the group to take up work on all these matters during the regular Tuesday morning sessions. A number of standing committees are therefore provided for in the CC constitution, each with a field of work of its own. In that way the ground work for a new plan is completed before the entire Council takes it up. An accelerated legislative program results, capable of considering prominent issues at the time they arise.

STUDENT ACTIVITIES COMMITTEE

The committee to which TU organizations look hopefully for approval, the SAC, rules with a stern hand. Composed of both students and faculty members, this group's powers range from approving charters of new organizations to regulating social life on the campus.

Under the leadership of chairman Kenneth Popejoy, committee members worked out concise and easily understood rules to be followed by all groups in planning social functions, large or small. Their aim was to avoid embarrassing mix-ups and let every group on the TU campus know what its do's and don't's are, a very important thing where so many functions are involved.

ASSEMBLY COMMITTEE

One of the most successful committees of the year was undoubtedly the Assembly committee, headed by Dr. D. H. McCleave. After some complaining about the assembly programs the year before, McCleave's group worked hard for an improvement. In cooperation with the Administration the Assembly committee contacted outstanding speakers from over the nation.

A completely revamped assembly program series resulted. Regularly, well-known personalities appeared at Kendall Hall auditorium, and furnished TU students with a varied and interesting hour each time. Such speakers as John Jacob Niles, famous collector of ballads, and Oklahoma's own Dr. Edward E. Dale spoke on programs.

Included in the assembly series were, of course, pep rallies, Fine Arts programs, a band assembly, Christmas program, and others provided by students themselves. Indications were that in 1949 students could expect a real treat on Thursday mornings.

STUDENT PROMOTIONS COMMITTEE

Duties of this group are just what you may guess from the name. That highly important element on a campus, school spirit, is furthered by the activities planned by the SPC. Membership is made up of key people from all campus organizations which are interested in rallies, parades, and contests.

Those fine football parades, culminating in the Homecoming Parade, the most colorful event of its type in the year, represent a lot of effort on the part of SPC's Don Underwood and his co-workers. They will tell you a big affair like that is no easy thing to plan. Students will also remember the successful bonfire-pep rally on the football practice field, and half-time programs at Skelly Stadium as other evidences of SPC toil.

Coming up again in the second semester was the Varsity Revue show, complete with royalty elected to preside. Committee members looked forward to promoting the show to a successful run again.

CLASS ACTIVITIES COMMITTEE

Another hard-working bunch of students spent the year on the Council's Class Activities Committee, which draws its members from officers of the four class groups. Forrest Price headed the committee at first, but resigned to head the Community Chest Drive. Phil Smith took over for the rest of the year.

The 1948-49 season featured several fancy class drags at the new Varsity Club. Of course the high point of the year and the most important project of the CAC was the Junior-Senior Prom held in the spring. Officers of the two participating classes directed the committee's efforts in arranging the big affair.

An important phase of the CAC's work is in coordinating class activities, so that there will be no conflicts or difficulties.

Included in the committee's plans for the year was a survey of Freshman orientation activities, with an eye to a more effective orientation program. The group expects to make recommendations for future years at the conclusion of its survey.

BOARD OF PUBLICATIONS

Responsibility for the operation of the campus publications, the Kendallabrum and Collegian, rests with the Board of Publications. It chooses the editor and business manager and their assistants for each publication and determines the policies of each.

Also, any complaints (and there are bound to be some) which may arise concerning the operation of the newspaper or yearbook goes immediately to the committee, where it is thrashed out and a course of action decided upon.

E. H. Johnson, head of the TU journalism department, acted as chairman of the BOP during the 1948-49 season. In addition to faculty advisors the rest of the committee is made up of the officials of the publications.

COUNCIL PROJECTS COMMITTEE

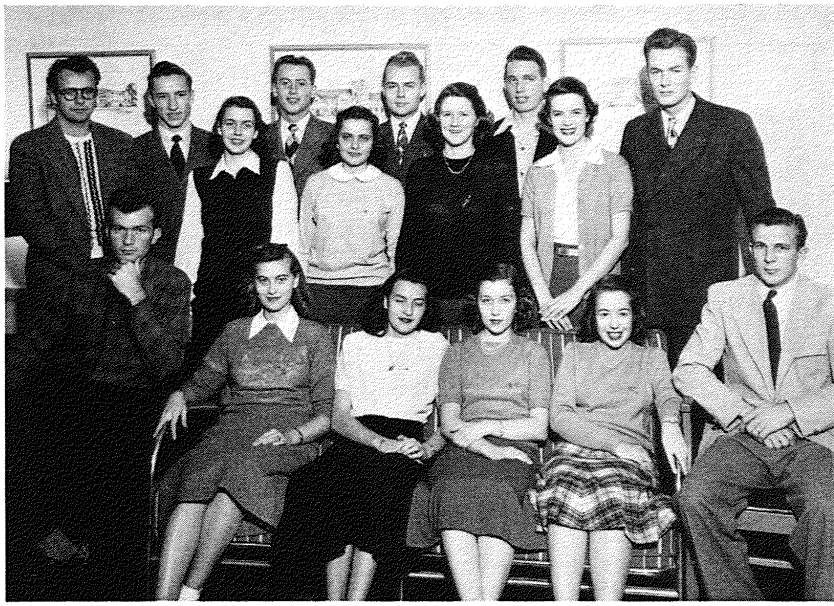

For the second straight year A. T. Gibbon headed up the Council's trouble-shooters, the Council Projects Committee.

Since its inception as a standing committee last year the CPC has had a hand in numerous activities of the Council. At election time the committee got to work arranging that vital activity, and later helped with the Campus Chest drive. Along the way there were several special jobs the CPC carried through for the Council, too. At the end of the year there was the presentation of the Outstanding Senior Cup, and another election.

There is a lot of routine work connected with the duties of the CPC, but it's quite necessary and important to the effective functioning of the Council.

SOCIAL COMMITTEE

Under the heading, Social Committee achievement, must come a large share of the credit for the success of the Varsity Club. For the Social Committee, with its subsidiary the Varsity Club Committee, helped lay the groundwork for its use as a school social center.

Long hours were spent in working out a policy for the Club's use which would be acceptable to any campus organization. That job might on the surface sound rather easy, but when the different groups expressed their ideas in Council meeting there was sharp disagreement. It took both tact and reason on the part of committee members to bring everyone together. Thus the Varsity Club was able to become the valuable facility that it is.

ATHLETIC COMMITTEE

A continuation of the well-developed intramurals program at TU comprised most of the Athletic Committee's work during the year. The intramurals, a very important activity in recent years, are a product of the Intramural boards, working in conjunction with the Athletic Committee.

Since the Athletic Committee works more or less in cooperation with the school's athletic department, it is not possible to list a number of accomplishments under its name, but it has its place in CC activity.

Chairman John Slater and his committee members were in charge of making up schedules for dances during the year and for arranging juke-box dances after games. It was a busy year for them.

Donna Briggs

Miss Oklahoma

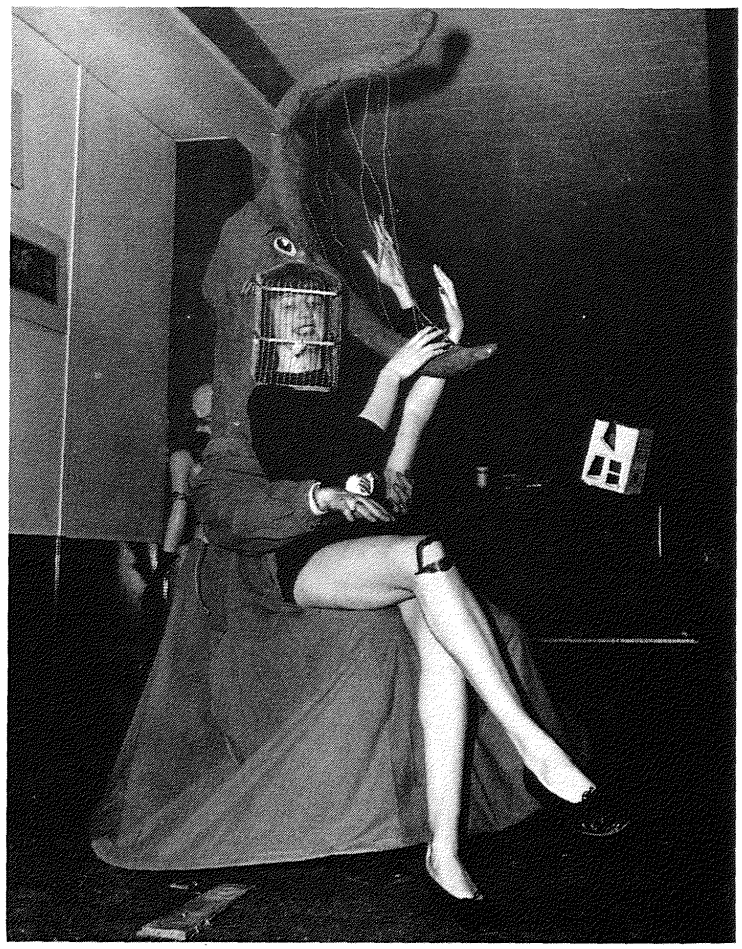

While TU students were getting down to the studies of the fall semester they were also watching a fellow student, Donna Briggs, as she carried the Oklahoma banner into the battle of the bulges and talents at the 1948 Miss America contest. And they were plenty proud when she placed among the top five winners.

The Beaux Arts Ball, when the surrealist lets his hair down for all to see, was enjoying a steady comeback this year all over the country. Hardy TU students welcomed the annual event back to this campus after its war-time respite and, as if trying to make up lost time, the modern art enthusiasts came out wearing everything but the kitchen sink. That's probably being saved for next year.

1949 KENDALLABRUM

RAMON KING
Business Manager

JERRE WILLSEY BALDWIN
Editor

For this edition of the Kendallabrum the rich and relatively early beginning of TU has provided the decorative theme, such as it is. Those six Indian Maidens who first ventured out for a bit of frontier education are our heroines. Not only for the yearbook decor but for their act which gave the book life, we borrow this phrase in appreciation — "never have so many owed so much to so few."

In the production of the book itself the editors were ably assisted by many of the students and faculty alike and to those people we extend sincere thanks. To George Churchill, faculty advisor, Bob McCormack, our staff photographer, and the members of the board of publication should go a large part of the credit for the 1949 edition.

Although not shown, our heroines also influenced the design of this year's cover. The "something new" cover locates geographically the Maidens home land of the Southwest.

Art for the Southwestern theme of this year's Kendallabrum came from many and varied sources. The whole-hearted thanks of the editorial staff goes out to those people who bent their pens and brushes to the creation of Indian maidens and designs, Western symbols, lettering and cartoons.

A phase of the yearbook work that was a little far from the Indian maiden idea was the work of the business staff. While the editorial staff worked at incorporating the theme of the Southwest into the book, the business end worked just as hard at acquiring advertisements and designing layouts for that section of this publication that furnished the funds to make the Kendallabrum available to you.

As the editorial staff has worked this year to compile the lasting record of the activities of the University of Tulsa for the 1948-49 school year, we have inevitably made those mistakes of which human beings are guilty. We can only hope that you, our readers, will bear with us, and most of all that you will enjoy the component parts of the 1949 Kendallabrum.

JACK KELLEY
Editor
Fall Semester

Determined to keep the Collegian from being a drab publication devoted only to telling the student body a few items of campus news, Editor Jack Kelley and his assistants, Ed Everett and Jim Shirley, started the year off with a great many interesting features.

While the editors planned new and interesting methods of arranging the paper, staff members contributed the scores of news stories, unusual features, columns, cartoons, necessary to a well-rounded and effective publication.

Many were the important news happenings recorded in the Collegian as the year progressed. Presidential candidates Dewey and Truman came to town, the Community council took up a study of a very controversial new student constitution, tradition was thrown out the window when two Nevada negro football players went into action against TU at Skelly Stadium, the campus was assured two new dormitories when ground was broken for the Mabee buildings, and TU leased the Varsity Club (Cafe Petroleo at Expo grounds) for its major social functions. These are a few of the top stories under the team of Kelley, Everett and Shirley.

The paper, of course, was no product of one or even three men. It was only through a large and competent staff that the Collegian was made worthwhile. Fortunately, staffers like Marion Cracraft, sports editor; Joan Marks, society editor, cartoonist Pete Finley, photographer John Shipley and "Campus Scene" McCarthy were around to contribute their best to the Collegian. Many others, too many to name here, chipped in a lot of time and effort during the year.

Mid-term saw a change in both the editorial and business staffs of the publication. Editor Jack Kelley and assistant Jim Shirley resigned, while Virginia Wheeler, assistant Business Manager, left through graduation. The Board of Publications elected Ed Everett as editor and Richard Gentry and George Everett as assistants; Business Manager Vernon Claybaugh and Chris Neely, his assistant, welcomed Kenny Williams to their department.

Under the new leadership the Collegian changed but little in form and appearance, although editorially a lot was written about "liberal" and "conservative" elements in the editorial department. A great step forward was made by a new plan set into motion the second semester, when beginning journalism students received one credit hour for work on the Collegian. In addition, the journalism department set aside a lab hour on Monday afternoon where the beginners could talk over writing problems with Mr. Johnson and the editors of the paper. All in all, a rather successful year.

HOME MAKING

Newest department at TU is Home Making Arts set up this year especially for co-eds interested in the home and its operation. With a goodly portion of the classes already married, present as well as future husbands benefited from the new department, and bigger and better things are being planned for next year.

Cooking and sewing, the old stand-bys of home makers, were only two of the classes offered in the new curriculum. General home economics, child care, and home nursing classes were added, and next year style and interior decoration will be among the subjects.

Catherine Hunter, head of the department, turned Robertson Hall Annex into a campus home, with visiting rooms furnished as completely as the work rooms. Three separate kitchens, several sewing machines, and a laundry room provided the girls with brand-new equipment.

Since 70 per cent of college girls marry soon after their graduation from school, the home making department is particularly important. The purpose of the courses is to combine with the general requirements of the University and develop an objective point of view about the social world and the social responsibilities of the individual.

Little Janey Ford is the subject for a child care session.

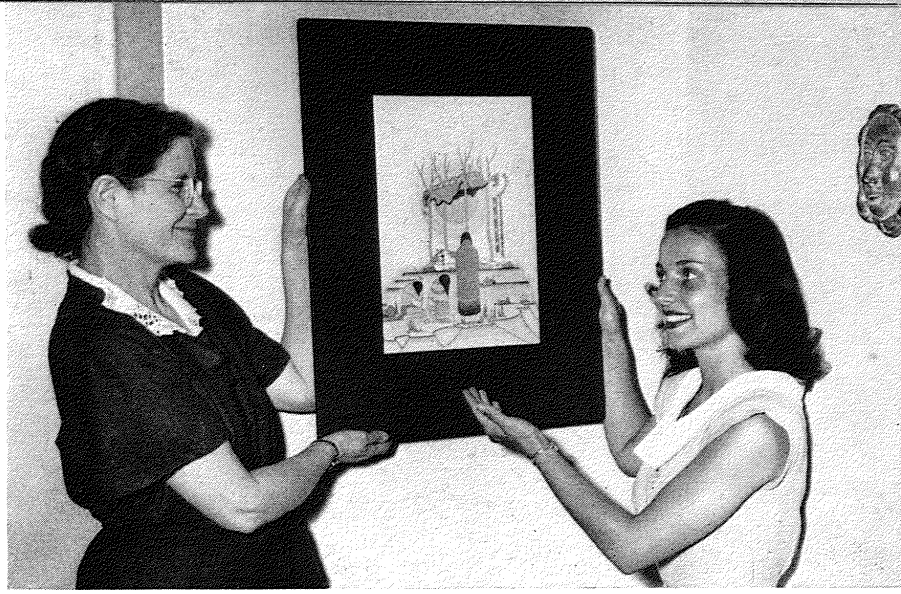

ARTS

See, the seam goes here. Now how does it work?

Science moves even in the realm of the family laundry.

Catherine Hunter directs everything from decoration to sewing.

Into the four years of the curriculum of a student choosing home making arts as an area of concentration, there must also be included a development of taste for art, literature and music, and a philosophy of life designed to create and maintain basic ethical and religious values.

National statistics have shown that wives and mothers who are trained in such courses as are now being offered at TU have more success in marriage and family life. Toward this end, happy home life, TU co-eds are taught to cook and to sew, instructed in the choice of attractive and satisfying color combinations. They learn to select furnishings for the home, arrange flower decorations, and generally keep a home that is pleasant and congenial.

It's all in the book and these kids can read . . . formula of success!

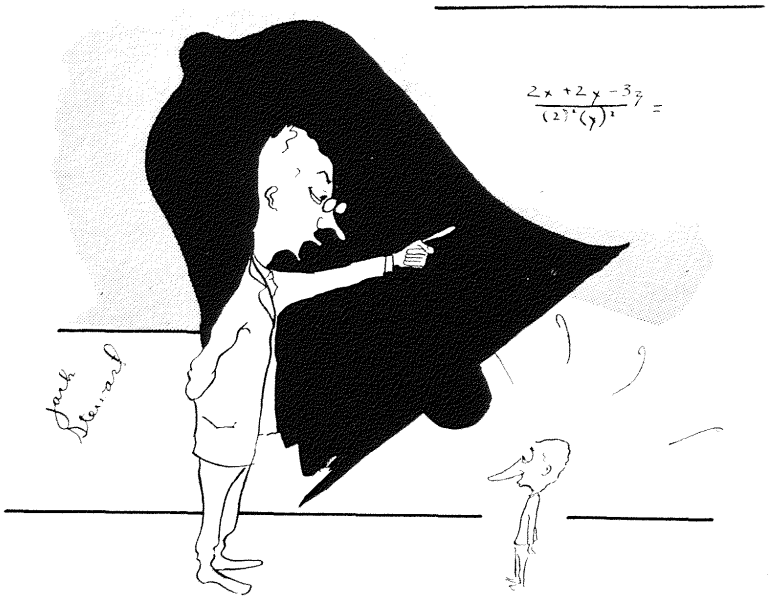

A break between classes means "coffee time" for these Downtowners, (l. to r.) D. C. Caudle, Willis Zimmerman, H. J. Rush, Ralph Sessing, Dan Ponto and Clarence Metzinger.

"TU's Swing Shift . . ."

DOWNTOWN

Night classes, complete with neon signs and noisy traffic.

"No, Mister Tailor, the answer to this equation is not 'two for the price of one'."

While the 1948-49 term was the biggest year of growth for the Downtown College — a new record in enrollment, new course offerings and a new college home — it all adds up to expanded educational opportunities for the student whose college and professional careers are combined.

Not everyone gets a college education the same way. A great many for numerous reasons attend evening class to qualify for a sheepskin and the University of Tulsa has provisions for this through its Downtown Division. In the fall of 1933 TU opened the newly organized branch in the Commercial Building at 619 South Main St. Five years later it moved to its present location and within the year a brand-new building, at 6th and Cincinnati, is expected to be completed.

DC's administration staff, friend and advisor to students.

DIVISION

Accounting problems have answers, even in night classes.

With this expansion, being constructed by the Stanolind Pipe Line Company adjacent to their new office building, the Downtown College expects to have some of the most modern educational facilities available anywhere. With it also will come a larger, well-equipped Downtown College, capable of serving Tulsa more effectively.

The expansion of the University of Tulsa, therefore, is not limited to the campus.

Dr. Harry Gowans, Dean of the Downtown College and Summer Session on the campus, has led adult education in Tulsa to an important position during the past few years, climaxing this year with an enrollment of near 1500. Each year more and more Tulsans are getting the higher education needed to compete in the modern world — and following a career at the same time.

All classes of the Downtown College are held in the evenings, patterned after regular courses on the main campus with similar material and equipment to offer the same quality of study. A great many of the faculty are regular teachers on the campus, also.

TU SCHOOL of LAW

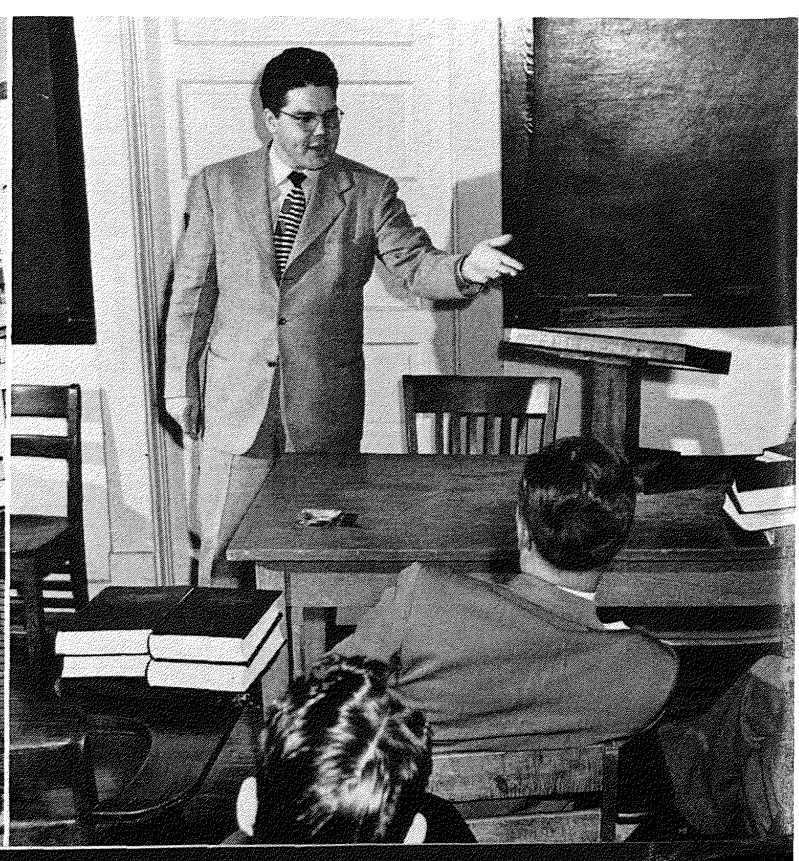

Mr. John Rogers, attorney-instructor, gets a question from the class.

Ending its first half-decade as a part of the University of Tulsa, the School of Law, like other divisions and colleges, has been a part of a new growth at TU which promises a bright future for the young men and women of this area. With an enrollment of near 150 students, the Law School offered this year, for the first time, a full-time course for students who are able to devote all of their time to studies.

In the main however, the school draws its student body from the rank and file of young business people who continue careers in this or other fields while working toward the day when they can display their "shingle". With some of Tulsa's most prominent attorneys on the faculty and Dean Summers Hardy, former Justice of the Supreme Court of Oklahoma, to guide it, the school offers a substantial educational service to the community.

Although a part of the University of Tulsa only since 1943, the Law School's history dates to the early 1920's when a group of lawyers established the Tulsa Law School. It grew as a training ground for young barristers and then, as today, produced attorneys who have always stood high in their profession. Before the year is over the School of Law will have seen another progressive step made when it takes over classrooms, offices and library in the new TU Downtown Division building, being completed at Fifth and Cincinnati.

BILL BOYD
His misfortune a boost for the March of Dimes

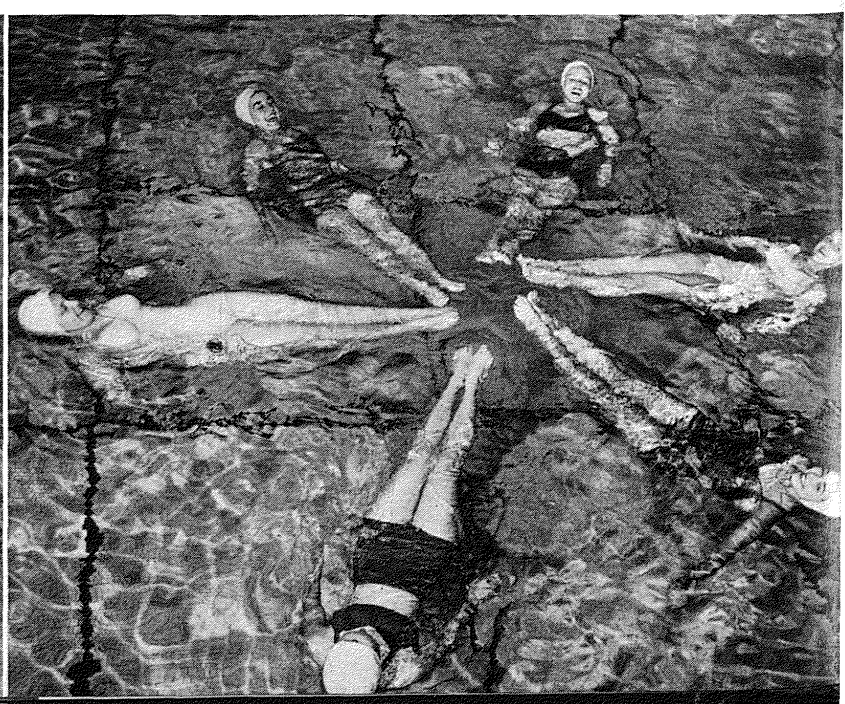

WHEN polio struck Bill Boyd, engineering student, last summer, his college education came to a temporary standstill. But when the annual March of Dimes campaign rolled around this year Bill was among the most active campaign leaders in Tulsa. At his suggestion and under his direction, TU fraternity and sorority members completed distribution of hundreds of contribution boxes, a major project of the campaign.

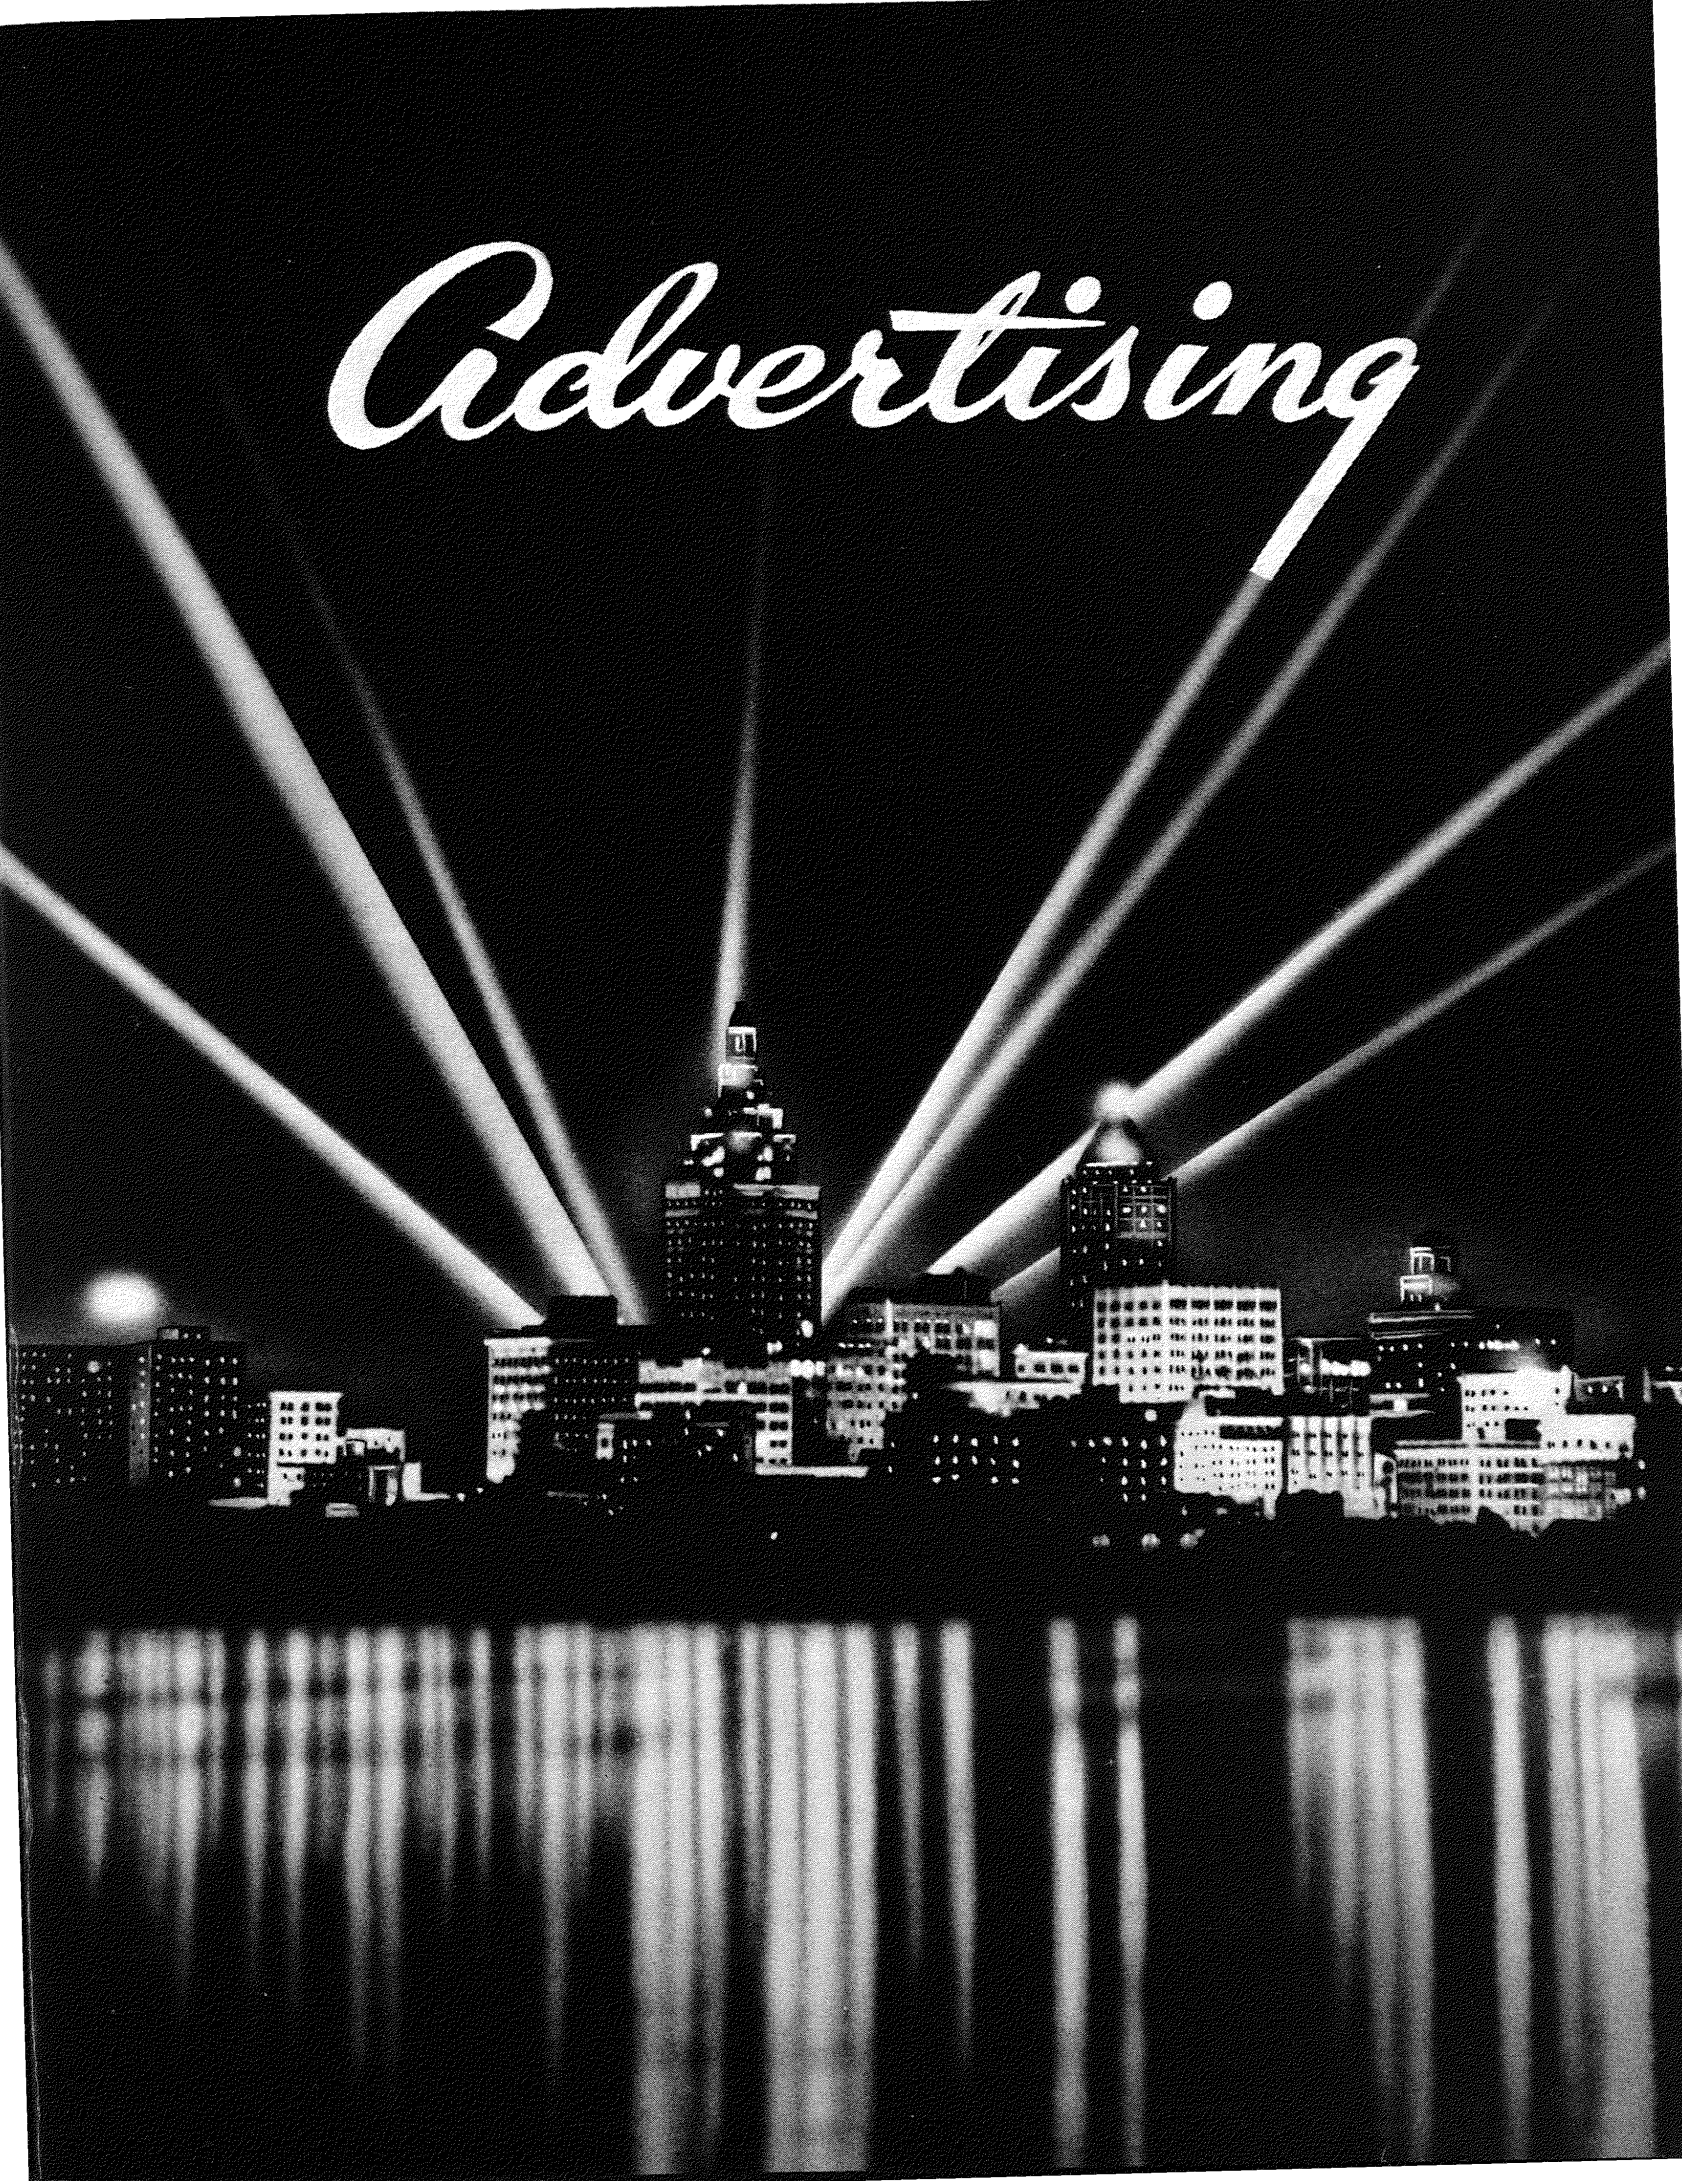

And, when Spring rolled around Pi KA beards blossomed like the flowers but the "chin foliage" bloomed only until the annual Bluebeard Dance was held in March.

With Spring also came the "1949 Aquapades," an event rapidly becoming one of the better annual entertainment features at TU. This second presentation of the all-student water show was again directed by Miriam Ferguson, physical education instructor and former aqua performer herself, and performed by nearly a dozen student stars.

As we see you...

To our eyes comes a welcome sight. The picture we see is one of the next generation coming into its own as graduation time comes again.

From this graduating class Tulsa will expect much. Many of you will assume positions of influence in the years to come. You will be the business and professional men and women who will guide the destiny of our city. You will have to make the decisions in business and civic activities . . . but you will also be the ones to enjoy the fruits of your labors.

To the graduating class of '49 may we add our wish that your future will be blessed with riches both tangible and intangible.

THE GREAT SOUTHWEST

. . . with its "oil capital of the world" and its magic empire, echoed not too many years past with the sound of the rolling wheels of the covered wagon, and the halloo of the pioneer in search of ranchlands to the pioneer in search of "black gold." But today the oil capital of the world has more than petroleum products and fine cattle to appeal to you. Art and fine craftsmanship are here to answer the demands of a vigorously growing culture.

Southwestern Engraving Company, located in the heart of the section whose name it bears, offers designers and engravers to fill the pages of the college yearbook with informing color, beauty and fetching eloquence. More than a quarter century of producing college annuals of distinction has made the Southwestern trademark a label of quality recognized throughout the nation.
